Explosions trigger embassy carnage

Times News Services

LONDON — Two tremendous explosions rocked the Iranian embassy today followed by a fusillade of gunfire, minutes after the dead body of one the six-day hostages had been pushed out through the embassy door.

Flames poured from a second floor window and at least one man, presumably a hostage, was seen jumping for his life from a second floor balcony to another balcony.

Fifteen minutes after the two ear-splitting explosions which occurred about 7:30 p.m. London time, police with stretchers raced toward the building and were seen carrying out bodies. Police also tore down their barricades to get fire engines through to fight the roaring flames and dense black smoke still pouring from the building.

BBC cameraman Sims Harris, one of the hostages captured when Iranian-Arab gunmen seized the building last Wednesday, emerged apparently not seriously injured.

Minutes after the explosions, one of the hostages waved a sheet from a second-floor window in an attempt to attract the attention of rescuers.

Other people came rushing out the front entrance.

Gunmen still were occupying the embassy following the blasts and police marksmen crouched on the balconies of nearby buildings returning their fire.

Overhead, a police helicopter surveyed the scene, while Iranian demonstrators who had been milling around about 400 metres down the road started thunderous yells of "Long live Khomeini."

The body of a dark-haired victim was removed from the building about 7 p.m. London time by two men crouching and covered by police riflemen.

The victim, who was not immediately identified, was put on a stretcher and covered with a red blanket, his arms hanging limply off the sides. He appeared to be wearing a mustard-colored jacket and white shirt.

Several hours earlier, police reported "what sounded like two or three shots coming from the direction of" the embassy.

Deputy Assistant Police Commissioner Peter Nievens told reporters the gunman with whom police were talking on a field telephone at the time the suspected shots were heard did not tell them what had happened.

The telephone conversation continued, leading to speculation the apparent shooting, reported by several witnesses, may have been at the back of the building and that the gunmen did not hear it.

Until this afternoon, police believed they were winning the war of nerves with the gunmen, describing their dialogue with them as amiable and expressing rising hopes for a peaceful outcome to the siege.

On Sunday, the British foreign office had called in representatives from Jordan, Kuwait and Syria to discuss the situation after the gunmen had demanded Arab mediation in the dispute.

The gunmen have identified themselves as Arabs from Iran fighting to gain autonomy for Arab-speaking areas of southern Iran which they refer to as Arabistan.

London police, who have conducted most of the negotiations with the gunmen so far, said they were encouraged by the release of two hostages on Saturday and another Sunday.

Meanwhile in Tehran, the bodies of eight U.S. servicemen who died in an abortive attempt to rescue the U.S. hostages in Iran were handed over today to a representative of Greek Catholic Archbishop Hilarion Capudji.

And the official Pars news agency reported that a "possibly American" helicopter was found abandoned in the desert after four helicopters violated Iranian airspace Sunday.

Right royal disbelief

It's a good job a picture's worth a thousand words because Shelley Gibson was speechless Sunday when announcement was made that she had been chosen 1980 May Queen. Shelley, a Parklands student, was one of 10 high school students vying for the crown. Named as her princesses were Linda Darling, of Reynolds, and Coleen Christie, of Esquimalt High. As queen, Shelley will participate in a wide range of events ranging from Pacific National Exhibition parade to Oak Bay Tea Party. She'll be crowned May 18.

Remember Florenda Joy?

11 years later

Once upon a time — in 1969, to be precise — Victorians reached deep into their pockets to send a little girl born with a defective heart to the Mayo Clinic. Times columnist Arthur Mayse made public the plight of Florenda Joy Dick, and today he tells the very happy ending to a wonderful story. Foreign aid helps Canadians most?

OTTAWA (CP) — A year-long study of the Canadian International Development Agency suggests that Canada's foreign aid program may sometimes be of more benefit to Canadians than to the poor and hungry of the Third World.

Sixty per cent of Canada's total aid budget is spent in Canada for goods and services to be shipped to poor nations, says the report by Suteera Thomson, a science adviser to the Science Council of Canada.

While such a policy creates jobs at home, it also forces developing nations to purchase goods at prices estimated to be 20 per cent higher than the world market and, in the case of food aid, deflates the prices Third World farmers can obtain for their goods, says the recently-released report.

The development agency had only 52 workers stationed abroad compared with more than 1,000 in Canada when the report was prepared. Most of the officials sent abroad or planning projects in Canada had little or no Third World experience when hired.

"Thus, in terms of staffing, CIDA is heavily Canadian-based, if not Canada-centred."

Agency personnel posted abroad often aligned themselves closely with Canadian embassies promoting

Amsterdam goes wild as Canucks march in

AMSTERDAM (Reuter) — Some of the Canadian veterans who helped free Amsterdam during the Second World War today re-enacted their march into the city to celebrate the 35th anniversary of the Netherland's liberation.

Crowds several deep in places threw flowers at 350 of the 1,000 Canadians who took control of the Dutch capital from the occupying Germans in May, 1945.

Every five years, the Netherlands celebrates its liberation with a public holiday. Ten Canadians were invited for each of the 30 years that have passed since the end of the occupation.

The veterans drove through the city to the packed main Dam Square in a convoy of 85 vehicles used in the war.

As the procession began in the Berlage Bridge, where the Canadians entered Amsterdam, Dutch children climbed onto some of the vehicles, including jeeps, trucks, armored and amphibious carriers and staff cars.

The veterans, many in khaki uniforms and wearing medals, distributed cigarettes and chocolate as they did 35 years ago and gave the V for victory sign to the crowd.

The commander of the first Canadian troops to enter Amsterdam, Brig.-Gen. Henry Bell-Irving, released the first of a flock of white doves to commemorate the liberation.

Three Second World War planes flew low over the square where a children's choir sang songs in English to the Canadians.

U.S. prime drops

WASHINGTON — The prime lending rate continued to decline today as the Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. of New York reduced its rate a full percentage point to 17½ per cent.

Several other banks, including Chase Manhattan of New York, cut their prime rates one-half of a percentage point to 18 per cent. Chase is the third-largest bank in the country; Morgan ranks fifth.

The drop in interest rates has come with the growing consensus that a recession has begun, with a decline in bank business lending. In addition, according to Federal Reserve Board figures, the nation's basic money supply declined in March and it now appears that it will fall in April — the first two consecutive months of decline since the Fed began tightening credit last October.

The Carter administration, which is still predicting a mild and short recession, is hoping that the decline in interest rates and a drop in the inflation rate this summer will help restore consumer purchasing power.

TITO

Tito's long fight ends

BELGRADE (WP) — President Josip Broz Tito, creator of modern Yugoslavia and the first Communist leader to break away from the Soviet bloc, died Sunday in a Ljubljana hospital after a grave illness that lasted more than four months. He would have been 88 on May 25.

The collective state presidency, designated by Tito to succeed him and composed of representatives of Yugoslavia's many different nationalities, went into emergency session.

AHOP owners losing homes

TORONTO (CP) — In the first three months of this year, the federal government repossessed 1,195 homes purchased under its Assisted Home Ownership Plan.

The figure represents nearly one-quarter of the total number of units forfeited by their owners since the program — intended to give low and moderate income families the opportunity of owning a home — was introduced five years ago.

The program "has made an awful lot of people very unhappy and it's broken up a lot of families," said Marlene Grant, a single mother who has so far managed to keep her home when almost half her plan-sponsored neighbors have gone under.

Federal housing officials blame unexpected problems related to the market, maintenance fees and taxes for the relatively new condominium housing involved in the plan.

However, critics say government bungling is responsible for a situation in which an increasing number of owners, unable to keep up with interest rates, are filing quit claims.

The plan was designed to help buyers with incomes ranging from about $11,000 to $20,000 a year if shelter costs took more than 25 per cent of their incomes.

Government loans were offered to reduce the mortgage interest rate over five years with the loan being reduced each year.

Raymond Boivin, vice-president of the Canada Mortgage and Housing Corp., said most of the problems centre on spiralling inflation and high interest rates.

However, James Crozier, commissioner of social service in Peel Region, west of Toronto, said the plan was "poorly administered," noting tighter screening of applicants would have avoided much of the trouble.

The president of the Canadian Real Estate Association, Eric Charman of Victoria, said the government inflicted hardship on some families by luring them into deals they could not afford.

UVic students forced to quit or live in tents?

By BRENDA DALGLISH

Students may be forced to live in motels or even tents this fall because of an increased housing shortage expected province-wide.

Delegates to a Victoria meeting of the B.C. Students' Federation were told on the weekend the situation will force some students to leave school and forego their education.

In some centres students are already living in motels and that trend is expected to grow.

"It's an emergency situation. Not only is the cost of accommodation rising rapidly, there is very little available at all," said Terry Johnson, a UVic delegate to the meeting of representatives of B.C. post-secondary institutions.

Right now some residences on campuses have two-year waiting periods.

The situation is hardest on out-of-town students.

Delegates called on the government to approve requests now before it for about $35 million to build additional residences on the province's three university campuses — UVic, University of British Columbia and Simon Fraser.

Those requests from the universities' administrations are to take advantage of the provincial government's recent change in financing policy that makes money more readily available for student residences.

UVic has applied for $4 million to construct residences, Simon Fraser has asked for about $7 million and UBC has requested $25 million.

Delegates said if the government were to approve release of those funds immediately, construction of the residences might be finished in time to help students this year.

UVic students also intend to lobby Oak Bay council to have zoning bylaws changed so single-family homes can have suites to rent.

Johnson said he was concerned about the possiblity that this might encourage substandard accommodation to be put on the market but "anything is better than nothing".

Technical colleges and institutes across the province are in an even worse position than universities, their delegates claimed, because very few of them have any residences at all.

"The government's got to get its policies figured out. On one hand they say they need more skilled workers and then they do nothing to encourage that," said Gordon Sears of the British Columbia Institute of Technology.

Sears complained that students, particularly male students, are discriminated against when it comes to obtaining rental accomodation.

BCSF chairman Malcolm Elliott criticized the government for lack of leadership on the problem.

"Students are being expected to do the work government should be doing. We're doing housing studies and surveys, we're looking at the rentalsman act. The government has done nothing and continues to do nothing," Elliott said.

Students at many colleges and universities, including UVic, will run housing services to help students find accommodation when they return to campus this fall.

Also discussed at the meeting was the stated intention of the government to add two more government appointees to each college board in the province.

Delegates claim it's an attempt by the government to obtain control of the boards because the change will put government appointees in the majority on boards.

The other members of college boards are appointed by local school boards.

Guns salute Japan's Ohira

OTTAWA (UPC) — Japanese Prime Minister Masayoshi Ohira and Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau pledged today to increase the already close ties between their two trading nations.

The Japanese leader, who actually arrived Sunday, was officially welcomed to Canada for a three-day tour by Trudeau at a brief Parliament Hill ceremony.

Canadian and Japanese flags fluttered in a breeze as Ohira was greeted by a 19-gun salute. Representatives of Ottawa's diplomatic community watched as Ohira and Trudeau reviewed a unit of the Third Canadian Hussars.

The visit, Trudeau told the Japanese prime minister at the outdoor ceremony, will "be seen in the future as an important milestone along the road toward ever closer relations between our two countries."

"Canada and Japan are already friends but I am hoping this meeting will show that we will become better friends," Trudeau said.

Moments later, Ohira said he hoped "his visit would produce a broader and deeper relationship ... and even more diversified relationship for a better future" with Canada.

"We will co-operate together as neighbors across the Pacific," he said through a translator.

Ohira's plans for latter in the day included private talks with Trudeau and a speech to a joint session of the House of Commons and Senate — the first to Parliament by a foreign leader since former U.S. president Richard Nixon in 1973.

Fists and verbal jabs fly at Quebec rallies

MONTREAL (CP) — After fists flew briefly at a weekend referendum rally, Quebec Premier Rene Levesque and Liberal Leader Claude Ryan traded verbal jabs, each accusing the other's supporters of making mischief in the referendum campaign.

The fistfight, which resulted in a bloody nose for one federalist, occured while Ryan was touring a Gatineau, Que., shopping centre Saturday. It followed some jostling between federalists waving a large Canadian flag and yes supporters waving their placards.

Levesque suggested Sunday that federalists may be staging such confrontations with yes supporters so they can present themselves to the public as martyrs for democracy.

"One could say that it's as if they're arranging to have problems," Levesque said of the federalists.

The premier was also responding to a statement by Ryan after Saturday's skirmish in which he accused the PQ of using "commandos" to disrupt federalist campaign meetings.

Ryan called on Levesque to get his supporters to respect the rights of free speech. He told reporters he had no objection to people with contrary views espousing them.

"What I deplore is that these incidents are sparks that run the risk of leading to more serious incidents."

The premier, for his part, said it was normal to have confrontations "in any deeply felt campaign," such as the referendum, and he called on the no forces to "stop being crybabies and look at the way they're running their campaign."

Fire guides rescuers to crash

REVELSSTOKE, B.C. (CP) — A fire set by a survivor led rescuers to the site of a light plane which crashed in mountainous terrain Sunday, killing one of three passengers.

Police said a Vancouver-area man died in the wreckage of the wheel-equipped Cessna aircraft but withheld his name. Three Revelstoke men survived — pilot Larry Campanero, his cousin Charles Gordon Capanero and Herbert Speidel.

The survivors were reported in satisfactory condition in hospital.

RCMP said the men were taking photographs on a recreational flight out of Revelstoke when the plane flew into a box canyon and failed to clear the end of it as the aircraft turned.

The plane crashed into a creek bed above the snow line about 80 kilometres northeast of here and rescuers had to hike into the area to bring the injured to a helicopter.

Cubans swamp U.S. tent city

FORT WALTON BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Round-the-clock flights have filled a hastily pitched tent city here to overflowing as the arduous journey to a new home nears an end for many of the Cuban boatlift refugees.

Tears of joy mingled with hymns of praise at an outdoor Mass on Sunday as exiles from the Communist country worshipped freely for the first time in 21 years.

Several hundred refugees crowded into a gymnasium at nearby Eglin Air Force Base late Sunday while crew members erected more tents at a 42-acre processing centre for Cubans without relatives in South Florida.

Chartered flights had shuttled nearly 1,200 refugees from Key West, Fla., by midnight Monday night with another 600 expected.

Extension of deadline Date for Written Submissions

In a Public Announcement dated 31 December, 1979, entitled CANADIAN CONTENT REVIEW, the Commission called upon members of the public and the broadcasting industry to express their views about the television broadcasting system as it related to Canadian programming. The Commission required that written submissions be filed with the Secretary General of the Commission on or before 15 May, 1980.

In a Public Announcement dated 1 April, 1980 the Commission extended the deadline date for written submissions to 2 June, 1980. Following the publication of that announcement, the Commission received requests for a further extension of the deadline. In response to such requests, the Commission hereby extends the deadline date for written submissions from 2 June, 1980 to 15 July, 1980.

School trustees to get a raise

VANCOUVER (CP) — The stipend paid B.C.'s school trustees is inadequate and will be raised, Education Minister Brian Smith told the B.C. School Trustees Association convention Saturday.

Smith said cabinet hasn't decided how much school trustees should be paid but suggested the trustees should recommend a new stipend and expense system.

Delegates to the association's annual convention also passed a motion calling for legislation that would require developers to designate a school site when they propose a subdivision.

Public tours B.C.Pen.

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) — It was open house at the British Columbia Penitentiary Sunday as an estimated 6,000 people passed through its gates.

Officials at the 102-year-old maximum-security prison issued tickets to visitors which had to be surrendered when they left so no one would get lost.

Some of the guards, who were acting as tour guides, reported seeing a number of ex-prisoners coming back for a last look.

The public will have access to the prison until Friday before it is closed the following Saturday.

Prison security sought

AGASSIZ, B.C. (CP) — About 400 persons attended a rally in this Fraser Valley community Sunday to protest what they call lax security at the federal medium-security Mountain prison near here.

The rally was organized by elementary school principal Barry Simmons after area postmaster Malcolm Herbert Nelson, 43, was found stabbed to death on Monday. Escaper Kirk McIlvride, 31, has been charged with second-degree murder in the death.

Falls 15 storeys

VANCOUVER (CP) — An unidentified man was in critical condition in hospital today with head and spinal injuries after falling 15 storeys from a Four Seasons Hotel room to a concrete canopy Saturday afternoon.

A motorcycle policeman and bystanders watched as the man, believed to be from Nanaimo, B.C., fell out of the window, caught himself, hung on and then fell onto the concrete canopy.

Accident claims one life

DUNCAN (CP) — RCMP have identified a man killed Sunday in a two car collision as John Nicholson, 62, of Old Cowichan Lake Road.

A police spokesman said Nicholson was the lone occupant of a vehicle which was turning left onto the highway when it was in collision with a northbound car. An inquest date will be set.

Gerald Bonham, a senior civil servant in the provincial health ministry and former Vancouver medical health officer, has been appointed chairman of the Alcohol and Drug Commission. Bonham replaces Bert Hoskin who resigned last month.

B.C. Grits eager to rebuild but . . .

HARRISON HOT SPRINGS, B.C. (CP) — Liberals came to praise and, in time perhaps, to bury provincial leader Jev Tothill as they discussed during the weekend ways to revive the party in British Columbia.

Tothill, an unpaid party leader facing a mammoth rebuilding job, won bouquets from many for the role he has played in the party during the last 14 months.

But at the end of the annual provincial convention in a meeting room ironically called Caesar's Forum, delegates had voted to hold a leadership review within a year that could pose a challenge to Tothill.

Although there was much talk of a need for funds to turn the Liberals into a political force again in B.C., the party collected only about $500 from 312 delegates.

Tothill's appeal for money Friday night was greeted icily by an audience of about 150 who gave him scattered, polite applause when he concluded his speech. He had asked party members to put their money where their votes were when they cast ballots for a leadership review.

Despite an apparent reluctance to part with cash, the delegates passed a resolution calling for the fielding of candidates for each of B.C.'s 57 provincial legislature seats in the next election. Last May 10, the party ran five candidates and collected only one-half of one per cent of the vote.

Although Tothill's fund-raising efforts drew sparse results, the Liberal leader was rewarded with pats on the back from Senator Ray Perrault, B.C.'s representative in the federal cabinet; Senator Al Graham, national Liberal party president and former B.C. party president Patrick Graham.

Tothill said he would try to retain the post after the narrow result on the leadership poll was announced Sunday. No other candidates have committed themselves and many Liberals believe the establishment of the leader's post as a full-time, salaried job is needed.

Shirley McLoughlin, acclaimed to a second term as president of the B.C. party, said she thinks there will be a lot of interest generated in the next few months and added that a convention may clear the air of rumor. No date has been set for the meeting.

She predicted that within a day or two there will be talk of potential candidates. But Mrs. McLoughlin said party members will have to raise the money to pay an estimated $75,000 for a leader's salary and expenses and for a staff employee.

"If I were a person looking at the leadership of this party I would have second thoughts right now," she said.

As of Dec. 31, the B.C. party had a debt of $12,000. And delegates were told during the weekend there is no federal party money available.

Delegates rejected motions Sunday that would have allowed the executive to set membership fees or to triple the current $5 fee.

The Liberals did not pass a resolution calling for a full-time salaried leader's post, but Tothill said the party executive could move to set up the paid position: "The main thing will be getting the money," he said.

A motion calling for a three-year delay in proposed legislation to decriminalize use of marijuana pending further research was defeated when Doreen Braverman, chairman of the policy sessions, voted against the move.

The motion inspired strong debate, one of few of about 35 resolutions that was controversial. Also approved was a motion calling for legalization of marijuana for treatment of certain diseases.

The Liberals called for a national public inquiry into nuclear energy and approved a motion calling for research into alternative energy sources, including nuclear power.

On Saturday, Senator Perrault rejected a proposal that eastern members of Parliament should try to represent Western ridings in the House of Commons, a suggestion made as Liberals struggle to end their problems with Western alienation. The party failed to elect any members from the three Western-most provinces in the Feb. 18 federal election.

Perrault said no eastern MP should purport to speak for Western ridings and that the role of opposition members in Parliament should not be usurped in any way.

No Canadians involved in baby-selling scheme

VANCOUVER (CP) — A California-based baby-selling scheme apparently did not directly involve any Canadians, an official of the British Columbia human resources ministry said Saturday.

The Palo Alto operation is said to have charged couples who wanted to adopt a child as much as $17,800 each.

The human resources ministry spokesman said the scheme, operating under the name Family, set up an office in Vancouver to give the impression it was an international non-profit organization.

But the Vancouver office was only a mail-drop and a telephone answering service. No Canadian babies were sold and the Vancouver people involved did nothing wrong and co-operated in the investigation.

A 36-year-old American, Richard Orser, was arrested in Palo Alto, Calif., earlier this week after it was learned a baby was about to be delivered from Palo Alta to a Texas couple at a prearranged location in Vancouver.

Pat Murray, deputy superintendent of child welfare in B.C., said the alleged baby pedlars were trying to lure pregnant women who didn't want abortions to Vancouver from Tunisia, Algeria, Ireland and Italy.

Ms. Murray said it was unclear how many babies may have been sold, but she said she thought there was only one child, an Indiana baby, which was offered to 60 people.

Stores not required to mark

Grocery stores in B.C. with price scanners won't be ordered to retain price tags, Consumer Affairs Minister Jim Nielsen said Friday.

"I have to defend the corporation as much as the consumer," Nielsen told a private meeting with members of the B.C. branch of the Consumers' Association of Canada.

Forcing stores to keep price tags wouldn't be fair to the corporation, he said.

Former CAC national president Ruth Lotzkar, coordinator of the association's campaign to keep price tags, said: "Item pricing is a basic right for shoppers but the minister defended the corporations and didn't seem to understand the whole problem — understand is the key word."

Studies in Canada and the U.S. have shown that price-awareness and retention erodes when consumers are deprived of individual item pricing. A recent survey of 3,500 Vancouver-area shoppers showed 96 per cent favored keeping price tags.

Earlier this year California passed legislation requiring item pricing in scanner supermarkets. Other U.S. states have similar laws.

President Tito

In a sense, President Tito authored the book on modern Yugoslavia history. He also added many chapters to the history of the world's developing nations. And because of his influence over the past 40 years, his death will not prevent him from continuing to shape pages of history texts yet unwritten.

His political career began in 1938 when Stalin appointed him head of the Yugoslav Communist Party. At the time the party's ranks numbered less than 15,000. But world events and the man's charisma and embodiment of his countrymen's fierce independent nature eventually secured his popularity and power.

When Hitler invaded Yugoslavia in the early years of World War II, Tito took to the countryside to join the resistance movement. It wasn't long before he united the various political factions to fight the Germans. He was regarded as a hero in his role of guerilla leader.

The bond Tito formed between the country's ethnic groups in the Yugoslav mountains survived the war and laid the foundation for a national unity unknown during the pre-war rule of the monarchy. Tito's popular support as a wartime partisan hero served him well in 1948 when he fell from Stalin's favor.

Tito tried to organize a federation of South Balkan countries, something Stalin saw as a threat to Soviet dominance. Attempts by Russia to crush Tito's influence failed. And from the that point until today Yugoslavia under Tito's leadership cut its own political course and developed a communistic social system separate from the Soviet Union.

Severing ties with Russia had a negative impact on the country's economy. Survival meant developing trade ties with the west and third world nations. As a result Yugoslavia gained greater economic independence than any East European Block country.

Ostracization from the Soviet Union also created a climate that saw Tito rise as the acknowleged leader of third world or non-aligned nations. Because Yugoslavia remained politically independent, he played a large role in blocking Cuban president Castro from leading third world countries into the Soviet camp.

On the domestic front over the years, Tito had his hands full preventing excessive regionalism and economic disparity between Yugoslavia's six republics and two provinces from tearing the country apart. But his political dexterity and popularity prevailed. The country remained united after the confrontations of the 1960s and early 1970s.

This inclination for unrest between regions has led to speculation that the death of the architect of Yugoslavia's unity will be followed by power struggles, civil disorder and, finally, possible intervention by the Soviet Union.

Well aware of what his death might mean to the country, Tito devised a collective leadership. Under this system, there would be one member from each republic and province and the League of Communists. Leadership of this ruling council would change every year.

In his life Tito imparted a degree of unified experience and a system of government that should offer Yugoslavia a good chance for stability and survival free from Soviet interference.

To the leaders of developing nations he has shown an alternative to siding with either of the superpowers, a course than can enhance global stability.

Matter of taste

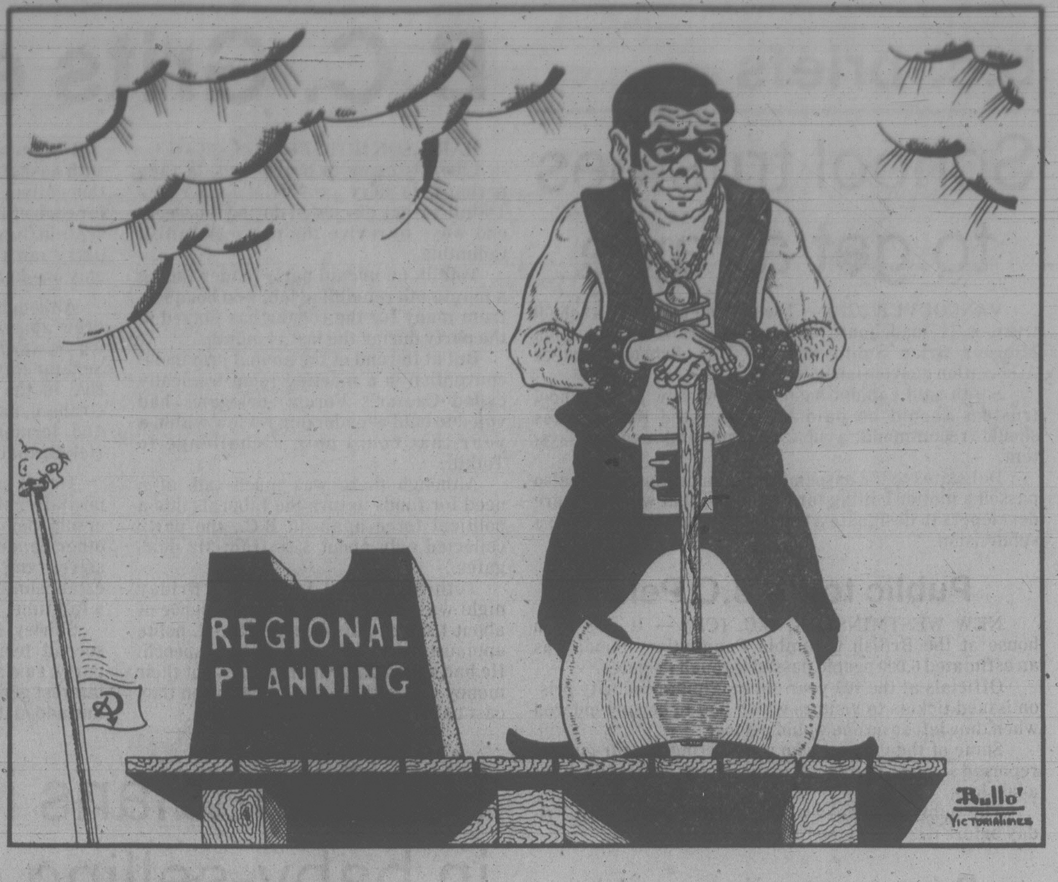
Michael Bates set out to prove that Americans had better bad taste than Canadians. The 35-year-old conceived the World's Worst Film Festival, a collection of celluloid greats including They Saved Hitler's Brain, Plan 9 From Outer Space and Terror of Tiny Town.

Bates opened the festival in his hometown of Ottawa. To his surprise and the surprise of his financial backers, Ottawa's movie goers weren't any more excited about seeing the movies the second time around than they were the first. He blamed it on a lack of a sense of humor.

Undeterred, Bates packed up his reels and headed for the Big Apple. The festival received more positive reviews from the New York media than the movies in their day ever did.

Alas, however, 195 of the 200 celebrities invited to opening night did not show up. That was a good indication of audience size for the festival's week run.

Although he lost his shirt, Bates has at least proved that bad movies don't get better, no matter on which side of the border they're screened.



BRUCE HUTCHISON

Drowning in shallow waters

There are so many rings in the human circus that your eye blurs and your mind reels if you try to watch them all. But granted that Canada's affairs seem minor beside events moving elsewhere, and granted, too, that our supreme domestic concern is focused on Quebec, the figures pouring out of Ottawa these days may be worth a second glance.

Ordinary citizens, and most economists, will not understand them. A budget of $60 billion is beyond our imagination, like the spectacle of the universe, and yet we cannot safely ignore it. What do the figures mean?

Apart from the higher taxes certainly ahead of us, they mean that our governments, always promising to cure inflation, are quietly surrendering to it. We have reached the point where a price increase of at least 10 per cent annually is regarded as inevitable, even normal. We are asked to accept it cheerfully because some other nations suffer worse damage. It is safer, apparently, to drown in shallow than in deep water. But the result is the same.

Money machines

According to the conventional wisdom, the late President Lyndon Johnson released the flood in North America by financing the Vietnam War with printed money when he should have collected honest taxes. In fact, the process began long before his time.

Ancient kings used it, without printing presses, but our contemporary disease emerged much later with the industrial revolution. Inflation was ensured, though occasionally interrupted by spasms of brutal deflation, once mankind discovered or imagined that the magic of machinery could provide plenty of everything, for everybody, that only artificial barriers stood between poverty and limitless affluence.

So, for a time, they did. And those barriers, it was thought, could be removed by wise government, by Theodore Roosevelt's trust busting, for instance, by Woodrow Wilson's New Liberalism, by Franklin Roosevelt's New Deal, by Mackenzie King's welfare state, by the doctrine of Maynard Keynes and other brave experiments.

They didn't work out exactly as planned and hoped. Mankind, in the Western nations anyhow, enjoyed a century or more of living standards unimaginable in any previous age and they kept rising until the last year or two. But then something went wrong.

One of the few men who saw the evolving dilemma more clearly than his contemporaries was the English historian, Arnold Toynbee. He grasped the truth that the planet simply did not contain sufficient stuff to satisfy the demands, or even the basic needs, of an exploding birth rate, that the notion of unbounded supply would lead to the larger political and military explosions familiar in our time, with more to come.

While the Western nations are still affluent, the prospect of scarcity in the world as a whole, a lack of essential raw resources, has now appeared and already produced hunger in the poor nations.

To be sure, that nightmare is denied by such distinguished authorities as the London Economist. It says there will be plenty for all if we manage our riches prudently and distribute them fairly. Even if this is true — a big if — we have yet to learn fair distribution and the affluent nations will resist it as long as they can. So they are doing, with consequences well known to the reader of foreign news.

The most immediate and obvious consequence, though not the most important, is a soaring price level, the destruction of all fixed savings, the repudiation of the public debt, the survival of the strong, and the misery of the helpless weak.

What, you may ask, have these matters to do with the practical business of a nation as naturally rich as Canada? Surely it can afford a budget of $60 billion and a deficit of $14 billion, almost three times the total budget only two decades ago? Yes, it can — provided that we accept inflation as a norm and a grand bust when the money machine collapses.

There is no reason, however, to believe that a balanced budget of itself would be a cure. It could be no more than the beginning of a cure, an example for private budgets, a pledge of returning national sanity.

Our governments have failed to set the example or make the pledge in anything but words. They have exhausted and debauched the sound Keynesian theory of deficits in bad times, surpluses in good, and are now driven back to the oldest and most brutal of all cures.

Poor example

They restrict the bloated money supply (a little), they raise interest rates, they urge everyone to reduce demand and consumption, they increase their own, and blame everything on external factors beyond their control.

But it is a rare politician who dares to admit publicly the simple truth — that we have entered an age when our living standard cannot keep rising, when we shall be lucky if it doesn't fall. Already, indeed, it has begun to fall marginally throughout North America, on average (if life can be truly reflected in statistics).

The budget, though a pitiably small matter in historic terms, is our own. Perhaps we had better look at it as we look at the universe on a starry night and ask its meaning. It should tell us that we can't go on much longer as we have been going, that the fault, dear Brutus, is not in our stars but in ourselves, our refusal to look beyond tomorrow.

DAN TURNER

Bogged down in metric mire

OTTAWA — Fill in the blanks:

—The true measure of a democracy is ——————— (bushels, kilopascals, nanometers)

—The Liberals don't give two ——————— about the real wishes of the people. (joules, acres, coulombs)

—The Tories would go to any ——————— to inflame the narrow-minded bigots who vote for them. (hertzes, millimetres, rods)

All answers are correct, because the worst has happened.

Canada has become mired in a metric muddle, which is expensive, confusing, and, worst of all, boring.

Citizens who used to enjoy sparring with their local grocers over the nuances of Fotheringham and Kierkegaard are forced instead to ponder whether the proprietor should weigh the beef brains in pounds or kilograms.

No end in sight

Shopkeepers, hangmen and ordinary consumers are complaining, but the truly cheated are those who left the country specifically to avoid the metric conversion debate, hoping it would be over when they returned.

They had best start making arrangements to be buried on foreign soil.

The Conservatives, apparently undeterred by their failure to score with metric conversion as an election issue, have lately taken to hammering the Liberals with it in the House of Commons.

The heart of the debate is no longer whether Canada should eventually convert to metric, but whether the Liberals aren't forcing it down people's throats.

The Conservatives are buoyed by a report produced by the metric overview board, which was submitted to former small business minister Ron Huntington just before power was formally transferred to the Liberals.

The report says the metric conversion program is unpopular, expensive and requires extensive revamping to gain public acceptability.

The board contends that metric conversion should cease to be mandatory and that the Metric Commission which now supervises it should be disbanded.

Under the original plan 5,000 retail stores in 21 Canadian cities were going to be forced to switch to metric last Jan. 1.

But while the Conservatives were in power Huntington stalled the plan, putting off the deadline until next Jan. 1, and the Conservatives are now claiming the Liberals have never given the issue a proper parliamentary airing.

Last Friday they forced Charles Lapointe, the new minister for small business, to admit "quite humbly that there has been no legislation on metrication that was passed as such."

Indeed, the Liberal approach to metric conversion throughout the '70s seemed based on the premise that the less the public was forced to think about it, the more successful it would be — the old "this won't hurt you a bit, it's for your own good and it'll be over before you know it" bit.

The Conservatives think they recognize a Liberal tradition here — high-handedness in the pursuit of efficiency.

CHARLES LAPOINTE
. . . softens Liberal stand

Bill Domm is the Conservative MP for Peterborough, one of three Canadian communities (with Sherbrooke, Que., and Kamloops, B.C.) in which metrication was introduced in retail stores on an experimental basis last year.

Although the changeover went fairly smoothly in Sherbrooke and played to mixed reviews in Kamloops it was something of a disaster in Peterborough. Many merchants laid out a lot of money reconverting to imperial measure, despite the fact they're going to have to switch over once again at the end of this year if the mandatory deadline isn't altered.

Domm maintains that the Liberal attachment to metric conversion and the Conservative wariness of it stems from a fundamental philosophical difference between the two parties:

"The Tories tend to be responsive to what they perceive to be the wishes of the majority of their constituents, while the Liberals are more in tune to the directives of their leader. It's like capital punishment."

Domm claims there would be no problem with metrication if people were allowed to chose which system of measure they wanted to use instead of being threatened with fines and closure if they don't switch to metric.

This, of course, violates the Australian model for metrication, which contends that a successful changeover depends on speed and determination.

The criticism of the Conservatives is that by rallying against metric at the last moment they are only making the situation more confusing for the public and for businessmen who were well on their way with conversion plans.

Yvonne Miles, president of the Consumers Association of Canada, says the Conservatives created "total confusion and chaos" by delaying metrication in major cities for a year. "We were very discouraged by it - there was really no problem with conversion in the three test cities, and there was certainly no wholesale rebellion.

Blind prejudice

Liberal Aideen Nicholson, parliamentary secretary to Consumer Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet, says there is "a certain amount of blind prejudice" connected to the Conservative approach to metrication. "The small-c conservative mentality doesn't like change and is suspicious of anything that looks like Europeanization and the abandoning of British traditions, and the Tories seem willing to inflame this kind of thinking.

Nevertheless she seems to be having second thoughts about whether the program should be mandatory.

"I can understand in the home someone might like to have measuring cups with both sets of measurements. I would say there is something to be said for using dual measures for awhile to help people adjust."

This, of course, runs directly counter to Metric Commission strategy, which is to suck all those miles and ounces out of every Canadian cerebrum without leaving so much as scar tissue behind.

Betty Williams

It was a bonus to the people of Victoria when Betty Williams of Ireland spoke on April 20 at the Metropolitan United Church. Mrs. Williams was the co-recipient with Mairead Corrigan of the 1976 Nobel Peace prize.

With facts, dedication and hope her story stamped upon the mind images of the Here and Now of the complex Irish problem. Her principal thrust is to bring together Catholics and Protestants in an atmosphere of cooperation and friendship.

She proved with positive examples and directness plus the charm of humor how the individual can do something about their convictions no matter how powerful the negatives may be stacked against them. Violence as a means of solutions can be made to walk backwards even if admittedly slow. After ten years of war there are now fewer bombings and killings.

Betty Williams did not bludgeon an audience with guilt about a past history one had no part in making. Her concern is the present. Neither did she impale one's emotions with endless verbal scenes of death, although this fact was not omitted. Her effectiveness was in speaking to the daily, small, concrete, positive acts of everyday people. Neighbors knocking on doors that had never been opened to them. The intent to share a cup of tea. Small beginnings in intergration of schools and new job openings.

When speaking of the effect of continual violence on the children, she told of the vacation plan in sending children into private homes in Norway. Seeing a father without a gun, knowing for the first time normal family life.

For me listening, another thought crept in. I would have liked to see every high school student there because Betty Williams was such a noble exponent of a positive belief in a future.

"Betty" as she is affectionately called, is spending her peace prize money in "being" and "doing" just as she does in Ireland. One did not question the gratitude of the audience in having this celebrity with us. The church was full, the applause sincere. We can use more of her calibre.

Thanks also go to Amnesty International who sponsor her speaking tours, United Nations Association, World Federalists of Canada, VIDEA, and Metropolitan United Church and co-sponsored by the Victoria Council of Churches.

This woman not only pushes against the clouds of dispair — she makes you want to, too. — Sylvia Cavetta, 1415 Lands End Road.

Be Kind to Animals

Greater Victoria Animals' Crusaders will be in the Mayfair Mall from Monday morning May 5 to Saturday May 10 (including late night shopping hours) together with other animal welfare organisations marking Be Kind to Animals Week.

Surplus cats and dogs suffer cruelly.

We have only voluntary help.

Animals' Crusaders is not government-funded, and all money spent on our low-cost spay/neuter programme has first to be collected. We hope that members of the public will be generous with donations to enable us to carry on this worthwhile work.

We shall be delighted to enroll new members. Our annual dues are $5 for individuals or $3 for senior citizens. $50.00 or more buys a life membership. Won't you join us? Until we represent large blocks of votes, we who are concerned about the treatment of the creatures who share the world with us will get short shrift from apathetic members of governing bodies. Come and add your voice to ours! - Joan Cole, First Vice-President, Greater Victoria Animal Crusaders.

Read the sign

This letter is in reaction to the article entitled "Beggars, drunks turning Victoria into Skid Road" in the April 30 Times.

Surely the people of the Victoria Downtown Business Association, the Victoria Restaurant Association, and the Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce do not believe that the people of Victoria can eliminate the problems of "Beggars and panhandlers" by police protection. It strikes this reader that visitors who are not as fortunate as "desireable tourists" may enjoy the climate and beauty of this fair city,

All people, not just paying customers, are welcome in Victoria as they are in any other city. Here, as else where the problems surrounding the poor will not be shut out with a gate. Rather, Victoria businessmen should observe that these "beggars and panhandlers" are a clearer sign of the times than a visiting princess.

I am too painfully aware that understanding is not all that needs to be done for the poor, however, for the downtown business people it is a first step. I urge the business community among others to properly read the signs of the times. — Kenn McLaren, 2547 Sinclair Road.

Mod modifiers

A few weeks ago, I passed the desk of my colleague Richard Lyons, who said two words: "assault rifle." Why, I wondered, was the Soviet assault rifle — the Kalashnikov AK-47 — on his mind? Was the United States Army's M-16 — widely referred to as an assault rifle — somehow inadequate?

Last week, passing his desk, I heard him mutter two other words: "battle tank." A picture of our XM-1 battle tank had been on the front page, and comparisons had been made with the Soviet battle tank. What connection did "battle tank" have with "assault rifle"?

This morning, I paused beside his desk for my two-word weekly fix, and was given a non-military usage: "parking garage."

Of course. What other kind of garage is there other than a parking garage? The word "garage" comes from the French garer, "to guard, preserve, protect," which is why we pay that whopping daily rental for parking. The "parking" in "parking garage" is as redundant as the "pie" in "pizza pie." Similarly, one may ask: What other kind of rifle is there except an assault rifle? Do we issue special, backward-pointing rifles for retreats?

And what kind of tank is there other than a battle tank? Were all previously owned tanks produced for mock skirmishes? Is the Pentagon trying to differentiate between a regular tank and a think tank?

Mod modifiers — those nouns-turned-adjectives, like "farm" eggs, "garden" salad, "decorator" colors and "designer" sportswear, that give panache but no added meaning to a noun — probably came into vogue with "attack bomber," which put all other bombers on the defensive. The Air Force dropped "attack bomber" — we now have fighter-bombers and strategic bombers — but the yen for mouth-filling modifiers spread elsewhere in the armed forces.

Because the Russians were calling Kalashnikov's invention an "assault" rifle, we started doing the same (though most riflemen continue to say "my weapon").

The origin of "battle" tank is more Orwellian. We stopped producing a "heavy" tank, carrying a 120-millimeter gun, in the '50s; our most powerful tank then became a medium tank. But what army wants to call its big gun a medium gun? By the mid-'60s, during a controversy about building a bigger tank, the "main battle tank" phrase was bandied about. Our XM-1 now qualifies as what used to be called "heavy," but in age that celebrates trimness, "heavy" is a state to be avoided: hence we call it — informally, but widely — a "battle" tank.

Another version of the origin of "battle" tank has a historical rationale, which you can believe if you like:

Battlefields, when they were very large, used to be divided into sections: the main battle area was the primary action area, and other sections were "forward of main" and "corps rear area." The biggest tanks were used in the main battle area, and came to be called, in NATO terminology, main battle tanks.

Sorry; the shells from the battle tanks do not reach across Credibility Gap. We have dispensed with sensible descriptions like "light," "medium" and "heavy" only to fill the void felt by the armed services ever since battleships disappeared.

We can name a specific weapon for anybody or anything, but in naming classifications of weapons, we are all better off with descriptions that describe. Battle tanks belong in parking garages.

Indecent Invasion

"Do you happen to know," inquires Leonard Boasberg of the editorial board of The Philadelphia Inquirer, "why politicians and editorial writers who use the word 'aggression' these days feel so compelled to clothe it with the adjective 'naked'?"

Good point; no reason exists for charges of nudity to be levelled at invaders in every instance. "This is an example of dishevelled aggression," one might say of an incursion into Cambodia, or "Soviet tanks rolled into Afghanistan today in what diplomats called a case of fairly spiffy aggression."

When words get so close together that they seem lonely by themselves (what's "opposed" without "diametrically"?) it's time to split.

Another example of rampant journalese has been submitted by Robert De Mella of New York City, whose teeth are set on edge whenever a television newscaster begins to lay his voice over films of protests with "In a scene reminiscent of the '60s . . ." De Mella observes that "the 1960s were a miserable time for me, since my mother never permitted me to travel outside my neighborhood, to midtown Manhattan, or even to Central Park, for fear that my path would cross with an anti-war demonstration that would turn into a violent clash with the police with me in the middle of a melee. May the children of future generations never have to suffer from such a travel restriction."

Amen. And in a scene reminiscent of the '80s, Gilbert Cranberg, editor of the editorial page of The Des Moines Register and Tribune, writes: " 'Analyst' has all but replaced 'observer' as the source of information and knowledge. How did it happen and why?"

The word "observer" — from the term, "Western observers" — meant, "I'm quoting myself here." Whenever a foreign editor saw a piece of copy that began "Western observers believe . . ." he would take this as a signal that the reporter was staring at a blank wall and interviewing his thumb. In time, readers caught on: the word was torpedoed and sunk by my colleague in columny, Russell Baker, who named his column "Observer" after the invisible source.

BAKER . . . 'Observer'

Analysis (from the Greek "to loosen up") had a more activist sound than mere observation. Just as psychoanalysts loosened up patients, news analysts loosened up the strictures of news coverage, freeing news recipients from the confines of fact. Anyone who begins his answer with "I think" may be fairly cited, or sourced, as an analyst. (I think, therefore I am an analyst.)

Finally, journalese has taken a flashing sign out of old radio studios and turned its message into an affirmation (what's "affirmation" without "ringing"?) of First Amendment rights, defiance of the insolence of office, and refusal to be pushed around: the locution "stand by," as in "Newsweek stands by its story," must now be the first phrase taught in journalism school.

What does it mean? Perhaps "The story, despite denials, is accurate," or "Get lost — I don't have to account to you or anybody," or "The story is well researched, and it may or may not be right, but we're sticking up for our right to print what we did and our lawyer says we don't have to retract." The locution "standing by a story" is meant to be supportive, as the analysts say, but it is gaining a quality similar to "I shall not turn my back on Alger Hiss." If what is intended is "The story is true, and the denial is a lie," a new formulation is needed — perhaps a defiant "Sez you," which is action-packed but not actionable.

"In a scene reminiscent of the '30s, Aggression — clad only in a G-string — today told analysts she would stand by her story . . . "

Creating a park the hard way

BARBARA YAFFE
The Globe and Mail

Everybody loves a park, right? especially a national park, a refuge from the hustle and bustle of humanity and urbanity where Canada's beauty spots are celebrated.

When Parks Canada moves in, neat signs go up bringing order to wilderness; roads are upgraded; hiking trails are forged; the park sprouts little outhouses.

Such was the case with Kouchibouguac National park (pronounced KOOCH-I-BOOGWAK, it's a native word for "river of the long tides"). Ottawa laid claim to this 85-square-mile territory on New Brunswick's eastern shore in the late 1960s. It was staked for its exceptional land forms and wildlife by a special group assigned to nose around the east and find some parks.

Today, Kouchibouguac is one of 28 federally administered parks. But it's a park with a difference, and loved by very few.

Tourists who enter this park do so at their own risk. Wardens who work here do so cautiously and not without a bit of fear. Even the Mounties are timid.

Kouchibouguac National park, where the law is being broken daily, is more a source of national shame than of pride. And the federal and provincial governments could not have done more to create this smelly state of affairs.

The two levels of government, back in 1969, faced the task of removing from the land 250 or so families who lived and worked there. (Parks Canada wanted to get away from the Banff model, where people live within park boundaries.) They carried out the task as though the families were building blocks.

As the former land-owners tell it — and Parks Canada officials deny nothing — government representatives boondoggled them. They came on like goons, issuing slips of paper bearing compensation offers and warning they were of the take-it-or-leave-it variety.

The owners, most of whose land eventually was expropriated by the province, weren't wheeler-dealer types who could properly assess the offers or stand up to government. They were people who lived hand to mouth in wooden shacks, who fished and trapped, who dug for clams long enough to qualify for the pogie.

Some of the government offers sounded pretty mean ($32,000 in one case for 200 acres of land with a mile of shorefront), but these people were hungry for money and so, at the time, were willing to sell their way of life.

Now they're living in nearby communities, without the land that once gave them a livelihood. They feel taken. The eastern shore of New Brunswick, after all, isn't a place where you can become a manager trainee in an expanding insurance firm.

Frustrated and bitter, many have become vandals and arsonists in the park. Death threats are flying. A few have gone so far as to shoot at innocent students camping in the park. One protester, Jackie Vautour, is squatting illegally in the middle of the park in a cabin full of axes and rifles.

It's hard to believe, but Parks Canada is keeping a stiff upper lip in the face of such chaos, keeping the park open to tourists.

As for settling the dispute, Ottawa will have to choose between upping the compensation payments, or spending plenty to resettle the expropriates and then take over their land with sunset-style delicacy — buying it up gradually as they die or choose to sell.

For all their trouble, Jackie-baby (as the RCMP refer to him) and his ilk may have performed a service. They've forced people to question whether govenment has the moral right to evict land-owners to create a park.

And they've shown Parks Canada that it's a mistake to try, through offers of money, to wrest from people a way of life and, when doing it, to use confrontation tactics. After 10 long years of nastiness in Kouchibouguac, the government has learned many lessons about creating parks. It has made many mistakes here and it's paying for every one of them.

They're working for us

THE SUN
An Editorial

Dr. Gary Goldthorpe's report on the Alert Bay situation raises a wider issue than health care for the Indian community in suggesting that the Medical Act be amended to provide for lay representation on the council of the College of Physicians and Surgeons.

The suggestion is one that the provincial government ought to consider seriously, not just in the case of doctors, as Health Minister Rafe Mair has indicated it will do in due course, but all self-governing professional groups.

Just as the public interest was not well served by the doctors' governing body at Alert Bay, so it has not been well served of late by at least two other professional councils.

One is the College of Dental Surgeons, which recently confused internal politics with professional considerations in prosecuting charges against its treasurer, Dr. Murray Bloom. The other is the Law Society, which has relentlessly sought to punish lawyers trying to reform its archaic attitude towards advertising.

All three councils may well have acted in accordance with the interests of a majority of the members of their professions. But that is not their primary purpose.

Professsonal groups have traditionally been allowed the privilege of operating monopolies in their exclusive jurisdictions on the understanding that they will police their affairs not for their own benefit but for the public benefit. The Dentistry Act, for instance, states that "it is the duty of the college to protect the public interest in matters relating to dentistry."

The situation at Alert Bay, the Bloom case, and the matter of legal advertising are signs that professional groups are losing sight of their duty to the public.

If the professionals do not earn the privilege of running their own affairs, it will have to be taken away. Placing public representatives on their governing councils would be one way of reminding them for whom they are working.

Hudson's Bay Oil stock split 4-for-1

CALGARY (CP) — Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas Co. Ltd. shareholders Tuesday approved a 4-for-1 split of the company's shares. Shareholders of record May 12 will receive three additional shares for each share held.

S. G. Olson, who is retiring as president and chief executive officer, told the annual meeting the company's plans for an active investment program in 1980 could be substantially altered.

Olson said there could be a change in projected expenditures depending on the outcome of negotiations between the federal and provincial governments on oil and natural gas pricing and revenue-sharing policies.

He said recent moves by the federal Liberal government that indicate the settlement of commercial terms could be "long and agonizing" have diminished the prospect for completing the Alsands oil-sands project in northeastern Alberta.

BUBBLING CAULDRON of molten steel dwarfs a worker (lower right) at the Nippon Kokan steel mills in Yokohama, Japan. With a sixth of its coal supply coming from western Canada, the Japanese steel industry expects a moderate production recovery. Demand for the second quarter of 1980 is expected to top 29 million tonnes for the first time in six years.

Record April sales for GM dealers

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — Despite troubles faced by the North American auto industry, General Motors dealers in Canada established a record for car sales in the month of April, GM Canada said today.

Dealers sold 45,066 cars, easing past the previous high for the month of 44,936 set last year.

Total vehicle deliveries last month were 59,918, compared with 60,237 a year ago.

Richard M. Colcomb, GM's vice-president and general sales manager, said the Canadian car market continues strong.

"While interest rates have been high, rates have declined in recent weeks, our merchandise trade set a record surplus in the first quarter and personal savings are at historical highs.

"Canada has also experienced rising employment levels and the rate of inflation has been stable since the turn of the year."

GM vehicle deliveries in the first seven months of the 1980 model year are a record 356,704, three per cent higher than the previous record of 345,831 for the period set a year ago.

Meanwhile, GM's American chairman Thomas Murphy said Sunday in Washington there will be a shortage of GM models to sell this summer and he predicted prices will increase 6 to 7 percent over the coming year.

Appearing on the CBS interview program, "Face The Nation," Murphy also said foreign-made automobiles share "too much of the market" and partially blamed that on American consumers who buy them for the sake of being "fashionable."

He endorsed President Carter's declaration that the nation has turned the corner on inflation, and said: "I agree that the recession, if there is one, will be short and mild."

But he said GM will be "product short through the summer months because of the unwillingness of dealers to order," and he blamed that on high interest rates.

At a time when dealers should be ordering for the summer months they have shown a "great reluctance" to build up their inventories, he said.

'79 rough for trust companies

TORONTO (CP) — Trust companies generally had a rough year last year because of rapidly-rising interest rates, but 1980 should be better, says the president of the Trust Companies Association of Canada.

J. L. Colhoun, also chairman and chief executive officer of National Trust Co. Ltd., said recent pressure on earnings was due mainly to the dramatic increase in interest rates since October, but "the future of trust companies is bright."

Although several companies suffered declines in earnings last year, the industry as a whole saw total assets under administration rise for the first time to more than $100 billion, an increase of 17.6 per cent from the previous year.

Colhoun said there was evidence that interest rates may be declining, but he thinks they will fall more slowly in Canada than in the United States because of Ottawa's concern about maintaining the value of the Canadian dollar.

Trust companies are hurt by rising interest rates because a lot of their money is in the form of short-term deposits and they tend to lend for long terms.

About 80 per cent of their assets are in mortgages, so they are squeezed between the higher rates they have to pay to attract money and their long-term mortgages, often at lower rates.

In addition to their deposit-taking and mortgage-lending operations, trust companies collect fees and commissions from real estate, corporate and personal trust transactions.

They also serve as register agents for Registered Retirement Savings Plans and Registered Home Ownership Savings Plans.

Colhoun says future growth may be particularly strong in the field of personal money management.

"Business conditions for the average person aren't getting any easier, with increasingly-complicated tax legislation," he said, therefore more people are likely to turn to trust companies to help them manage their money.

today's markets

Toronto

The Toronto stock market continued a fractionally lower trend in active mid-afternoon trading Monday.

Seven of the 14 groups showed declines, including golds which were off 48.61 at 2,892.42. Oil and gas issues were strongest of the seven that gained.

Volume of trading at 2 p.m. totalled 2.32 million shares compared with 2.57 million Friday. Advances led declines 180 to 162, with 203 issues unchanged.

Among industrials, Hudson's Bay Oil rose four to $122½, MICC Investments 1½ to $12½, Crestbrook 1½ to $23, Bow Valley 1⅛ to $45⅝ and Nowsco one to $74¼.

Husky Oil slipped one to $98, Magnasonic 30 cents to $2.05, Calvert-Dale 30 cents to $2.40, Amcan 35 cents to $3.65 and EPA ½ to $6.

In oils, Cyprus was up ¾ to $17⅝ and Gibraltar ½ to $11⅜. United Keno dropped 2½ to $27½, Dome 1¼ to $72½ and Campbell Red Lake ⅝ to $35⅝.

Among oils, Candel moved oup 1⅛ to $26, Ranger ½ to $28½ and Petrol ½ to $9½. Merland was off ⅞ at $26⅛ and Asamera ⅝ at $22⅛.

Trading was halted at the opening pending announcements in shares of IU International Corp., which last traded at $15⅞.

Vancouver

Prices were mixed in active trading today on the Vancouver Stock Exchange.

Of stocks traded, 107 advanced, 132 declined and 163 were unchanged.

B.C. Resources Investment Corp. led trading in the industrials, dropping .07 to $6⅜ on 42,715 shares. Renn Industries was unchanged at $1.50 on 2,200, Keg Restaurants advanced .05 to $2.50 on 1,100 and Auto Marine Elect rose ⅛ to $6. Pacific Northern Gas Preferred was steady at $17 and Gregory Industries was unchanged at $6¼.

On the resource and development board, Sunexco Energy advanced .15 to $2.25 on 60,400 shares and Laredo Petroleum rose .20 to $2.00 on 55,700. Giant Explorations dropped .02 to .57 on 33,811 and Newcoast Silver advanced .05 to $1.35 on 31,100. Seaforth Mines Warrants declined .03 to .37 and Imperial Metals gained .06 to $1.06.

Jalna Resources led traders on the curb exchange, gaining .20 to $1.55 on 508,200 shares and Eldorado Minerals dropped .10 to 41.00 on 209,600. Burlington Gold gained .02 to .70 on 104,000 and Tandem Resources was steady at .42 on 48,000. Gavex Gold Mines was unchanged at .40 and Northern Lights was unchanged at .47.

New York

Stock prices in New York rose Monday as major banks cut their prime lending rates and evidence mounted that the recession may be a deep one.

With the economy apparently declining rapidly, the Federal Reserve Board appears to have eased its tight-money policies. Six-month treasury bills fell to 9.06 per cent in money-market trading and some banks led by Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. of New York cut their prime lending rates to 17½ per cent.

A survey of purchasing managers concluded the economy "plummeted" in April, confirming the labor department report that unemployment in the United States rose to seven per cent in the month.

With interest rates declining, bank stocks were strong. Citicorp was up 1¾ to $21 and Great Western Financial rose ⅞ to $18¾.

Auto stocks were weak as major automakers reported sales down substantially from last year. General Motors fell ⅜ to $44¾, Ford dropped 1⅛ to $22⅛ and Chrysler slipped ⅛ to $6⅞.

Canadians making small start on increasing exports to Japan

By GARRY FAIRBAIRN

TOKYO (CP) — Canadian businessmen are finally starting to acquire the patience, sophistication and co-operative spirit necessary to penetrate the Japanese market, Tokyo businessmen say.

After frustrating years of trying to make quick sales without doing needed market research or building the network of personal contacts so vital to Japanese business, Canadian exporters are finding ways to succeed in the free world's second largest economy.

In fact, in the nation once known as "Japan Inc." because of its close co-operation between government and industry, Canada is getting good marks for co-ordinated government-business effort.

"They are now forming Canada Inc.," said Hiroya Ichikawa, Keidanren assistant director of international economic affairs.

As with other Japanese officals interviewed recently, Ichikawa stressed the importance of events like the third annual Canada-Japan businessmen's conference, which will bring 80 Canadian and 120 Japanese business leaders together in Kyoto in May.

Another success story has been the Canadian Trade Centre in Tokyo's World Import Mart, an elaborate complex of offices, shops, hotel and display areas for foreign goods, where up to 300,000 visitors come in one day.

The government-run Canadian centre has produced more than $42 million in sales in 13 monthly shows.

Both Canadian and Japanese officials, however, agree that the successes to date are small when compared with the vast potential of Canada-Japan trade in manufactured goods.

Out of the $4.8 billion in Canadian shipments to Japan last year — second only to sales to the United States — just 11.8 per cent were manufactured and semi-processed goods, a category that includes goods like copper ingots.

A widespread handicap, identified by both Canadian and Japanese officals, is simply the lack of awareness of Canada's Pacific opportunities.

"As a whole, Canadian attentions still directed toward Europe and the United States," said Shinichi Kondo, senior advisor to the Mitsubishi group and a former ambassador in Ottawa.

Western Canada, Kondo said, is becoming conscious of Japan because Japan is the primary market for so much of its resources. But Eastern Canada thinks of Japan mainly in terms of imported electronics and cameras: "You have sort of a divided personality."

At Mitsui, a giant trading group second only to Mitsubishi, Naoto Ide said Canadian businessmen still try impractical approaches.

They sometimes complain, he said, that the giant trading companies won't handle their goods. But Ide, Mitsui manager of overseas planning for the Americas and Oceania, said the traders often have long-standing contracts and friendships with competing firms:

"This has to be respected, otherwise the whole structure of the capitalist system would collapse."

Canadian businesses faced with such a situation, Ide suggested, should examine carefully the medium-sized trading companies to find one with an appropriate distribution network.

And once they find such an agent, he said, the Canadian exporters should avoid the common mistake of insisting on unrealistic financing terms.

The complex Japanese distribution system, analysts agree, has been a major obstacle for many Canadian businessmen who do not take the time to learn how it works.

Although Japan's economic activity is only a third of that of the United States, Japan has more stores and almost as many wholesalers. The system of small businesses means that 46 per cent of wholesalers and 85 per cent of retailers have only one to four employees.

To service such a chaotic system, Japanese as well as foreign businesses often have to go through primary wholesalers, secondary wholesalers and even tertiary wholesalers. Many wholesalers as well as retailers cannot afford to keep large stocks of goods, or to absorb the cost of unsold products.

With such a sales structure, priority is usually given to products with proven mass demand — rare for Canadian goods in Japan — and to luxury products that can offer high profit markups to balance long periods on the shelf.

For industrial good and components, distribution channels are simpler but the consensus-style decision-making of Japanese corporations and their emphasis on personal relationships adds other complexities.

A Canadian who expects to make a sales during a visit of "only" two weeks, one Japanese businessman said, may find the process takes four or five months of frequent visits.

company reports

Investors Group

Investors Group reported a consolidated net operating income, before extraordinary items, of $13,268,000, or 92 cents per share, in the first quarter of 1980.

This compares with $10,115,000, or 68 cents per share in the first quarter of 1979, the company reported at its annual meeting.

Earnings after extraordinary items were $13,697,000, or 96 cents per share, compared with $11,205,000, or 77 cents per share, in the same period last year.

Gross revenues were $25,487,000 compared with $21,646,000.

Placer

Placer Development Ltd. reports consolidated first-quarter net earnings of $26.4 million or $2.24 a share, compared with earnings of $11.5 million or 95 cents a share, before extraordinary items, in the corresponding quarter last year.

The directors will be putting a proposal for a three-for-one stock split before the shareholders at Placer's annual meeting May 6.

N.B.Cook Corp.

N.B.Cook Corp. Ltd. of Vancouver reports net income of $4.6 million or $1.51 a share for the nine-month period ended Feb. 29, compared with $3.3 million or $1.08 a share for the same period last year.

Revenue was $26.1 million compared with $18.4 million for the corresponding period last year.

The firm has oil and gas wells and a gold mine.

Alberta Gas

Consolidated net income of Alberta Gas Trunk Line Co. Ltd. of Calgary was 44 per cent higher in the first quarter of this year compared with the same period last year, the company reports.

Unaudited net income was $29,338,000 in the quarter ending March 31, up from $20,350,000 in 1979. Basic earnings per common share were 66 cents on a total of 31.8 million shares outstanding. Per-share earnings in 1979 were 45 cents on 29.3 million shares.

Fully diluted, 1980 first-quarter earnings were 56 cents compared with 40 last year.

Consolidated operating revenues were $480.8 million for the quarter, up 240 per cent. Principal increases were in the company's petroleum division, in which revenues reflected the consolidation of Husky Oil Ltd. accounts from July 1, 1979.

Alberta Energy

Alberta Energy Co. Ltd. net earnings increased 57 per cent in the first quarter of 1980 to $9.6 million or 63 cents a share. Net earnings during the same period in 1979 were $6.1 million or 40 cents a share.

The company, in which the provincial government has a 50-per-cent interest, says that cash flow for the first three months of 1980 was $19.3 million or $1.28 a share. This was up 62 per cent over the same period last year when cash flow was $11.9 million or 78 cents a share.

The per-share earnings reflect the number of shares prior to a recent stock split.

Revenue from gas and oil was mainly responsible for the increased net earnings and cash flow, the company said in a prepared release.

Selling assets problem for Kaiser

New York Times

LOS ANGELES — The optimism that Edgar F. Kaiser Jr. had voiced about the future of the Kaiser Steel Corp. when he took over its management last summer has apparently dimmed — and with reason.

The financially troubled steelmaker met a roadblock last week in its efforts to sell off one of its major assets, when the British Columbia Resources Investment Corp. failed to exercise its option to buy Kaiser Steel's 25 percent interest in Kaiser Resources Ltd.

The sale would have brought Kaiser Steel more than $168 million.

Last November, Kaiser Steel failed in its attempt to sell other assets to Nippon Kokan K.K., Japan's second-largest steel producer. Kaiser Steel has declined to identify the assets, but analysts say they are the company's unprofitable steel operations in Fontana, Calif.

Meanwhile, Kaiser, who is chairman and chief executive of both Kaiser Steel and Kaiser Resources, has reneged on his pledge, made last year, to move his base of operations to Fontana to personally oversee the turnaround of the steel mill. In February, he changed his citizenship from American to Canadian and moved back to Vancouver, the base from which he had run Kaiser Resources, a Canadian coal-mining company that has important oil and gas interests.

The completion of either the transaction with British Columbia Resources or with Nippon Kokan would have dramatically changed the appearance of Kaiser Steel, and little would have been left of the 38-year-old company.

Analysts say that is clearly the best solution to the steelmaker's financial problems.

At the April 18 annual meeting, however, Kaiser denied that he planned to liquidate the company in the short term.

"Of course, given the board of directors' and management's stated objectives of maximizing return to stockholders, we have analyzed the possible result of liquidation," Kaiser said. "If we do adopt a plan in the future, we will do it in such a way as to maximize return to our stockholders."

"Maximize" means "sell" to many analysts who follow the company. The apparent upturn in Kaiser Steel's earnings, in fact, has reflected the company's sale of assets. Last June the company sold its 28.3 percent holding in Hammersley Holdings of Australia for $207.5 million. Since then, parcels of real estate have been sold, amounting to $10.2 million, pretax, in the first quarter, and 4.2 million shares of Kaiser Resources were sold in March for more than $157 million.

Kaiser Steel earned $48.5 million on revenues of $994.8 million in 1979, but the earnings were raised by $64.3 million from an extraordinary gain from the sale of assets. The first quarter, which showed a reduction in the loss from the company's steelmaking operations, was also helped by asset sales amounting to $74 million in pretax gains.

"There is a continuing move toward liquidation," said Ignatius Teichberg, a vice president at Grundal £ Co., a brokerage firm. Because the asset value of Kaiser Steel is greatly in excess of what the entire company itself could be sold for, he added, the company eventually will be dismantled.

What concerns some Wall Street analysts is that Kaiser Steel has sold most of its best properties, Hammersley and Kaiser Resources, but may not be able to rid itself of its steel operations, which have registered 15 consecutive losing quarters. Although Kaiser Steel had $254.1 million in cash on hand at the end of March, its debts and liabilities would wipe out much of the benefit to shareholders unless buyers can be found for the remaining assets.

Kaiser Steel has already invested more than $250 million to modernize its Fontana mill. Like other steel companies, Kaiser has been hurt by imported steel.

Inflation-adjusted reporting rapped

TORONTO (CP) — Proposals by the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants on an accounting system which takes inflation into effect has been attacked by Price Waterhouse and Co. of Toronto, one of Canada's largest accounting firms.

In a brief to the institute, the company says current-cost accounting drafts now being examined by the industry should be modified.

Although admitting a solution must be found to inflation's distortion of financial reports, it said other options must first be examined.

Among other observations, the firm said:

—The institute's proposals do not provide users of financial statements with a way of assessing the future prospects of a company, comparing companies within the same industry, or accounting periods in the same company.

—The proposals do not take into account specific accounting needs of multinational corporations.

Resource Services moving to Calgary

MONTREAL (CP) — Resource Service Group Ltd. plans to move its executive offices to Calgary from suburban Lachine later this year, a company spokesman said.

Resource, with profits of $103.6 million last year through services to resource-based firms, held a private dinner and dance Monday night for shareholders and directors to send off chairman and president John Lecky and other executives moving to Calgary.

The move was necessary because RSG has heavy business interests in Alberta, the spokesman said. No decision has been reached how many members of senior management will go, the spokesman said, adding that RSG will maintain a strong presence in Quebec through its wholly-owned subsidiary Mussens Equipment Ltd.

VSE back to 2 p.m. closing

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver Stock Exchange says it will return to a 2 p.m. PDT close of trading, effective today.

The exchange has been closing an hour early since January to help staff and brokerage personnel keep up with paperwork on heavy trading days.

However, trading during April was slower than in the previous months.

Turnover was 66.9 million shares, compared with 140.5 million in March. The value of transactions in April was $139.6 million.

In April, 1979 the VSE traded 56.4 million shares valued at $65.3 million.

During the first four months of 1980, 596.7 million shares valued at $1,326.6 million were traded. In the corresponding period last year, 231.2 million shares worth $271.3 million changed hands.

Oak Bay taxes going up

Oak Bay's mill rate is dropping again this year — the third year in a row — but taxes are going up because of higher property assessments and a large increase in the Greater Victoria school district's spending for 1980.

Spending by the municipality is up 11.48 per cent this year, but the share over which Oak Bay council has control — the general purposes levy — is up only 7.32 per cent.

In dollar figures, it's $4,699,513, an increase of more than $320,000. The general purposes mill rate will be 57.76 mills, down 2.84 mills.

The school board's 17 per cent increase in spending and a mill rate hike of 1.89 mills causes taxes to rise faster than inflation this year.

"If the voting public of Greater Victoria takes such little interest in the philosophy of the people they elect, then they're going to get an increase of over 17 per cent," said Ald. Peter Bunn.

For the average homeowner with a $75,000 house in Oak Bay, gross taxes will jump $183 to $1,289 this year. He will subtract the homeowner grant of $380 to get his net taxes payable — $909.

Those 65 and over will face an increase of $133 on a home of the same value because of the homeowner grant increase this year. For over-65 homeowners the grant is $580, meaning net taxes are $709 on a $75,000 home in Oak Bay.

Mayor Doug Watt said that the general purposes tax levy was increased by less than the general inflation rate, now running between nine and 10 per cent annually.

Oak Bay controls only half of the tax money it spends because it acts as collector for several other agencies such as the school board, hospital board and regional district.

In the next few years, Mayor Watt said, regional hospital costs — including the new Helmcken Road hospital — will add substantially to Oak Bay tax bills but the expenses should peak around 1985.

Cruise ship season

The Calypso, the first Alaska cruise ship to stop in Victoria this season, will arrive at Ogden Point on June 5.

There will be 24 ship stops here by fall, up one from last year.

The vessels stop for a few hours on their way from San Francisco to Alaska. The passengers usually are met by local tourist officials and there is dockside entertainment.

The Pacific Princess, which is used in the TV series, The Love Boat, will make 10 calls during the season while The Fairsea will be here seven times, the Royal Viking Star six, and the Calypso just once.

The cruise ship Sun Princess will not make any tourist stops here but is expected to undergo annual drydocking at Esquimalt after Sept. 23 when the cruising season ends.

The southerly portion of Lot B, Section 11, Plan 25420 measuring 24.033 metres by 33.516 metres (78.85 feet by 109.96 feet), which portion is south of the south of a line parallel to and 46.884 metres (153.82 feet) south of the southerly boundary of Wychbury Avenue.

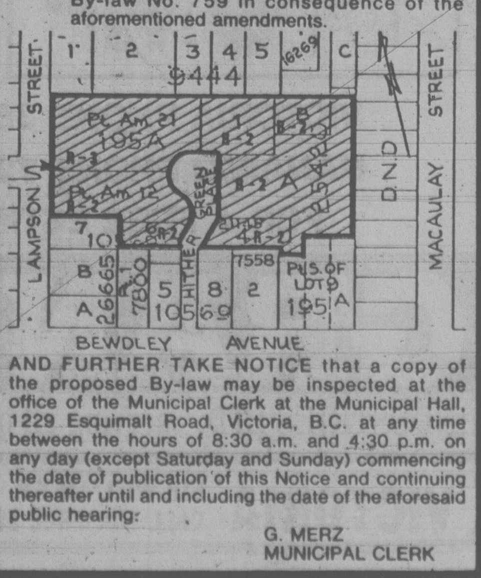
(iii) by changing the zoning classification of the following described lands from "R-3 Zone, Multiple Dwelling District" to "RTF Zones Restricted Tourist Facility Districts, namely:
Part Amended Lot 21, Block 19, Section 11, Plan 195A.

(iv) by amending Part 1A of the said By-law No. 759 to provide for definitions of certain words and expressions appearing in the aforesaid Part 9D;

(v) by amending Part 12 of the said By-law No. 759 to make provision for off-street parking of motor vehicles for and in connection with restricted tourist facility uses;

(vi) by enacting as Part 13A of the said By-law No. 759 regulations to designate the lands described in paragraphs (ii) and (iii) above as a Development Permit Area and to provide for the issue of development permits and to prescribe the form and procedure for the issue of development permits;

(vii) by amending certain other provisions of By-law No. 759 in consequence of the aforementioned amendments.



AND FURTHER TAKE NOTICE that a copy of the proposed By-law may be inspected at the office of the Municipal Clerk at the Municipal Hall, 1229 Esquimalt Road, Victoria, B.C. at any time between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. on any day (except Saturday and Sunday) commencing the date of publication of this Notice and continuing thereafter until and including the date of the aforesaid public hearing.

Douglas Morton named UVic dean of fine arts

Douglas Morton will become dean of fine arts at the University of Victoria July 1.

Morton, currently professor of visual arts at York University's faculty of fine arts in Toronto, replaces Dr. Peter Smith who has served as dean of fine arts for eight years.

The new dean began his teaching career in Winnipeg in 1946. He received his formal education at the Winnipeg School of Art, the University of Southern California, the Academie Julian, L'Ecole des Beaux Arts in Paris and the Camberwell School of Art in London.

Morton has taught at the University of Alberta, the University of Saskatchewan and the Banff School of Fine Arts.

He has held numerous positions at York, including dean of the faculty of fine arts, director of the master's programs in fine arts, and in 1978-1979 he was acting head of the department of visual arts in the fine arts faculty and vice-chairman of senate of York University. He was appointed chairman of York's senate for 1980-1981.

In 1977, his last sabbatical year, Morton served as acting director of the visual arts program at the Banff School of Fine Arts.

He is a member of the Royal Canadian Academy of Arts and has served on the Canada Council.

His paintings are represented in more than a dozen public collections, including the National Gallery of Canada, and many private collections.

Since 1963 he has held 10 one-man shows and has been represented in more than 20 juried and invitational exhibitions since 1960.

Pregnant seals recover

SEATTLE (AP) — Two pregnant seals, found ill last month on an Oregon beach, have recovered enough to be moved to Nanaimo where scientists hope to monitor the rare births.

"We hope that after giving birth in June at the Pacific Biological Station at Nanaimo, they will return with their pups and become part of a Pribilof Island exhibit now being planned here," John Nightingale, Seattle Aquarium curator, said.

"They are too valuable to release because they offer researchers a rare chance to study the birth and the way in which pups grow.

"They are going to holding pools in Nanaimo because researchers there have had experience with one such birth in captivity."

The fur seals were migrating from California waters to have their pups on the Pribilof Islands in Alaska's Bering Sea when the animals became ill.

Three were found on the beach suffering from a mysterious toxic poisoning. One died. The other two recovered after receiving hormones and intravenous fluids. Biologists have not been able to pin down the cause of the illness.

Weekend drowning inquiry to be held

An inquiry will be held into the drowning of a 56-year-old man in Prospect Lake Saturday, but unless something new turns up in the case a full-scale inquest is considered unlikely.

Arthur Lars Noad, 4991 Prospect Lake Road, was out alone fishing when his boat apparently overturned in the calm lake.

The boat's anchor was out so police speculated that Noad might have been either setting it or hauling it in, but there were no witnesses to the mishap to confirm the theory.

Neighbors called police at 6:17 p.m. to report the capsized boat. An oar, a lifejacket and an ordinary jacket were found near the boat in the 28-foot-deep water about 100 feet off shore.

The three-member police diving team recovered Noad's body a little more than an hour after the first report.

Police said Noad, semi-retired, moved with his wife to Vancouver Island about a year ago, and a neighbor said the couple came from Rocky Mountain House, Alta.

Only six days before Noad's death, Leslie Cumpelik, 1½, of 5065 Prospect Lake, was found unconscious in the water at the lake's edge by his father.

Ferdinand Cumpelik, 34, gave mouth-to-mouth resuscitation to his son for four minutes before he regained consciousness.

Police credited the father's action with saving the boy's life.

CORPORATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF ESQUIMALT

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

BY-LAW 1640

"ZONING BY-LAW, 1957, AMENDMENT BY-LAW (No. 126), 1980"

TAKE NOTICE that a Public Hearing will be held on WEDNESDAY, 14th MAY, 1980 AT 7:00 P.M. in the ESQUIMALT RECREATION CENTRE at 527 FRASER STREET in the Township of Esquimalt in the Province of British Columbia, on By-law No. 1640 being a proposed by-law of the Corporation of the Township of Esquimalt, cited as the "Zoning By-law, 1957, Amendment By-law (No. 126), 1980."

And further TAKE NOTICE that the proposed By-law is as follows:

THE MUNICIPAL COUNCIL OF THE CORPORATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF ESQUIMALT, in open meeting assembled, enacts as follows:

1. "By-law 759, cited as the "Zoning By-law, 1957" is amended by the addition under Part 13 "Restricted Use of Industrial Parcels of Land" the following as Section 13.3:

"13.3 No person being the owner or occupier of any lot or parcel of land situate in any of the Zones designated in the By-law as "R-1 (Single Family Dwelling District)", "R-2 (Two Family Dwelling District)" "R-3TL (Low Density Residential Townhouse Districts)", "R-3T (Residential Townhouse Districts)", and "R-3 (Multiple Dwelling Districts)" shall cause, suffer or permit the same to be used for the parking, keeping or storage of more than one motor-vehilce otherwise than in a garage, carport or similar structure unless there is attached or affixed to each such motor-vehicle at all times while it is so parked, kept or stored, either:

(a) motor-vehicle number plates for the current licence year issued in respect of that motor vehicle, in the manner prescribed in the "Motor Vehicle Act Regulations," or

(b) a valid Approval Certificate issued in respect of that motor-vehicle pursuant to the Inspection Regulations of the "Motor Vehicle Act."

2. By-law 759 is further amended by striking out the words and figures "Parts 5A, 5B, 5C, 6 and 9A-1" where the same appear in Section 1A of Part 1A (Special Definitions) thereof and substituting therefore the words and figures "Parts 5A, 5B, 5C, 6, 8, 9, 9A-1 and 9D."

3. By-law 759 is further amended by striking out the definition and the word "Roomer" where the same appears in Section 1.17, Part I "Definitions" of the said By-law and substituting therefore the following:

"1.17 Roomer shall mean a person who resides in any room or suite of rooms that is not a self-contained dwelling unit and who occupies such room or suite of rooms as a tenant to whom the same is let or rented by reference to a term of not less than two weeks."

4. By-law 759 is further amended by the addition to Part 8 the following as Section 8.3.1:

"8.3.1 Grade — The definition of "Grade" as contained in Section 1A.10 of Part 1A shall be the determining factor in establishing the height of any building in C-2 Zones."

5. By-law 759 is further amended by the deletion of Section 8.3 and the following substituted therefore:

"8.3 Height of Building — The Average Height of a building shall not exceed 30 feet, nor shall the Height of a building on any side thereof exceed 32 feet PROVIDED that where a building has a pitched roof, the height thereof may be increased by not more than six (6) feet and for the purposes of this proviso, a pitched roof shall mean a sloping roof no surface of which shall have a rise of less than one foot vertically for every four feet of horizontal run. No more than three storeys are permitted."

6. By-law 759 is further amended by the deletion of Sections 9.2.1., 9.3 and 9.3.1, and the following sections substituted therefor:

"9.2.1 Special Uses — Uses permitted in that area designated as "C-2 Zone Commercial District," in accordance with and subject to the regulations contained in or incorporated by reference into Part 8 of this By-law, which regulations shall apply thereto in the same manner and to the same extent as if such uses were in each case carried on within a Commercial District (C-2 Zones), PROVIDED however, that no lot or parcel in an M-1 Zone Industrial District and no building or structure or part thereof situate on any such lot or parcel, shall be used as or for a dwelling or place of residence or as or for a gasoline service station or garage."

"9.3 Height of Buildings and Yard Requirements — The Average Height of a building shall not exceed 36 feet nor shall the Height of a building on any side thereof exceed 38 feet except that where a building or portion of a building lying within a distance of one hundred feet from any lot or parcel of land lying within a residential zone, the Average Height thereof shall not exceed 30 feet nor shall the Height thereof exceed 32 feet. No more than three storeys are permitted."

"9.3.1 Specified Yard Requirements — No part of any building or structure shall be nearer than a distance of 25 feet to any point in the Street Boundary of the lot or parcel upon which the buildings or structure is situate."

7. This By-law may be cited as the "ZONING BY-LAW, 1957, AMENDMENT BY-LAW (No. 126), 1980"

And further TAKE NOTICE that a copy of the proposed By-law may be inspected at the office of the Municipal Clerk at the Municipal Hall, 1229 Esquimalt Road, Victoria, B.C., at any time between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. on any day (except Saturday and Sunday), commencing the date of publication of this notice and continuing thereafter until and including the date of the aforesaid Public Hearing.

Salvation Army canvass tonight

Leaving on your house light tonight could result in a little light being shed into some very dark corners of the city.

House lights left on in Greater Victoria, the Saanich Peninsula and Sidney will attract the 3,000 volunteers canvassing for the Salvation Army's annual Red Shield Appeal.

"Our appeal target for this year is $250,000," said Capt. Bill Merritt, the Sally Ann's campaign director this year.

"The door-to-door appeal is only from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. on one evening, but we receive tremendous support during that time," Merritt said. "If there is no one at home, a reply envelope is left for their donation."

The Sally Ann also solicits contributions from the professions, businesses and their employees through division chairmen. General chairman this year is Victoria lawyer George Easdon.

If your light bulb is burned out or you lose your envelope, you can always mail a donation to the campaign office at 769 Pandora.

Foreign aid program aids Canada mostly, says study a Canada-first mentality, sometimes to the detriment of the country receiving aid, says the Thai-born Mrs. Thomson.

"The obvious question is whether such a Canadian-centred system can hope to provide the thrust and orientation required to serve interests other than our own."

Field officers stationed in foreign countries are often so busy with bureaucratic red tape in their offices that they have no time to visit the work sites where Canadian money is being spent.

"To do the job well requires an on-site visit to current projects after receiving a progress report from the contractors," an unidentified officer is quoted as saying. "However, this process is time-consuming so the on-site visit is often skipped."

Mrs. Thomson says that one field officer, after being stationed in a country for six months, had never visited the project he was supervising just a few kilometres away.

The report also suggests that agency planning officers feel pressure to spend all the money allocated to them because status within the agency depends upon how much money an officer spends.

Mrs. Thomson quotes some of the officers as saying: "A good planning officer...was one who was involved in the planning of projects of great value in dollar terms."

The report is critical of the agency for concentrating its aid on food purchases instead of on agricultural improvements. From the 1967-68 fiscal year until 1977-78, it provided $1.55 billion worth of food to developing nations.

"As a means of general economic assistance, food aid can present an inherent threat to building a viable agricultural sector in developing countries," the report says.

"The farmers in the recipient countries are affected the most since the price of their products is depressed by the foreign supply....

"Guaranteed aid can also diminish the enthusiasm of local governments for setting up research facilities for, and financing, extension services."

Improving agricultural production of Third World countries, instead of providing them food, not only helps the countries more in the long-term but ensures that the poor and hungry are fed first, the report says.

Experiences in Bangladesh, where Mrs. Thomson has also lived, are cited to support her argument.

"In 1976, despite record harvests and massive inflows of food aid, 360,000 infants and young children died as a result of malnutrition.

"Of the 600,000 tons of international food aid shipped to Bangladesh that year, only 10 per cent reached the destitute orphans, widows, refugee camp residents and rural unemployed."

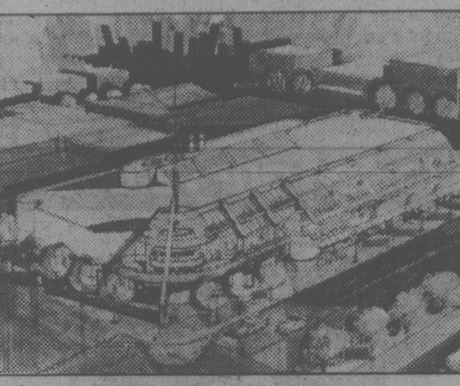
In case you're wondering



Old Capitol is giving way to the new

I'm wondering about the old Capitol Theatre at Yates and Blanshard. Recently I read that it is to be demolished. Is it too late to save her?

Afraid so. The 59-year-old theatre showed her last movie on April 27 (Academy Award winner Norma Rae was the film) and the wreckers began demolition the day after.

Jack Tomik, western regional manager of Famous Players Ltd., says by June 1 the Capitol will be razed, and construction of a six-theatre complex will begin. It follows the redevelopment of other big downtown theatres across Canada.

The new building will also be brick but it will be a block long, stretching down Blanshard from Yates to View. At street level will be retail stores. The six cinemas inside will provide a total of 2,500 seats for movie fans.

Heritage buff Tom Palfrey says the old brick building was the last in a nation-wide chain of Capitol theatres built by Famous Players. It opened Sept. 8, 1921 with a silent movie and the theatre's own orchestra accompanied each show until 1929 when sound equipment was installed.

"The Capitol theatre is in fine condition, albeit superficially run down (the urn over the entrance disappeared years ago); its accoustics are good; its interior and exterior design is worthy of restoration," Palfrey wrote in a letter to the Times.

Help for the sex offenders

Families taking part in daring new program

By DEREK SIDENIUS

A counselling program has been set up in Victoria to help the most hated and least understood of all criminals — the sex offender.

Organized by a 45-year-old ex-offender and run with the assistance of the Community Diversion Centre, the program is doing something that no one in Victoria has dared attempt before.

It is giving offenders the opportunity to discuss their problems openly among themselves in hopes of finding ways to correct their aberrant behavior.

Lona O'Gorman, director of the diversion centre, says the approach is unusual in several respects.

It's the first of its kind in the province offering on-going group counselling for sex offenders in a non-institutional setting.

The majority of the participating offenders have not been charged with any offence, although police are advised about the incidents in virtually every case. Their participation is voluntary.

But the program's most dramatic feature, she says, is it deals with the offenders' problems in light of their family situations.

Wives and even children of offenders are an integral part of the counselling process. So, too, are victims.

O'Gorman says the program aims at reducing the fear, shame, guilt and prejudice that has long been associated with such taboo crimes.

As Frank, the onetime sex-offender who conceived the program, says: "It is time people started to accept the fact sex is here. And so are sex problems. We have programs to help people with drug and alcohol problems and other kinds of abuse such as child abuse. Somehow it is more acceptable for a child to get battered than abused sexually. There is a real need to help sex offenders and not just sweep the problem under the carpet away from sight, out of mind."

Frank — his last name can't be used for obvious reasons — speaks from first-hand knowledge.

Eleven years ago he was convicted of a sex crime and served three years in an eastern prison.

On his release he embarked on a crusade to find out why he and other offenders behave as they do. He read volumes of research material and travelled throughout North America visiting more than 30 clinics in prisons and hospitals.

He didn't find the answer for his own case.

"I had anger and I misdirected it . . . I was in a marriage that I didn't want to be in . . . but why I did what I did — I don't know."

But his inquiries led him to lay counselling and, since his arrival in the Victoria area in 1973, he has been used widely as a resource person by schools, police, probation service and human resources.

Frank says the important thing to realize about sex criminals is they have a behaviorial problem. They are not inately bad.

"All one can do is say to them that as a male I don't like that behavior and get them to accept that part of it.

"But there are a lot of things involved. They must learn controls and face up to what happens if caught."

Adds O'Gorman: "You've got to look at the whole person and try to effect acceptance and reconciliation."

O'Gorman says the underlying causes for such disparate crimes as shoplifting and indecent exposure are invariably the same.

"I see two factors emerge over and over again," she says. "Either the person is under extreme stress or he has a feeling of impotence, a sense of powerlessness to do anything with his life.

"He can't cope any more. Often the act is a call for help."

Frank says far more attention has to be placed on helping victims, especially children.

"How we as society act influences the way the child perceives what was done to him. A child doesn't have guilt. But somehow our response makes him feel he's to blame. In many cases society causes more damage than the act itself."

Some studies bear him out. One completed in the U.S. showed 70 per cent of those convicted of sex crimes were also victims at one time.

"I think we have to start asking the question, what does the offender mean to the victim?"

Firefighting protest late?

A petition protesting any move to have Victoria handle firefighting in the municipality is circulating in Esquimalt.

But Ald. Colin Blair, who opposes the proposal, says the petition which asks for a referendum on the scheme is going to be too late.

Blair said a budget bylaw to be presented to council tonight already includes three mills towards the cost of the Victoria firefighting service in 1981 even though no agreement has been reached between the city and the municipality.

Blair insists the cost of having Victoria fight the municipality's fires is going to cost about $800,000 year, some $600,000 more than at present.

Firefighting is now handled by the municipal police, backed up by the Canadian Armed Forces firefighting unit at CFB Esquimalt.

Blair says having the armed forces unit as a backup costs the municipality only $6,000 a year.

"That's pretty good considering their wage bill (for the armed forces unit) is more than $1 million a year," Blair said.

"But what I really object to is the sort of clandestine methods that have been used to push this through."

He said the public hasn't been told the municipal police department recently put forward a proposal to expand its existing dual role.

It was the police union that first objected to policemen having to fight fires, but police are now suggesting they will continue to do double duty if more men are added on the firefighting end.

"That system would be even cheaper than setting up our own fire department," Blair claims.

Blair said no one has challenged Victoria Ald. Bob Wright's claim that firefighting costs each Victorian only $40 a year.

"No one's contradicted that, but the cost is more like $60 a year," he said.

Building supply pickets spread

Members of the Retail Clerks Union, Local 1518, have set up a secondary picket line at the Revelstoke Home Improvement Centres Ltd. store on Gorge Road.

The action stems from a dispute over a first contract for seven clerks at Revelstoke's Nanaimo outlet.

The Victoria store remains open for business despite the pickets which first appeared Saturday, but a union spokesman said some members of the Teamsters Union who work in the yard refused to cross the line.

Store manager Harvey Wilson refused to say today whether any employees have not reported to work as a result of the dispute. He said the store had one of its busiest Saturdays last weekend.

The clerks' union does not represent the inside employees at Revelstoke's Victoria store.

Union business representative Bob Ives said the union went on strike last week at the Nanaimo store and it remains closed. Pickets also appeared last week at the company's Port Alberni store, he said, but were not there today.

Asked how long he thinks the pickets will remain at the Victoria outlet at 449 Gorge Road East, Ives said: "We expect a long one."

The union won certification for the Nanaimo employees Oct. 1, 1979, but has been unable to reach agreement on a first contract.

Ives said a large number of issues are outstanding, including wages.

Budget cut but taxes still go up

By NORMAN GIDNEY

Victoria city council today made late cuts totalling $1.4 million from its 1980 budget resulting in a freeze on the municipal mill rate at approximately 49.7 mills.

Taxes will still go up however because of a two-mill increase in the school board mill rate and because property taxes have risen.

All the budget deletions are not yet final, but the total mill rate for property owners in the city should be approximately 105 mills, up from last year's total of 102.325.

Taxes on a home whose 1980 assessment was $75,000 will be approximately $1,140 this year, less the $380 homeowner grant (which is $580 for those over 65).

Council made the biggest cut by deciding to delete $600,000 from the storm drain reserve fund, a decision which places in jeopardy an $11 million plan drawn up several years ago to renew Victoria's storm drain system in the 1980s.

The $1.8 million Haultain Valley storm drain improvement project will go ahead as past councils have built up the reserve fund sufficiently, but the deletion means future councils must find a new method of financing the next phases of the public works project.

Finance committee chairman Ald. Frank Carson said the city can't freeze the mill rate, put several hundred thousand dollars in a reserve fund for sewer work and pay for such projects as the rebuilding of the Johnson Street bridge, revitalization of Chinatown and hiring another 10 policemen.

"These darn storm drains are ultimately going to eliminate our options in other areas," he added.

"I think we're putting goldplated services underground when leadplated services would suffice," said Ald. Ken Sinclair.

Ald. Bill McElroy was the lone dissenter to the decision by council in budget committee. He said council was making a major change in principle, and suggested that in future the city may have to borrow money for public works.

For more than a decade, Victoria has financed public works projects out of annual revenues and has been spared the recent high interest rates in the money markets that have hit other municipalities forced to borrow.

Another major cut council wants is $60,000 from the police department. Mayor Bill Tindall has called a special meeting of the police board to discuss the request.

Pilot gets all the aid he needs

A Richmond pilot and his passenger radioed for help Sunday and got it — from six different sources.

The pilot, identified only as N. Stead of the Aero Flying Academy in Richmond, landed at Victoria International Airport a half-hour after sending a distress call from his Cessna 172 about 2:30 p.m., saying he was lost in cloud over mountainous country on a flight from Vancouver to Tofino and back.

The message was picked up by a U.S. Air Force jetliner outbound over the Pacific and direction findings were given by the jet, the radar control office at Comox, the Canadian Coast Guard cutter Ready which was in the Strait of Juan de Fuca, the Canadian coast Guard cutter Racer at Ucluelet, a Tracker aircraft from CFB Comox and Victoria International Airport's control tower.

Thieves show nerve

Police are seeking nervy thieves who broke into four Oak Bay homes on the weekend as the owners slept.

A fifth break-in occurred when the owners stepped out for three or four minutes.

The two who left their house briefly were Mr. and Mrs. Ian Grassick of 1447 St. David and the take was $500.

The Ken Davidson family at 935 Foul Bay lost $250 while they slept.

Nothing was taken from the homes of John Zenko, 1001 Foul Bay, C. Eric Bennett, 1225 Monterey, or Ian Parker, 2146 Windsor.

Police clam up over shooting

Saanich police won't reveal the results of an internal police investigation into a shooting incident in late 1978 which sent a veteran officer and a notorious prison escaper to hospital with gunshot wounds.

Saanich police board chairman Mayor Mel Couvelier last week denied a request by the Times to see the report on the grounds some of the information in it had international implications.

He would not elaborate other than say the escaper, Thomas Young Lackey, 36, was an American citizen and there had been exchanges between the U.S. and Canadian state departments over allegations by the accused that officers had deliberately tried to kill him during the arrest.

Couvelier said, however, he would bring the request for the report before the next meeting of the board in two weeks.

Saanich police chief Bob Peterson said only that a full report of the incident had been made pursuant to section five of the police firearms regulations of the B.C. Police Act.

Under that section the chief constable must immediately cause an investigation to be made into any case where a police officer, in the performance of his duties, kills or injures another person.

The chief must then submit the report to the chairman of the police board who "shall review the report and make such further inquiries as he considers necessary."

Insp. Neil Campbell of the B.C. Police Commission said the chairman of the local police board has sole discretion over whether the report should be made public.

But he noted it was customary practice with most forces to release such information.

Lackey was sentenced to a total of 18 years in the penitentiary after his conviction last December of a series of crimes, including the attempted murder of Sgt. William Hillcoat of Saanich police in an early-morning gun battle Nov. 8, 1978, and the wounding of a prison guard at Matsqui while making good his escape five days earlier.

Officers described Lackey as one of the most dangerous criminals they have had to deal with.

Hillcoat was approaching the scene of a single-car crash at Cedar Hill Cross Road and McKenzie when he was hit in the abdomen and upper thigh with a shotgun blast fired by a man in the car.

Hillcoat returned four shots, striking the man at least three times in the legs.

Constable Robert Love, who arrived on the scene moments later, grabbed the suspect by the hair and was holding him when Hillcoat stumbled into them, causing Love's gun to discharge.

At his trial Lackey testified someone came up to him as he lay on the ground and fired into his left temple, shattering his eye.

A Victoria neurosurgeon, Dr. A.H. Ibrahim, testified the wound was inflicted from a handgun at a distance of less than three inches.

Defence counsel David Gibbons said in interview the evidence clearly warrants an inquiry.

But as yet there has been no complaint to the police force which would cause an inquiry board to be formed.

Deputy police chief Rick Avison said in an interview last month the matter has been dealt with to the satisfaction of the police force.

He said the case was extensively reviewed in a four-hour debriefing session held in February for all members involved. Such sessions are standard practice in every serious case, he said.

But Peterson indicated he was far from certain himself what actually happened.

He called the conclusion reached in the investigation a hypothesis, and admitted there were several others that could have been put forward, including Lackey's, which senior officers discounted for reasons the chief wouldn't divulge.

'Shoppers' carted off to jail

A curious passerby who wondered about two men wheeling two shopping carts down the street Sunday decided to call police.

The result was the arrest of two brothers who face charges of breaking into the James Bay liquor store at 230 Menzies and stealing some $1,200 worth of liquor.

It was the third break-in at the James Bay outlet in a week. The previous two cases, however, remain unsolved.

In another break-in overnight, about $5,500 was stolen by thieves who entered the Millos Restaurant at 716 Burdett sometime after 1 a.m. today.

Wishing Well wins before record crowd

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Wishing Well won the $114,600 Gamely Handicap on the turf Sunday before a Hollywood Park record crowd of 80,348.

Wishing Well, ridden by Fernando Toro and carrying 119 pounds in the 1⅛-mile race, was a length in front of Country Queen at the wire. Image of Reality was another 2¼ lengths back in third.

The time was 1:47 4-5, and Wishing Well, co-favorite with Country Queen, paid $7, $3.60 and $3.20. Country Queen, ridden by Laffit Pincay and carrying high weight of 123 pounds, returned $4 and $3. The show payoff on Image of Reality, ridden by Darrel McHargue, was $5.80.

Wishing Well was eighth in the field of 12 fillies and mares in the early going, but never far off the pace set by Image of Reality.

The lady proved a Genuine Risk

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — It was a day for the lady, and it signalled more than just another step in the liberation of the not-so-weaker feminine sex.

It hailed the end of a second Golden Age — not only in thoroughbred racing but in the whole broad realm of sports.

"The super horse binge is over," said veteran trainer LeRoy Jolley the day before he watched his sleek chestnut filly, Genuine Risk, beat 12 male rivals in the 106th Kentucky Derby.

LeRoy may have wished — on the joyous Saturday — that he had swallowed his tongue, but he found his statement backed by other horsemen and jockeys.

Don Brumfield, whose 50-1 shot Hazard Duke finished last, 21 lengths behind the winner, doesn't foresee a string of filly victories.

"It may be 65 years before another filly wins the Derby," said Brumfield. "She beat a mediocre bunch of colts."

Laffit Pincay Jr., who was aboard the runner-up Rumbo, acknowledged that he was surprised by Genuine Risk's staying power, but he still doubted the over-all calibre of the horses. "We have little speed in this race — no rabbits," he said.

Nevertheless, Genuine Risk's triumph was a shot in the arm that transformed a Derby, which was turning into predictable event, into a wildly exciting and historic one.

It had never been fashionable for girl horses to run against boy horses in big races. Only 30 had ever done it in the more than a century of the Derby's existence — the last in 1959. The only filly ever to win was Regret in 1915.

Now comes the Preakness and, after that the Belmont — the celebrated Triple Crown. Genuine Risk is a good race horse but no one seriously expects her to be another Secretariat or Seattle Slew — not with colts such as Codex, Temperance Hill and Colonel Moran joining the ranks at Baltimore.

In the 106 years, there have been only 10 Triple Crown winners. Four of them came in the 1940s (Whirlaway, Count Fleet, Assault and Citation). Then there was a 25-year gap before the matchless Secretariat emerged in 1973.

Secretariat signalled a boom of great thoroughbreds — Seattle Slew and Affirmed, both like Secretariat Triple Crown winners, then such giants as Foolish Pleasure, Bold Forbes and Spectacular Bid.

As trainer LeRoy Jolley indicated, such lush crops don't come every year — not in horse racing, not in other sports. They just happen.

As for running in the Preakness, Jolley said "we'll just wait a few days and let her recover and then make up our minds, probably about Friday." Genuine Risk was to be flown to her home base at Belmont Park in New York today.

Jaklin Klugman, third in the Derby, is going to the Preakness, but runner-up Rumbo is not.

"You get a horse like this once in a lifetime," said Jaklin Klugman's co-owner, actor Jack Klugman. "He deserves a chance.

"We're going to take him back to California and rest him there and point him for the Belmont (at 1½ miles on June 9)," said Ray Bell III, Rumbo's assistant trainer. "You don't want to run him every race.

"You want to keep a horse fresh."

THE FIRST EVER 5-DOOR HONDA CIVIC.

Honda's new 5-door Civic has separate entrances for the whole family. Billy and his teddybear use the right rear door. Julie uses the left rear door. Dad uses the left front door. Mom the right. Rover uses the back door, except when Mom and Dad are using it for groceries and things. Everyone loves the large interior, but Mom and Dad's favourite features are the super mileage and child proof locks. Of course, when Billy and Julie are old enough to drive, they'll put Mom and Dad in the back (but they'll never take a back seat to comfort). The new 5-door Civic has something for everyone, including the family pooch.

Barber clips the Stars

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — The clock and Philadelphia's Bill Barber conspired against the young and hungry Minnesota North Stars Sunday night.

Barber's four goals — including a shorthanded goal with 3:26 to play — powered the Flyers to a 5-3 National Hockey League victory over the Stars on Sunday night and gave Philadelphia a 2-1 edge in the best-of-seven Stanley Cup semifinal series.

But it was the inevitable winding down of the clock, the North Stars insisted, which prevented them from beating the two-time Stanley Cup champion Flyers.

"We really thought we were going to win this game," said Minnesota centre Bobby Smith. "We made an about face in effort and that's important, but it was a big emotional letdown when they scored that fifth goal."

The fifth goal, that was so devastating to the Stars, was routine to Barber.

"I just try to do my job at both ends of the ice," said Barber, whose third goal had given the Flyers a 4-0 lead before the North Stars stormed back.

"We were down, but we held our composure. We've been here before. We gave them life and then had to take it away."

The North Stars seemed all but dead when Barber scored at 6:07 of the second period. But then Minnesota erupted for three goals — two shorthanded and one on a power play — in a span of three minutes to delight the standing room only crowd of 15,706 at the Met Center.

With team-mate Curt Giles off for tripping, Tom Younghans brought the crowd to its feet by launching a 35-foot slapshot over the shoulder of Flyers' goalie Phil Myre at 14:39.

The goal ended a string of 12 straight goals scored by Philadelphia in the three games with Minnesota.

Less than a minute later, Tim Young broke in two-on-one with Tom McCarthy and beat Myre to make it 4-2 with 44 seconds remaining in the penalty to Giles.

"We should have declined that power play," joked Philadelphia Coach Pat Quinn.

"Actually, the first goal was just a blocked shot breakaway. There isn't much you can do about that. The second goal wasn't read properly. It was a nice two-on-one."

But Minnesota wasn't done yet. Andre Dupont was called for tripping at 16:34 and at 17:27 McCarthy tapped in a rebound. All of a sudden it was 4-3, a close hockey game.

"It shouldn't have been," said Quinn. "Certain things happened and before we knew it the house was on fire.

"We knew they would come out of the chute like that. It's tough to overcome the emotion that kind of crowd can build."

"It looked like we had things going our way," said Minnesota Coach Glen Sonmor. "The way we refused to quit should benefit us Tuesday night."

Historically the Sabres are dead

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (CP) — The question now is: Can Buffalo Sabres cut it?

History — both that of the National Hockey League and that of Buffalo's current semifinal series against New York Islanders — suggests not.

Judging by his countenance after a 7-4 defeat here Saturday night, head coach Scotty Bowman of the Sabres probably suspects as much.

"You've got to win the next game, and the first period of it is especially important," said Bowman after the Islanders grabbed a 3-0 lead in the best-of-seven series, with the fourth game here Tuesday night.

"You can't worry about anything past that next first period."

If Bowman were to worry about more than the next 20 minutes, he might despair of success.

Only twice in NHL history has a team lost the first three games of a best-of-seven series and then won four in a row. Toronto Maple Leafs did it in the 1942 final against Detroit Red Wings, and the Islanders did it in a 1975 quarter-final against Pittsburgh Penguins.

Bowman was asked whether he's ever been in the situation before, and he said he had. What happened? "We came back and won it in seven."

That, as he recalled, with with Peterborough Petes of the Ontario Hockey Association.

But either Bowman's memory is elective or he chose not to continue his reminiscing.

As coach of St. Louis Blues, Bowman was behind 3-0 in the Stanley Cup finals of 1968 and 1969 against Montreal Canadiens and 1970 against Boston Bruins. Each time the series was a sweep.

For Buffalo to force a fifth game on Sabres ice Thursday night, the team will have to overcome more recent history.

The Islanders have beaten Buffalo in 11 consecutive playoff games dating to a 1976 quarterfinal, won by New York after the Sabres took the first two games. The Islanders swept a 1977 quarterfinal and now have three victories in as many games this year.

Buffalo has not won a playoff game here in six tries, and Islanders goaltender Billy Smith has an 11-1 playoff won-lost record against the Sabres.

The once-favored Sabres have not received winning performances from such stars as Gilbert Perreault, Richard Martin and Danny Gare. Perreault's goal Saturday — Tony McKegney, Derek Smith and Lindy Ruff also scored for the losers — was his first of the series.

Gare has his right ankle wrapped in ice after every game, and Craig Ramsay and Rick Dudley have been sidelined. Ramsay is out for the season with a broken wrist, and Dudley has a sore neck.

Centre Bryan Trottier scored two goals in the third-game victory, and Mike Bossy, Wayne Merrick, Lorne Henning, Bob Bourne and Butch Goring scored a goal apiece.

Petes shade Pats in defence of cup

BRANDON (CP) — Peterborough Petes took the first step in defence of their major junior hockey title Sunday night, defeating Regina Pats 5-4 in overtime in the first game of the 1980 Memorial Cup series.

Right winger Mark Reeds scored the winner, his second of the night, at 3:52 of overtime, from centre Bill Gardner, the game's star, with one goal and three assists.

Left winger Brian Varga of the Western Hockey Legaue champion Pats, sent the game into overtime with a goal at 18:36 of the third period to tie the score 4-4.

Regina and Cornwall Royals of the Quebec Major Junior league play tonight in the second game of the round robin series.

Ontario champion Peterborough meets Cornwall Tuesday in the third game before the series switches to Regina for three more games this week.

The sudden death championship game between the top two teams will be played in Regina next Sunday afternoon.

In the first half of Sunday night's game, the Petes looked like easy winners. They took a 3-0 lead in the first period but Regina fought back and tied the score 3-3 early in the third.

Peterborough jumped back into the lead less than two minutes later, setting the stage for Varga's goal and the overtime.

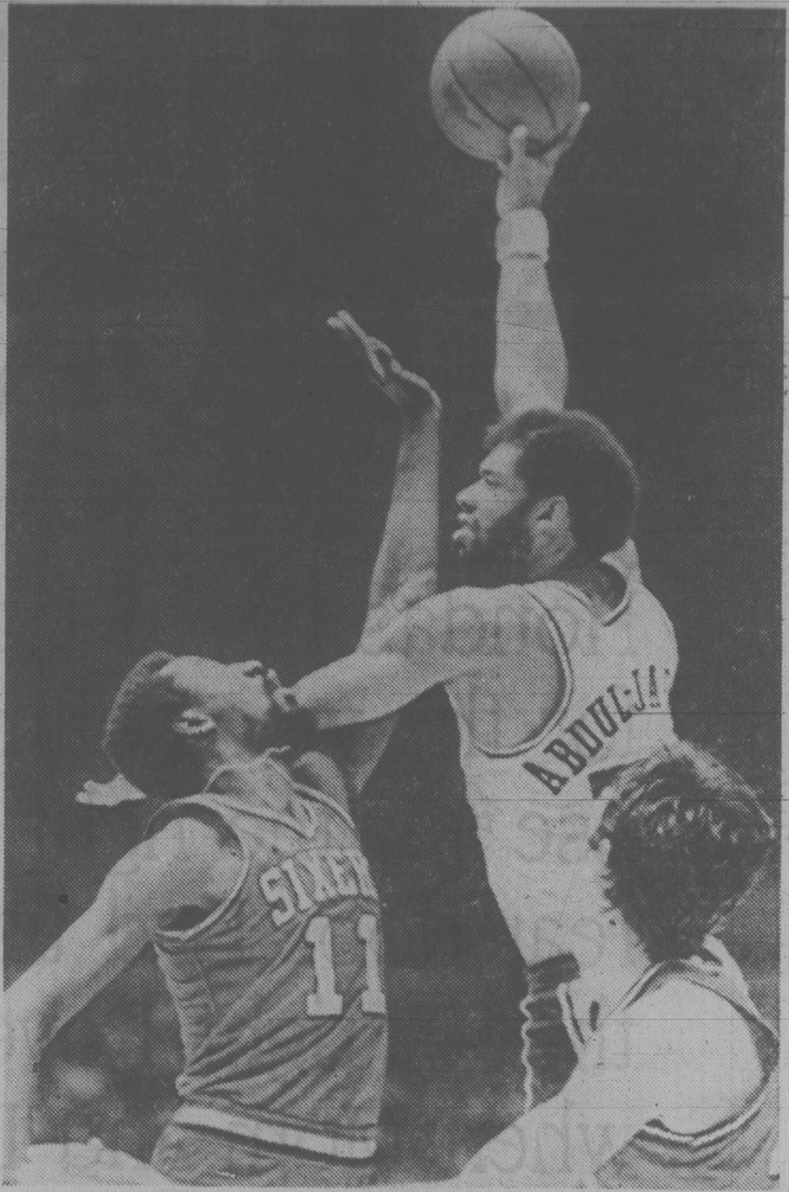
Other scorers for the Petes were Larry Floyd, Andre Hidi and Reeds. Darren Bobychk, Mike Blaisdell, Glen Sorenson, and Varga, replied for Regina.

Peterborough outshot Regina 37-25.

Regina goaltender Bart Hunter looked shaky, giving up an easy rebound on Hidi's goal, and being caught out of position several times.

Both he and Rick LaFerriere did make sparkling saves when the game opened up briefly in the second and third periods.

Peterborough took five of nine minor penalties in the game played before 4,055 fans, and scored the only power-play goal of the night.



Abdul-Jabbar goes over Caldwell Jones for two-pointer

Lakers grab lead

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles Lakers, led by Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Earvin (Magic) Johnson, got their running game going early in the third quarter and raced to a 109-102 victory over Philadelphia '76ers in the opening game of the National Basketball Association championship series Sunday.

"They have a good running team, but nobody could run with us the way we were going in that third quarter," said Johnson, the rookie guard.

"We really got our game going, built a nice little cushion, and that was it."

The Lakers, limiting Philadelphia to three baskets in the third quarter, built a 16-point lead and then held off a comeback bid by the '76ers.

Abdul-Jabbar, the Lakers' towering centre, was the dominant force in the game with 33 points, 14 rebounds, six blocked shots and five assists. He also dominated the key third quarter, controlling the boards and getting the fast break going.

Wests survive as Kicker legs fade at finish

By MAX LOW

Old legs gave out and youth triumphed in the sun Sunday as Victoria West defeated Kelowna Willow Inn Kickers 3-1 to join Victoria Athletics in the Provincial Cup soccer semi-finals.

Athletics won by the same score Saturday over NorVan Pauls and the two Victoria clubs meet here next Saturday with the winner hosting the B.C. final.

There were a lot more people at the beach than there were at Royal Athletic Park Sunday but the 200 or so who did turn up were treated to a fine display of cunning soccer and plenty of hustle by the Kelowna oldsters.

Even though Kelowna admitted to having a 43-year-old midfielder and several other players in their late 30s, they outhustled the younger Vic West squad, which seemed content to rest in the second half and bask in the sun and the glory of Steve Forsland's two first-half goals.

The first of those came after only nine minutes when John McGuire slipped a nice pass through for Forsland and the Wests made it 2-0 with only four minutes remaining in the half when McGuire's hard shot was stopped by a Kelowna fullback using his hands and Forsland slammed the ball home from the penalty spot.

The Willow Inn Kickers stormed out in the second half and in less than a minute right-winger Dave McFadden centred and Dennis Zahara scored.

Kelowna kept up the pressure and, using the offside cleverly, frustrated Vic West forwards Dan Henry, Bobby Duncan and Forsland on many occasions.

The crowd began to make known its displeasure after a long series of haphazard passes by the Wests ensured the visitors of continued possession and Victoria goalkeeper Jim de Goede was forced to make several outstanding saves to keep the score at 2-1.

Only right near the end did the older Kelowna players start to fade a little and, with four minutes left, Robbie Williams, who came on as a substitute, took a pass from Forsland right in front of the goal and rammed the ball past 'keeper Angus Brown.

In Saturday's game, Athletics took over early when John Leier scored the first of his two goals after only four minutes of play. George Hyne scored for the Victoria club at the 35-minute mark and Alex Fox replied for Pauls two minutes before the interval to make the score at half time 2-1.

Athletics continued to dominate in the second half and Leier scored again after 59 minutes to put his team in a more comfortable position.

Both of Sunday's other Provincial Cup quarter-final matches went into overtime.

John Haar scored twice for Vancouver Firefighters — once in regulation time and then again after 25 minutes of overtime — to give his team a 2-1 win over Haney Black Sheep in Haney.

There was no score in regular time in the other game but Ken Whitehead's goal after 19 minutes of overtime enabled Columbus to edge Croatia 1-0 in Vancouver.

Winner of the provincial title goes on to the Western Canada playoffs in Saskatoon Aug. 22 to 24 and the champion club there advances to the national Challenge Cup tournament Sept. 13 to 15 in Halifax.

Irish in fight; test Burrards here

Times News Services

Overtime was needed for the defending Western Lacrosse Association champion Victoria Shamrocks to edge Nanaimo Timbermen 10-9 in their league opener at Nanaimo Saturday night.

Meanwhile, at Coquitlam, junior grad Mike Reelie scored two goals and added five assists to spark Coquitlam Adanacs to a 15-9 victory over Vancouver Burrards.

Kevin Alexander was the hero of the piece for the Mann Cup champions at Nanaimo. It was his goal at 5:31 of the extra period that proved to be the winner.

A crowd of 1,170 watched the game at Frank Crane Arena.

Shamrocks play their first home game in Memorial Arena tonight against Vancouver Burrards at 8.

The Shamrocks and Timbermen were tied 3-3 at the end of the first period. Nanaimo led 6-5 at the end of the second.

Victoria led 8-7 with two seconds remaining in the game, but Charn Dhillon scored for the Timbermen to force the 10-minute overtime period.

Alexander scored three goals for Victoria, while Rick Baker, Paul Michael and Jim Lynch added two each. Tej Labh had a single.

Larry Smeltzer made 52 saves for Victoria, while Nanaimo's Mac Maude blocked 42 shots.

Hello again, Dorothy; welcome back, Wayne

By DOUG PEDEN
Times Sports Editor

It was hello again, Dorothy, and welcome back, Wayne, in fivepin competition at Town and Country Lanes Sunday.

Dorothy Krimmer, stepped into the victory circle for the third successive year and an unprecedented fifth time in the 17-year history of the Victoria Times Bowler-of-the-Year rolloffs and Wayne Hendry, returning to the rolloffs, capped a comeback in the pin-spilling pastime by grabbing the men's crown for the first time.

Patience was a title-saving virtue for both as Krimmer waited for better fortune to arrive after a frustrating 202 count in her first game and Hendry rebounded from three open frames at the start of his final game to survive charges by a pair of former rolloff champions.

In 10th position as Val Turner stepped in front with an opening-game 266, Dorothy zoomed into a three-point lead with 313 in the second game and finished with 254 for a three-game series of 769.

That was enough win a three-way race to the wire as Val wound up with 749 and Vera Gibbons closed with 308 for 737.

Away from bowling for five years after undergoing major surgery, Hendry returned to the lanes in the 1978-79 season and, "pleased to find that I was still able to be competitive," moved into a major league this season.

He was competitive enough to start Sunday's rolloff with a rush, hitting for 327 in the opening game, and following with 246 and 291 counts for an 864 series.

After his three opens at the start of the third game it was a pressure battle with Fred Hickey and King Lee down the stretch. Recovering from the open frames with three straight strikes and a spare, Wayne nailed the victory with a spare-strike 10th frame.

Hickey, missing a strike by a whisker on his first ball, was also spare-strike in the 10th for a 318 game and an 844 series, five ahead of Lee, whose southpaw tosses rattled the pins for six strikes, four spares and 328 in his final game.

For their triumphs, Hendry and Krimmer each received a Times Trophy and, as daily susbscribers to the Times, each also received a bonus prize of $150.

Winners of the tenpin rolloffs the previous Sunday at Mayfair Lanes and also collecting bonus awards were Emmy Plesch and Fred Lobbezoo.

Bowlers qualified for the four divisions of the rolloffs by winning weekly awards in the 17th annual, 26-week Times Bowler-of-the-Week contest, which is open to those rolling in league play on southern Vancouver Island lanes.

City singles champion in 1977 and in her 16th year as a supervisor and instructor in the Youth Bowling Council program, Krimmer made patience pay off after "two headpins and a pair of aces" in the first game.

"You have to hit the middle and wait for the breaks," she said. "I got some breaks and I was lucky today in being able to hit the corner pins. I only missed one corner pin."

On the same set of lanes as Turner and Gibbons, Dorothy found "the last game was pressure-packed. Val made it close all the way and Vera had a good shot at it."

After qualifying for the first two Bowler-of-the-Year rolloffs, Hendry resided in Calgary for several years before returning to Victoria. Author of two perfect 450 games before moving to Calgary, he also collected some major honors in Prairie country, including a Calgary "bowler of the year" championship and the 1970 Saskatchewan match-play crown.

In deep trouble after a poor start in Sunday's second game, he finished that one with four successive strikes.

"That kept me alive," he commented.

"Attitude is very important in this game. You have to be patient and wait for the breaks to come. In competition, I think mental attitude is 80 per cent of it."

For both Wayne and Dorothy, the ability to wait for breaks was certainly enough of it to keep them out in front at the finish.

Rolloff scores are on page 17.

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Dave Mick, who has been there before, and Stu Holroyd, a 22-year-old bidding for his first major title, are the finalists in the Vancouver Island Open match-play golf tournament.

Mick survived a "long snake's" bite on the 18th green and Holroyd made one that proved fatal to his rival as both cleared the semi-final hurdle at Victoria Golf Club on Sunday to set up next weekend's playoff at Glen Meadows for the CFAX Trophy.

Mick, 29 and the defending champion, recovered from a dramatic rally by his rival before beating Gorge Vale's Dave Donaldson on the 19th hole. Holroyd, avoiding disaster with a pair of timely recoveries, upset Royal Colwood pro Bob Hogarth by sinking a 25-foot birdie putt on the 18th.

Earlier in the day, Mick defeated Nanaimo's Sandy Harper 3 and 2; Donaldson subdued 16-year-old Jamie Harper, Sandy's brother, one up; Hogarth sidelined tour pro Bob Beauchemin 3 and 2, and Holroyd beat clubmate John Gee 2 and 1.

At the same time, Gorge clubmates Glen Barris and Rick Casson worked their way into the finals of the handicap division. The 24-year-old Casson, an eight handicapper, defeated clubmate Eric Barry 3 and 2 in one semi-final while Barris, who plays off a 10 handicap, eliminated Colwood's Wayne Douglas 2 and 1.

In the quarter-finals, Douglas won over Al Stewart of Gorge on the 19th; Barris clipped Bob Matlock of Nanaimo 4 and 3; Casson beat Cedar Hill's Ken Morgan 3 and 2, and Barry defeated Colwood's Ian Fraser 3 and 2.

Mick, hoping to become the first player ever to win the Island Open in three successive years, survived a great scare served up by Donaldson. The golfing dentist from Colwood was five up after 10 holes but Donaldson, capping his comeback by sinking a 30-foot birdie putt on 18, came back to square the match only to lose on the extra hole.

Unable to recover from a poor tee shot, Donaldson took a bogey six on the extra hole and Mick won with a "commercial" five.

Ironically, Donaldson was on the receiving end of another belated charge in the morning. He was three up with three to play against Jamie Harper, but the 16-year-old birdied 16 and 17 and just missed another long "snake" of a putt on 18.

One up on 14, Hogarth was in position to take command on the par-three 14th. He three-putted, however, and the hole was halved. Both failed to get to the corner on the dog-leg 15. Hogarth chipped past the corner but Holroyd, coming out of the woods along the 16th fairway, recovered nicely for a par to square the match.

"That was my best par of the day," said Stu, who has just completed his third year in computer science at the University of Victoria.

On 16, Hogarth again appeared to be in position to take charge. He hit the green in the regulation two while Holroyd dunked his approach into a trap. Holroyd came out of the sand and then sank an eight-footer for his par while Hogarth three-putted and went one down.

Hogarth won 17 with a par and the match seemed headed for extra holes when both hit the 18th green with their second shots. Holroyd dropped his 25-footer while Hogarth missed his birdie run from about 10 feet.

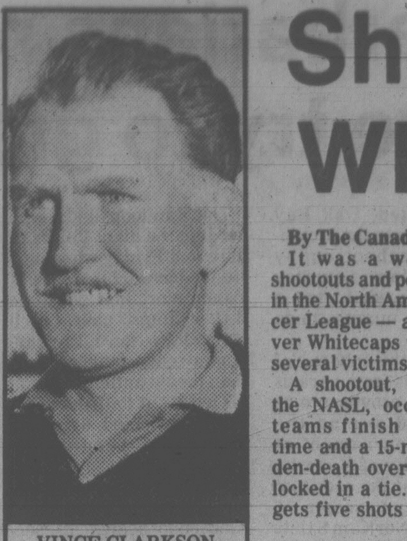
Leo Randolph stops champ

SEATTLE (AP) — Leo Randolph of Tacoma, Wash., survived a fifth-round knockdown and came back to stop Colombian Ricardo Cardona at 1:31 of the 15th round to capture the World Boxing Association junior featherweight crown Sunday.

The end came when referee Larry Rozadilla decided Cardona, 121½, who was pinned against the ropes, had taken enough punishment.



VINCE CLARKSON
. . . succumbs to cancer

Vince Clarkson dies at 53

Victoria athletic circles today mourn the death of Vince Clarkson, a member of one of the city's prominent sports families.

Clarkson, 53, died Friday from cancer.

A better-then-average performer in any sport he tackled, Vince was prominent in golf and tennis a few years ago. A member of Victoria Golf Club after a length association with Gorge Vale, he was a finalist in the 1956 Vancouver Island Open championship.

Vince is survived by his wife Ida, CHEK's popular television hostess; daughters Christine, Catherine Lavoie and Paula Smith; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A.R. Clarkson; sisters Rita Riley and Theresa Davies, and brothers Frank, Reg, Bernie, Joe, John and Paul.

Prayer services will be offered this evening at 8 in St. Patrick's Church, 2067 Carrick, and mass will be celebrated Tuesday.

Shootout woes plague Whitecaps and others

By The Canadian Press

It was a weekend of shootouts and penalty kicks in the North American Soccer League — and Vancouver Whitecaps were one of several victims.

A shootout, peculiar to the NASL, occurs if two teams finish regulation time and a 15-minute, sudden-death overtime period locked in a tie. Each team gets five shots in a one-on-one situation against the opposing goalkeeper.

The Whitecaps lost 2-1 to Chicago Sting before a crowd of 30,176 fans at Empire Stadium with their former goalkeeper Phil Parkes returning to haunt them in the shootout.

Derek Spalding, Peter Ressel and Karl-Heinz Granitza all beat Whitecaps' goalkeeper David Harvey in the shootout. Parkes, traded to Chicago after failing to reach contract terms with Vancouver during the offseason, was unbeatable on three shots in the shootout.

Sunday afternoon in Edmonton, 12,485 spectators looked on as the Drillers won their second game in three starts, 3-2 over Detroit Express, on Jan Goossens's goal on a final shootout attempt. The striker, 21, beat Detroit's Jim Brown with a right-footed shot to end the game.

Elsewhere Sunday, New York Cosmos shut out Dallas Tornado 2-0, Rochester Lancers defeated Philadelphia Fury 1-0 and Washington Diplomats downed California Surf 3-1.

Toronto Blizzard was also involved in a shootout Saturday and, like the Whitecaps, also lost.

Elsewhere Saturday, Fort Lauderdale Strikers blanked Houston Hurricane 1-0, Minnesota Kicks shaded Atlanta Chiefs 2-1, Tulsa Roughnecks shut out Los Angeles Aztecs 1-0, Memphis Rogues trimmed San Diego Sockers 1-0, Seattle Sounders blasted San Jose Earthquakes 4-0 and Tampa Bay Rowdies squeaked past Portland Timbers 1-0.

Andrie loses title

OTTAWA — Defending-champion Andrie Levey of Victoria dropped a 9-0, 9-7, 9-5 decision to Alicia McConel of Brooklyn, N.Y., in the final of the girls' under-19 age bracket as the Tilden Canadian junior squash championships wrapped up Sunday.

Levey advanced to the final by topping Pat Hogan of Sarnia 9-6, 9-4, 9-2 and Jody Burgess of Calgary 9-7, 9-7, 4-9, 9-5 on Saturday.

Another Victorian, Debbie Jackson, lost in the under-19 consolation final to McConel's sister, Patryce, 9-0, 9-5, 9-4.

Brad Desaulniers of Montreal won the boys' under-19 title by defeating Bill Turk of Winnipeg, 10-8, 10-8, 9-2.

In the boys under-16 division, Alex Doucas of Montreal defeated Maxim Weithers of Toronto, 9-3, 9-4, 4-9, 9-6. Bob Ballinger of Victoria finished fourth after losing 9-3, 10-8, 7-9, 9-4 to Weithers in the semi-finals. In the under-16 girls, Diana Edge of Ottawa defeated Shelley Harvey of Ottawa, 10-8, 3-9, 9-2, 7-9, 9-6.

For boys under 14, Gary Waite of Sarnia defeated Jeff Stanley of New Jersey, 7-9, 9-4, 9-2 and 9-2. Stanley had gained the final by defeating John Dickey of Victoria 9-1, 9-4, 9-6 in the semis. First place went to Gabriella Lanzarini of Toronto in the girls under-14 round-robin competition.

Creery eighth

VANCOUVER (CP) — An Australian university student set a new record Sunday for the Vancouver International marathon, finishing nearly four minutes ahead of his nearest competitor in the field of 1,381.

Garry Henry, 24, of Traralgon, Victoria, completed the 26 miles, 385 yards in two hours, 13 minutes and 14 seconds, to snip 2:14 from the record set last year by fellow Australian Bill Scott, who didn't enter this year.

The Australian finished 3:38 ahead of second-place Brian Maxwell, 27, of Scarborough, Ont., one of Canada's finest marathoners. Don Howieson of Scarborough finished third in 2:17:22 with Bill Britten of Thunder Bay, Ont., fourth in 2:17:53.

Mike Creery of Victoria placed eighth in 2:21:40.

Marilyn Belwood, 26, of Eugene, Ore., won the women's division in 2:45:27 and finished 83rd over-all.

Barbarians require late try to grab title

As expected, Oak Bay Barbarians won the provincial high school rugby championship on Saturday — but they needed a try in the last five minutes to do it.

Oak Bay, the only one of the 16 schools from various areas of the province to go undefeated during the three-day tournament at the University of Victoria, got a try near the end from Ernie Dickey to snap a 6-6 tie and beat NorKam Saints 10-6 before 1,000 cheering fans at Centennial Stadium.

The Kamloops kids, who became the giant-killers of the event Friday when they stunned powerful Magee of Vancouver, last season's B.C. champs, gave coach Gary Johnston's Barbarians a much tougher time than they'd anticipated.

Tied 3-3 at halftime, Oak Bay fell behind 6-3 when NorKam's scrum-half Lorne Hamer-Jackson kicked his second penalty goal of the game. Nick Aleksenko booted his second penalty goal for Oak Bay to even the score and, with five minutes remaining, the Barbarians applied pressure on their opponents' line, setting the stage for Dickey to dive over for the winning try.

Oak Bay, third last year behind Magee and Hillside of West Vancouver, won the B.C. title in 1975.

Magee defeated North Delta 4-0 Saturday in the battle for third and fourth places.

And in other games, Mountain of Langley defeated Kelowna 9-3 for fifth place; Vernon beat Semiahmoo of White Rock for seventh spot; Mt. Douglas finished ninth with a 23-6 win over Point Grey of Vancouver; Lake Cowichan was 11th after beating Burnaby South 36-3; Claremont nipped Centennial of the Fraser Valley 13-10 for 13th place and Mount Baker of Cranbrook downed Prince George to finish 15th.

Young players grab spotlight

Young players stormed off with most of the glory Saturday when the second annual Indoor Classic tennis tournament wound up at the Racquet Club of Victoria.

Sixteen-year-old Dale Willard pulled off two big upsets to capture the men's singles title and young Kelly Davies took the women's crown.

Dale, who was ranked No.2 in provincial under-16 ranks last year, defeated his coach, Racquet Club pro Russ Hartley, in the semi-finals and went on to beat experienced Marty Taylor 7-5, 7-5 in the final.

Pint-sized Kelly downed Adrian Cooper of the South Cowichan Lawn Tennis Club 6-2, 6-3 in the women's singles final.

Willard shared a second title when he partnered another junior, Jill Glowicki, to defeat juniors Gerald Yung and Adrian Cooper 6-4, 6-3 in the mixed doubles final.

Hartley and Taylor made up for their singles losses by winning the men's doubles title with a 6-3, 6-4 victory over Trevor Smyth and Don Martin. And Jean Shaw and Ann Graham took the women's doubles with a 4-6, 7-6, 6-2 decision over Andrea Wiles and Sandra Moss.

Ed Ho downed Oscar Mandap 6-3, 6-1 to win the men's "B" singles and the women's "B" event went to Janet Arnold, who defeated Debbie Weir 7-5, 6-3 in the final.

Thorburn rallies

SHEFFIELD, England (Reuter) — Cliff Thorburn of Toronto rallied with a run on four successive frames Sunday to tie Alex Higgins of Northern Ireland at 9-9 in the 35-frame final of the world professional snooker championship.

Trailing 7-3 after the first frame of the second session, Thorburn pulled up to 7-5 but slipped back to 9-5 before starting his run on breaks of 45, 32, 57 and 64.

Second-half spree keeps James Bay on rugby throne

Two promoted wingers poured on the pace in the second half Saturday as James Bay Athletic Association crushed Surrey Beavers 29-7 to win the Rounsfell Cup for the provincial first division club rugby championship for the seventh straight year.

A crowd of around 1,000 fans at UVic's Centennial Stadium watched the defending champs struggle through the first half with only a try by forward Hans de Goede and a half-time lead of just 6-4 — and then take off on a second-half scoring spree.

Left-winger Drew Denniston, moved up from James Bay's second-division team this season to replace injured Chuck Shergold, and right-winger Paul Vaeson, also promoted to take the place of Jamie Attenbrough (who broke a bone in his hand in a California tournament and when that was mended, fractured an arm in an automobile accident) each scored two tries.

Murray Allen kicked a penalty goal and two conversions and Paul Copeland booted one conversion for James Bay. Jerry Scott scored a try and Dean Corbett kicked a penalty goal for the Beavers.

Provincial-title success ended right there for the James Bay club, however, as its second-division team was nipped 22-19 by Vancouver Red Lions and, in the third-division final, James Bay went down 13-6 to Vancouver Kats.

Scorers:

SECOND DIVISION

THIRD DIVISION

KATS (13) — Rob Barnbrook try; Steve Nichols conversion, penalty goal; Neil St. Clair try. JAMES BAY (6) — Larry Hobday penalty goal; Harold Butler penalty goal.

Crown clinched

Tom Johnson's 40-yard single midway through the fourth quarter gave Victoria a 9-8 win over Juan de Fuca at Glanford Park Saturday and the club sewed up the Saanich Peewee Football League title.

Victoria had taken an 8-0 lead in the first-half when Moki Barrett threw a 30-yard touchdown pass then connected for a two-point conversion.

Juan de Fuca tied the score in the third quarter when defensive-end Chris Bird raced 50 yards for a touchdown, which Dean McMillan converted.

Gordon Head, earned its first point of the season by playing to a 6-6 tie with Saanich in Saturday's other game.

A touchdown by Trevor Timmerman had given Gordon Head the lead but Sean Staub tied it up with a 65-yard touchdown.

BOGOTA GOLF SITE

NEW YORK (Reuter) — The 1980 World Cup golf matches will be played Dec. 11-14 in Bogota, Colombia.

Debbie Scott, Randy Cox win races

BURNABY — Debbie Scott of the University of Victoria and Randy Cox of Victoria Mercuries came up with victories Saturday during the Simon Fraser University invitational track meet.

Scott won the women's 800 metres in two minutes, 7.3 seconds while Cox claimed a win in the men's 5,000 metres with a 14:33.2 clocking.

Tom Michaels of the Mercuries placed second in the 400 metres, Mike Lax of UVic was third in the 800 and Cathy D'Arcy of UVic finished third in the women's 3,000.

Budgets off to fine start, take three of four on road

Victoria Budgets won three out of four games on the road as play in the Northwest Men's Fastball League opened at the weekend.

Budgets split a doubleheader against Terminal Pub Gold in New Westminster on Sunday, defeating the home club 3-0 in the opener and then bowing by the same score in the second game.

On Saturday, in Seattle, Budgets swept a doubleheader against defending-champion Peterbilt, 7-3 in nine innings and 5-3.

Rob Guenter pitched a two-hitter, striking out nine batters and allowing only one base on balls, to help Budgets record the Sunday win.

Mike Lalonde led off the second inning for Budgets with a triple and then scored what proved to be the winning run on an infield single by Warren Campbell, who later scored the insurance tally when an outfielder bobbled a single by Carl Walker.

Lalonde and Pete Songhurst each had two hits in three trips to the plate.

Paul Scriver, a slow and deliberate pitcher who was the most valuable player in the 1979 B.C. championships, held a tired Victoria team to one single by John Green in the second game.

On Saturday, Dennis Eckart cracked a bases-loaded home run with one out in the ninth inning to help Budgets win the opener and Reg Underwood bashed a three-run round-tripper to key a four-run first inning in the second game.

Mark Smith came up with a good pitching performance in the second game, striking out eight and allowing only one walk for a three-hitter.

Dave Wilson, Guenter (4) and Govenlock; Paul Scriver and Mel Armstrong. Home runs: New Westminster — Brian Edmondson, Rod Dirks.

Two shutouts for Hrach

Pitcher Paul Hrach scored his second straight shutout Sunday as Victoria Merchants rebounded from Saturday's defeat to sweep a Pacific Coast Junior "A" Baseball League doubleheader over Vancouver Pharoahs at Topaz Park.

Hrach, who had a shutout in the team's away game the previous weekend, gave up three hits, struck out six batters and allowed two walks in leading the Merchants to an 8-0 win in the first game Sunday.

Ron Burton was the winning pitcher in the second game which saw a 16-run explosion in the fourth inning as the Merchants thrashed Pharoahs 21-3.

The game ended after the Pharoahs' fifth inning as the Pacific Coast League has an eight-run rule whereby if a team is leading by more than eight runs after five innings, it's all over.

In the fourth inning, Victoria sent 21 batters to the plate. They had nine hits, two walks and Vancouver made five errors in that inning alone. They also had a hit-batter. In all, 17 batters reached base and 16 of them scored.

Gary White and Mike Bull scored four times each while Bob Godfrey, Don Towner and Gary White each had three runs batted in.

Things were the other way at Lambrick Park on Saturday when the Pharoahs defeated the Merchants 7-2.

Randy Coutts scored three runs and earned the victory with six innings of shutout relief pitching.

Fred Galt had two hits and drove in three runs for Vancouver.

Next weekend, Merchants play in Surrey.

Vancouver 000 000—0 3 3
Victoria 010 043—8 8 0

Dave Bee 0-1, Steve Caine (5), Randy Coutts (5), Bee (6) and Drew Murphy; Paul Hrach 2-0 and Gary White.

Second game:

Vancouver 100 11— 3 7 8
Victoria 320 (16)x—21 15 1

Bob King 0-1, Bee (4), Fred Galt (4) and Murphy; Ron Burton and Mike Bull.

Saturday

Vancouver 200 200 3—7 8 0
Victoria 020 000 0—2 3 2

Mike McDiarmid, Coutts 1-0 (2) and Murphy, McDiarmid (6); Doug Bull 0-1, Dean Potter (5) and White.

Taylor breaks mark

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Angella Taylor of Toronto sliced more than a second off the stadium record Saturday in winning the 200-metre sprint in 22.9 seconds at an invitational track meet.

A sweep for Taylor

The 1980 auto racing season opened Saturday at Western Speedway — and driver Dave Taylor celebrated the occasion by making a clean sweep in the stock car division.

A crowd of 3,675 fans watched as Taylor, driving a Firebird, posted the fastest time, won the trophy dash, the second heat race and the 20-lap main event.

Taylor started 14th in the 18-car field but took over the lead from Al Spidle on the eighth lap and held the field off the rest of the way.

Gordie Stone was second in a 1970 Javelin and Don Stewart, in a 1966 Mustang, was third.

Rick Hogg edged out Dave McIntyre in a 20-lap event to take jalopy honors.

Early leader Jim Birnie spun out while trying to hold Hogg off midway through the race and Hogg went on to win.

Though there were 19 stock cars and 24 jalopies, there were only six super-stock cars on hand for the season opener and so there was no super-stock main event.

Only major incident of the meet came in the first heat race for stock cars when Bud Hobbs hit the grandstand after coming out of turn four. Hobbs wasn't injured but his car was extensively damaged.

STOCK CARS

MAIN EVENT (20 laps) — 1. Dave Taylor; 2. Gordie Stone; 3. Don Stewart; 4. Greg Gicas.

TROPHY DASH — 1. Taylor; 2. Mike French; 3. Jim Smith; 4. Peter Mortel.

JALOPIES

MAIN EVENT (20 laps) — 1. Rick Hogg; 2. Dave McIntyre; 3. Keith Lee; 4. Dean Daniels.

TROPHY DASH — 1. Keith Lee; 2. Rick Hogg; 3. Dave McIntyre; 4. Bruce Aldridge.

FIRST HEAT — 1. Jim Birnie; 2. Rob Smith; 3. Glen Evans; 4. Roger Wilson.

SECOND HEAT — 1. MacIntyre; 2. Ed Court; 3. Hogg; 4. Keith Cahill.

Viren second to Lindsay

FAR HILLS, N.J. (AP) — Herb Lindsay of Colorado overtook Finland's Lasse Viren at the 12-kilometre mark and held on to win the 15-km Midland Run on Sunday.

Lindsay finished the course in 43 minutes, 54 seconds. Viren, the winner of four Olympic gold medals, was timed in 44:00.5.

Alcos in breeze over Saanich XI

Alcos collected a victory Sunday but Albion and Cowichan had to settle for a draw Saturday during play in the Victoria and District Cricket Association.

Alcos defeated Saanich by 10 wickets at Beacon Hill Park.

Saanich batted first and reached 81 runs as Art Moody led the way with 31 and Peter Howe contributed 12.

Mark Hillis set the pace for Alco bowlers, toppling four wickets for the loss of 19 runs.

Alcos then ran up 83 for the loss of no wickets as Peter Nation scored 42, not out, and Mike Nation added 34, not out.

On Saturday, Albion took first crack and rang up 189 for three wickets with Elvin Carter scoring 65 and Michael Vaughan adding 56.

Cowichan replied with 73 for three. Howard Martin set the pace for batsmen with 28.

Lift records

BELGRADE, Jugoslavia (AP) — Janko Rusev of Bulgaria bettered his previous world weightlifting records in the lightweight category biathlon at the European weightlifting championships. The 21-year-old student snatched 326 pounds and then jerked 419 pounds for a total of 745 pounds — all world marks.

Haslam winner

Victoria driver Roy Haslam won the 25-lap main event in Saturday night auto racing in Skagit, Washington. Tom Burrows of Vancouver was second and Reg Kennedy of Surrey was third.

Cosmetic surgery's newest solution:
skin grafts for hair.

An amazingly simple surgical hair replacement procedure that is 100% tissue compatible, and is guaranteed.

Closed system. No foreign material, sutures, plastic wires, retainers or synthetic hair are embedded and left in the scalp, with risk of infection.

Plastic surgeons. Two internationally known surgeons helped to develop this advanced technique of anchoring hair to the scalp by using skin grafts that will last a lifetime.

Your own scalp. Part the hair and see your own scalp.

Undetectable. Hair that looks so natural it appears to be growing from your scalp. It's not, but you'll be the only one that knows.

More and more professional people, politicians, doctors, etc., are discovering this unique foolproof method that overcomes the disadvantages of all previous hair replacement methods, both medical and non-medical.

Stockers go one for four

VANCOUVER — Stockers North Americans of Victoria ran afoul of Alpha Sports of Vancouver in three out of four B.C. Senior Women's Softball League games at the weekend.

Stockers, however, managed to trip Vancouver Eldorado 4-1 in the opening game Sunday.

Lisa Hayton pitched the victory, yielding only five hits and two bases on balls.

Norma Wood led the offence with two hits in four trips to the plate.

Sports, formerly Doc's Blues, blanked Stockers 9-0 in the second game Sunday after edging the Victoria club 3-2 and 2-1 — the last count in nine innings — Saturday.

MONTREAL (CP) — Tom Watson, top money-winner on the Professional Golfers' Association tour so far this year, has confirmed his entry in the 1980 Canadian Open, June 19-22.

Port pitchers stingy in a day of shutouts

Shutouts were the order of the day Sunday during four games in the Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League at Central Park.

Port Alberni Athletics figured in three of the battles, blanking Royal Oak Inn 5-0 and Labatts 9-0 and losing 1-0 to Victoria Athletics.

In the other game, Tod Hackett Construction blanked Ingraham Roadway Inn, 3-0.

On Saturday, Juan de Fuca Builders split a doubleheader against Port Angeles Budweiser. Port Angeles earned a 3-2 win in the opener but Builders rebounded to take a 2-1 decision in the second game.

Ken Fox pitched a three-hitter, striking out eight batters and yielding only three bases on balls while winning a pitching duel against Bill Polz and giving Victoria Athletics the only win by a local team over Port Alberni.

Polz allowed only two hits — both off Bob Bugslag — struck out 11 batters and didn't give up any bases on balls. Bugslag hit a double and scored on an error to give Victoria its only run.

Tom Robertson and Brian Grexton supplied the hitting power for Tod Hackett. Robertson hit a single, a double and a triple in three trips to the plate and Grexton was two-for-three, including a home run in the fourth inning.

In the Heywood Men's League, Knowles Realty defeated Jack Mears Realty 7-3 and edged Capital Builders 6-5 while Victoria Athletics downed Remco Office Systems 9-5 and Ingraham Hotel nudged Strathcona Hotel 7-6 at Heywood Avenue Park.

Piechnik all-star but Slammers miss

WINNIPEG — Farwest Slammers of Victoria were edged out of the medals Sunday as the Canadian Junior Volleyball Championships ended here.

The University of Alberta defeated Citadel of Quebec City in the final to take first place in the junior men's (under-20) division and Farwest Slammers finished fourth after losing to Montreal Internationals in the bronze medal game.

Mike Piechnik of Victoria was named to the tournament's all-star team.

Scarborough Titans defeated Memorial of Newfoundland in the final to win the junior girls' (under-20) title.

The Victoria YM-YWCA girls' team, which was knocked out of championship play in preliminary round-robin competition, went on to win three games, taking the consolation title and finishing seventh over-all.

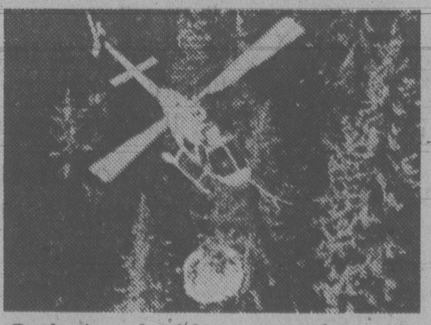
Both cross sections are from pine trees of the same age. The tree on the right shows a dramatic increase in the growth rings after it was fertilized, one example of the ways forest land can be helped to produce more wood.

Supertrees

By literally farming our forest lands—planting, thinning, feeding—silviculturists believe Canada can double its output of timber per acre.

A continuous and increasing forest yield is important to all Canadians. About $1000 per family will come into the Canadian economy through the sale of pulp and paper products to other countries in the next year alone.



Gathering healthy cones from the tallest, genetically superior trees. Good cones result in faster growth, help us compete with fast-growing trees from warmer climates.

Canadians, through their governments, own over 90% of the forests. The forest products industry pays them for the wood it harvests as well as rent for the land it leases.

These payments, added to taxes, pour some two billion dollars into government coffers each year. Part of this income—about 5¢ out of each dollar taken in—is re-invested by governments in forest renewal.

Forestry people in governments and industry believe Canada's investment in future crops should be larger. So attention is turning increasingly to silviculture (the care and feeding of trees) to produce bigger and better wood crops for the future. The Canadian Forest Congress, planned for this fall in Toronto, will help focus public attention on our opportunities for forest improvement.

Reforestation assures tree harvests for future generations. Provincial governments and industry cooperate to create forests of tomorrow.

Economists estimate the world will need twice as much pulp and paper in the next generation. Investment in good forest management seems wise, especially when you consider that our forests create one out of every ten jobs in Canada.

Meet the Competition: in South Carolina, Mrs. J.D. Royall's plantation of fast-growing pines is ready for U.S. paper mills in 15 years. Our forest can take a lifetime to mature.

Talbot resigns post

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Don Talbot, former head coach of the Canadian men's swim team and currently head coach of the Nashville Aquatic Club, says he will resign in August to work on a doctorate and go into college coaching.

New drivers take over in Grand Prix

ZOLDER, Belgium (AP) — The battle lines for the 1980 world drivers championship grew visibly clearer at the Belgian Grand Prix, and it was the new generation of racers who drew ahead.

France's Didier Pironi, 28, starting his third Formula One season, racked up his first victory Sunday in fine style, leading from the start and never looking under pressure.

He was the third driver to score his first win this season, and the only two-time winner, Australian Alan Jones, came to prominence only in the second half of last season.

The championship standings now are headed by France's Rene Arnoux, 21 points from two wins and a thrilling last-lap fourth-place finish here; Jones with 19 points; Brazil's Nelson Piquet, winner at Long Beach, Calif., with 18 points, and Pironi, 17.

Jones and his Argentine team-mate, Carlos Reutemann, finished second and third, respectively.

Arnoux fought a hard-charging battle with France's Jean-Pierre Jarier in a Tyrrell to win fourth. Arnoux's turbo-charged Renault spun out early in the race dropping him from fifth to 10th, but he powered back through the field and passed Jarier on the last lap.

Behind Jarier came Gilles Villeneuve of Berthierville, Que., picking up his first point of the season in another disappointing outing for Ferrari. World champion Jody Scheckter of South Africa never was in contention and finished eighth.

Ferrari spokesmen admitted the cars were even worse in the rain-soaked second qualifying session Saturday far off the pace of teams like Ligier, Williams and Renault.

Another former champion, Mario Andretti of Nazareth, Pa., had no better luck. He never ran higher than 12th and retired when his gear shift broke. His Lotus team-mate, Italian Elio de Angelis, crashed on the last corner, a potential seventh-place finish disintegrating to 10th.

The Belgian race was another bad day for France's Jean-Pierre Jabouille, nominal team leader for Renault who has failed to score a point this season. Jabouille burned out his clutch at the start and completed only one lap.

The next Grand Prix is at the glamor venue of the circuit, around the streets of Monaco on May 18.

At last,

London Drugs

comes to Vancouver Is.

by Claire Hurley

London Drugs, the largest Canadian owned drug chain in Canada, will open its fifteenth store in Western Canada this Wednesday. The store, at Saanich Centre, corner of Quadra and McKenzie, will immediately become the largest drug store on Vancouver Island with 15,000 square feet of retail space and an additional 6,000 square feet of storage facilities.

Stanley Glazer, president of London Drugs, commented that the store opening represents the culmination of four years' research to find a suitable location on the island. Glazer has been personally involved in the research, planning and development of this new store and is particularly excited about the opening. He believes London Drugs will offer real savings to island residents, many of whom have dealt with the chain on a mail-order basis for years. Glazer stressed that the concept of saving money is an important aspect of the marketing strategy of London Drugs.

In the prescription department, competitive pricing has always been a hallmark. In addition to prescriptions the Victoria store will feature the following familiar London drug departments: cosmetics, health and beauty aids, photographic equipment and processing, sound equipment (radio and stereo components, tapes and records), books, housewares, power tools and hardware, automotive, plumbing and electrical supplies, small appliances, toys and games, pet supplies, stationery and art supplies, confectionery, greeting cards and gift wrap.

London Drugs' reputation is built on service, prices, selection and a 15-day money refund guarantee.

While much of London Drugs' merchandise is displayed on a self-serve basis, well-trained staff are ready to provide a high level of service in the pharmacy, cosmetics and photo departments.

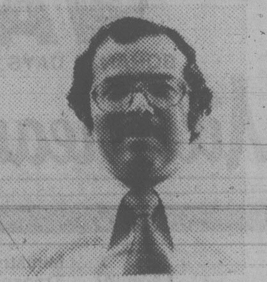
Prices at London Drugs are guaranteed to be as low or lower than any competitor's. London Drugs' stores stock 17,000 different items as compared to 6,000 or 7,000 by competitors.

London Drugs is the only drug chain in Canada which offers a 15-day money refund. "Our goods have to be satisfactory or your money is refunded," said Glazer. "If for any reason you are not satisfied, your money is refunded if you bring the product back in its original condition within 15 days."

In addition to cash sales London Drugs will accept Chargex, Master Charge, and personal cheques with appropriate identification.

ERIC HANSEN,
Store Mgr.

DAVE JOHAL,
Pharmacy Mgr.



GRAHAM McMULLEN,
Photo Dept.

Eric Hansen is the new store manager and Dave Johal, a former island resident, Pharmacy manager. Store hours will be 9:30 a.m. to 10 p.m. Monday through Saturday, 11 to 6 Sunday.

Current slogan at London Drugs is "you won't believe what we sell, and you won't believe what we sell it for." Island residents will be able to discover for themselves the many benefits of London Drugs this Wednesday.

Sales Manager of the photographic department in the Saanich Centre store is Mr. Graham McMullen.

London Drugs is not only the largest photographic retailer in Western Canada, the company is the most inexpensive one as well.

The selection of photographic equipment is very extensive, larger than those found in many specialty camera shops. All popular makes of cameras are sold as well as all those accessories which photography buffs require.

Because of their large volume purchases, London Drugs is able to offer customers remarkably low prices on all photographic supplies. Camera owners obtain similar savings at London Drugs in film and film processing. The volume of print and slide business handled by London Drugs is so large that several laboratories are required to handle the work.

Playoffs determine winners

Times News Services

Playoffs settled the outcome of two international men's and women's golf tournaments Sunday and both went only as far as the first extra hole.

Curtis Strange rolled in a 12-foot birdie putt on the first sudden-death hole and beat Lee Trevino for the title in the Houston Open golf tournament.

And on Hilton Head Island, S.C., Hollis Stacy sank a seven-foot birdie putt on the first hole of a sudden-death playoff to win the fifth annual $100,000 Women's International event.

Strange, 25, went leaping into the air and then trotted happily around the green after his putt found the cup on the 178-yard 15th hole at the Woodlands Country Club course. The putt came on the first hole of a playoff that was forced when Trevino's magnificent, six-under-par 65 tied the front-running Strange at the end of 72 holes.

Strange, who had taken a six-stroke lead with a 195 over the first three rounds — the lowest 54-hole total in 10 years of PGA tour activity — could do no better than par 71 over the last 18 holes.

Trevino, now a runner-up for the second time in as many weeks and for the 11th time in 2½ seasons, put the pressure on with his effort and 266 total, 18 under par, on the board first.

He watched, and served as a television commentator, as Strange struggled for the par he had to have to salvage a tie from what once appeared to be an unbeatable lead.

He missed the green with his approach on the 72nd hole, then got a free drop from a sprinkler head. He chipped within three feet of the cup and had to make it to stay alive.

Trevino hit first in the playoff and put his drive some 25-feet from the flag. Strange put a seven-iron shot 12 feet away.

Trevino missed and Strange made his. It secured his second pro title and was worth $63,000 from the total purse of $350,000. Trevino won $37,800 for second. He also was a runner-up to Tom Watson last week in New Orleans.

Stacy, a two-time United States Open champion, watched Amy Alcott miss a 30-foot birdie attempt on the playoff hole. She then stepped up and sank her putt for the $15,000 first prize.

Both Stacy and Alcott finished regulation play at nine-under-par 279 on the 6,500-yard par-72 Devil's Elbow South course at Moss Creek Plantation.

Their four-round totals broke the record of 281 set in 1976 by Sally Little and equalled in 1977 by Sandra Palmer in their victories in the Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament.

Little, who was tied with Stacy and Alcott at seven-under 209 going into Sunday's final round, finished third at seven-under 281.

Elsewhere on the golfing scene, Isao Aoki won one of Japan's richest golf events when he captured a $260,000 tournament in Nagoya for the third consecutive year and fifth time in his career. The Japanese veteran had a final round 72 to finish at 280, two strokes clear of runner-up Graham Marsh of Australia.

And in Valencia, Eddie Polland of Northern Ireland fired a last round 69 to win the $85,000 Spanish Open championship by five strokes from Severiano Ballesteros of Spain and Mark James of Britain.

Polland ended with a 12-under-par total of 276 to collect $15,000 first prize.

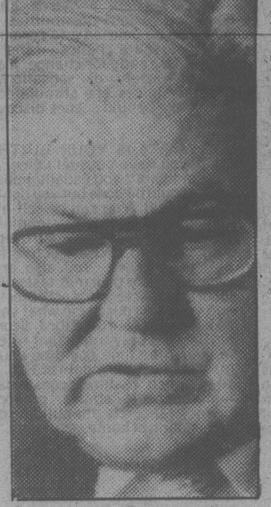
The New York promoters of what was billed as a humorous benefit celebrating "How the Old West Was Won in the East" ran into trouble with the governor of South Dakota, William J. Janklow, who thought that at least part of the event was not funny. The event, to benefit the National Myasthenia Gravis Foundation, included "An American Indian Firewater Pow Wow" which angered Janklow, invited to attend. "This is the 20th century," Janklow said in his letter to Tony Randall, the actor who is chairman of the Myasthenia Gravis Foundation, "Television, movies and show business personalities should stop promoting the stereotype of Indians being drunks." The promoters changed the name.



Belli

A sleek 94-foot, 340-horsepower diesel yacht called the Carin II rides unused at a dock in Hamburg, West Germany. She was a gift in 1937 from the German automobile industry to Herman Goering, the Nazi leader. Now the craft is for sale by the estate of Goering's widow, who died in 1973. but customers have been scarce. "No one will touch it in Europe," said Melvin Belli, the San Francisco lawyer, who has agreed to try to sell the boat. "I was led to believe that it just couldn't be disposed of on the Continent." Belli said the yacht is in fine condition and contains, among other things, scores of photographs of the Nazi hierarchy and dozens of the fancy gold-trimmed uniforms Goering favored — all for a price "over $500,000."

A trial date of July 7 has been set for rock singer David Lee Roth, who pleaded not guilty in Cincinnati, Ohio, to a charge of inciting violations of the city's fire codes during an April 24 concert. The member of the Van Halen group had encouraged fans to light matches and cigarette lighters during the band's show at Riverfront Coliseum. City officials tightened controls at the stadium after 11 persons were trampled to death while trying to get into a December concert by the British rock group The Who.

Frank Rosenfelt, president of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, made more than $5 million last year — more than any other U.S. executive, Business Week reports. The $5 million figure put him ahead of Chairman Rawleigh Warner Jr. of Mobil Corp. whose salary was $902,000.

Dear Abby:

This is in response to Disappointed who felt cheated because the bridal couple didn't open their wedding gifts at the reception.

Gift giving should be a private, loving act between the givers and recipients--not a show for the benefit of others.

It is a strain for the newly married couple to stand for hours opening gift after gift, trying to show equal enthusiasm for those that are nothing to write home about as compared to the more expensive and impressive presents.

I vote for opening wedding gifts in private. If the newlyweds want to display their gifts later, fine, but they shouldn't make a public show of it.

Private Person

Dear Person:

I agree. And consider the feelings of those who shopped for hours to find an appropriate and imaginative gift, only to watch the bride unwrap the fourth toaster, third blender and a fifth Crockpot!

Dear Abby:

I am puzzled by your continuing support of the Equal Rights Amendment. It is my understanding that this amendment is not necessary because women already are very well protected under the United States Constitution.

I am confused. Will you please explain in plain language why we need the ERA?

Protected Enough

Dear Protected:

You may not be as "protected" as you think. You don't say in which state you live, but if your husband dies or leaves you, are you sure you'll be provided for? Even if you are protected in your state, millions of American women in other states are not. The Constitution — as interpreted by the Supreme Court — does not give equal rights to women. If it did, we wouldn't have needed the 19th Amendment in order to gain the right to vote.

There are too many discriminatory laws on the books to cite them individually, but when Pennsylvania adopted the ERA, 300 state laws had to be rewritten in order to give women equal rights with men.

We need ERA so that all women will be protected regardless of where they live.

Dear Abby:

I have had epilepsy all my life, but fortunately I am able to keep it completely under control with medication. Because so many people who travel depend on daily medication these days, I have a suggestion that might be helpful: never pack all your medication in your luggage, and never carry it all in your purse.

I pack as much medication in my luggage as I'll need for the trip, and carry the same amount in my purse. I never carry it all in my purse; neither do I pack it all. Purses can be stolen and luggage can be lost.

Life a joy for mended mouse

By ARTHUR MAYSE

Florenda Joy at home today with an old friend . . . one call did it all

On our last trip to Victoria, Win and I called at 1316 Dunsterville, where a woman whom we hadn't seen for a number of years welcomed us to a house flooded with sunshine. Presently we were joined by her daughter, a girl whom I saw with a curious kind of double vision. On the one hand, that blooming and obviously healthy teenager. On the other, a pale little wisp of a child, so delicate that it seemed the least wind would blow her away.

The poised and pretty 17-year-old is Florenda Joy Dick. She lives happily with her mother and father, Sadie and David Dick, her old sister, Connie, and her brother, Kenneth. Next month she will graduate from Spectrum Community School, where she has been taking business courses.

Florenda has a part-time job in a Royal Jubilee Hospital laboratory, her own car which she saved three years to buy, and a lively interest in sports. Life has been more than kind to her.

But it was not always so. In actual fact, she has now graced this earth for a year more than the 16 predicted as her maximum life-span when she was that frail, pale child of six whom I first laid eyes on in 1969. For Florenda Joy was the victim from birth of a heart so fantastically scrambled that each day was a triumph of survival.

While we talked about this and that, my mind kept harking back to those now-distant days.

Florenda Joy first came to my attention when I was struggling in the Times office one January evening with a column that had jammed in the works. My desk phone rang. I reached for it, resenting the intrusion at a time when I was plentifully occupied.

The caller was a registered nurse. There was this little girl, she told me, who would die if she couldn't be given the immensely specialized surgery needed to mend her heart defects. The time for that surgery was now, while her slender fund of strength was at its peak. From this point, she would weaken steadily. Even a few months after would be too late. But here was the rub.

Her parents were farm-country people not long out from the prairies. They had assumed that when the time came for surgery at the only hospital in North America then capable of performing the operation — the Mayo Clinic at Rochester, Minnesota — they'd have no difficulty in raising the funds.

But to their acute dismay, they found this wasn't so. They had no collateral. They were living in rented quarters. David Dick had been forced by a back injury to give up his job with a paving company. They couldn't raise a nickel.

So that's how matters stood, the caller-in said. Maybe if I told Victoria about their plight, people would help.

The evening was getting on. I wanted to wind up a frustrating work-day and head home for my dinner. Anyway, hard-luck stories were a dime a dozen: a columnist hears them all the time.

Still, that account kept niggling at me. It seemed all wrong that a child should be condemned to die for the lack of skills available at a price. I weighed the facts as I'd heard them against a dinner delayed, then drove out along Gorge Road to the marina in which the Dick family had a suite.

Sadie and David Dick admitted me. Understandably, they were a trifle cool to the stranger who had appeared out of the night to ply them with personal questions. But their trouble loosened their tongues. Soon they were filling me in on Florenda's plight.

Her defective heart had condemned her to a half-life. She couldn't play the boisterous games that children love. She must never become excited, or angry, or moved in any way.

The little girl with the wide eyes and the wealth of straight straw-colored hair who watched us from the shadows of a window seat yearned to be like other children. But she inhabited a half-world of her own.

As a longtime reporter, I'd seen my share of death, disaster and tragedy. But I was also a father . . .

Next day, by way of a checkup, I called on the Victoria heart specialist whose patient Florenda Joy was. He confirmed the story, and detailed Florenda's disabilities. In simplest terms, a hole in the heart, a leaky valve, a reversed artery. They represented a virtual death sentence . . . unless, the specialist added, the child could be sent to Mayo Clinic, for extremely complex surgery.

Why Mayo in particular? I asked. Weren't there Canadian hospitals competent to undertake the operation?

AT THE AIRPORT prior to boarding plane for Mayo Clinic in 1969, Florenda Joy was blonde and frail.

The specialist shook his head. In Canada, he told me, the operating technique remained in an experimental stage. To date, no patient in a Canadian hospital had survived the operation. Then he added the clincher.

"If this child were my daughter," he said, "there's only one place I'd send her. That's to Mayo Clinic."

And that was that. I went back to the office and put Florenda's story on paper. At the end, I pointed out that this child would be dead by her teens at the latest if the operation were denied her, and asked a question. What did Victoria intend to do about Florenda Joy?

Dogged out, I went home early that day. As I opened our house door, I could hear the telephone ringing. My wife answered. She listened a minute, then said, "Thanks. That's wonderful!" Then she turned to me, looking a little dazed.

"That's the third call," she said. "They all want to help that little girl!"

I glanced at the kitchen clock. There'd barely been time for the paper to hit the street.

The phone rang again. At midnight and beyond, the calls were still flooding in from Victorians who wanted to do something about Florenda Joy.

The weeks that followed had a quality of unreality about them. Generous-hearted Victorians hiked the Florenda Joy fund by leaps and bounds. Strangers stopped me on the street to press money on me. A man-mountain in caulked boots and a buffalo-check stag shirt tramped into the Times office, halted at my desk, and thumbed 20-dollar bills from a battered hip-pocket wallet until I thought he'd never stop. Various service clubs pitched in.

Through the good offices of Bill Webb, then president of B.C. Restaurant Owners Association, member restaurants installed collection cans on their counters.

The Shriners, never backward when help is needed, moved aside from their regular function of helping crippled children to make a royal offer. They would pick up the transportation tab for Florenda's trip to Rochester.

Nor was it only Victoria that moved to the rescue of a stricken child,. Donations, most of them accompanied by warmly-worded notes, arrived from Great Britain and the United States, from Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and Japan.

One of our ships at sea, HMCS Yukon, on cruise in South American waters, espoused the fund.

The sailors did not merely raise money by all manner of shipboard activities. Ashore, they coaxed, kidded and fast-talked American sailors and Marines into helping out with Yankee dollars.

In three weeks, we were over-subscribed, the trip to Mayo assured, and I was desperately trying to turn off the money tap. But it was no use. Donations still pured in.

By the time the flow subsided, the surplus was sufficient to pay for a heart-monitoring machine for Royal Jubilee Hospital. It functions in the heart unit today, with Florenda Joy's name on a little brass plate attached to it.

March arrived. It was time for Florenda and her mother to start out for Rochester and the clinic.

We saw the two off from Victoria Airport. Promptly, I feel victim to an acute case of whips-and-jingles, a state of nerves not helped by a casual remark of Florenda's to a friend.

"You know," she said, "I may be coming back from there in a white box with flowers on it."

Sadie Dick had promised to keep anxious Victorians informed as to her daughter's progress. She proved to be a good reporter, cool-headed and steady in the face of near-calamity. But her early reports were not encouraging.

They'd operated the day before, she told me by long-distance phone one evening, on a small boy with heart defects similar to Florenda's. He had died on the operating table.

Then came the day of Florenda's operation . . . and an ominous, lengthening silence.

Finaly my phone rang. It was Sadie. The news was good: Florenda had come through the operation well. The next few hours would tell the story.

But the next call brought very grim news indeed. Florenda had suffered a setback. Her life hung in the balance.

I sweated that period out through some of the worst hours of my life. Then Sadie Dick phoned again, and this time her voice was joyful.

Everything was fine! Florenda had rallied. The crisis was behind her . . . she was making wonderful progress.

Several weeks later, it was our privilege to meet her at the airport, a mended mouse, and to see her swept up by her father.

Since then, Florenda hasn't looked back. She enjoys radiant health. She jogs, she swims, she skis. She's thinking of taking tennis lessons.

Life, in fact, has gone very well for the Dicks family.

Sadie is now a practical nurse at Royal Jubilee. David runs his own paving business.

As Win and I prepared to take our leave, I asked Florenda Joy if she remembered that loaded year.

She smiled, and shook her head.

"Not very well," she said.

And that is how it should be!

Drugs for athletes carried to the limit

By DR. BOB YOUNG

The use of drugs to enhance athletic prowess undoubtedly dates into antiquity. The Roman chariot driver probably took a little wine before facing his harrowing race, and history is full of examples of "strengthening draughts" and "endurance potions" used by soldiers and athletes.

The pure athletic ability of modern sports participants has been marred in recent years by the use of drugs. This has reached the point that urine samples are analyzed at important games to detect drug users. Human competitors may or may not know they are receiving stimulants or other drugs. Horses and other animals have little choice in the matter.

Drugs used in sport may be placed in four categories. There is probably little fault in an athlete taking vitamins or other dietary supplement while training. The use of a novocain injection to ease the pain of a cracked rib or sprained ankle appears to be acceptable if frequency of use among football and hockey players is any indication.

Somewhat more questionable is the use of "self transfusion" to improve breathing and endurance. Here the athlete stores some blood a few weeks before a major event. By the time the contest is held his body will have replaced this blood, and the competitor is given an added boost with a transfusion of his own oxygen carrying red cells from the blood removed previously.

Of more concern are the stimulants used to combat fatigue and provide a real or imagined lift, and the sedatives which may provide calmness and steadiness in sports such as shooting. These drugs are of varying degrees of effectiveness, (usually less than expected), and side effects range from mild in the case of caffeine to potentially serious in the case of amphetamines or "speed."

Finally the dedicated but misguided athlete may be tempted to use anabolic steroids, compounds similar to male sex hormones. Related to cortisone, they increase muscle mass (but now power). They are used by wrestlers, weight lifters and others. They have long-term side effects including sterility in males. Women suffer from increased hair growth and acne with their use. One wonders if the glory is really worth it.

"I thought I told you to take your jacket off."

She blames it all on Erythronium

elizabeth forbes

It started with Erythronium Revolutum. Pink lilies. The ones that grow wild in the woods and bloom in early spring.

Rebecca Wingert, winner for a fifth year of best plant in the annual Vancouver Island Rock and Alpine Society show, tells you of a girlhood love for those lilies that eventually grew into a desire to work with native wildflower and rock and alpine plants.

A love that stayed with her through early married life, care of two sons, changes of locale and many different homes.

It wasn't until 1970, while the Wingerts were living in Nanaimo that Rebecca really began to think seriously of making a start on her ambitious dream.

"I joined the Alpine Garden Society of London, England, and the Scottish Rock Garden Club of Edinburgh.

"That made me eligible, through correspondence, for exchange of seeds or plants from around the world."

While they were up-island, Mr. and Mrs. Wingert came to Victoria every spring for the Rock and Alpine Society show.

Each time, Rebecca would say to husband John she wished she were near enough to join the society.

That wish was fulfilled in 1975 when they did come to this city to live.

Two months later both she and her husband joined the society and in the spring of 1976 she won her first best plant award.

The move here presented Rebecca Wingert with an unforseen challenge.

"I expected to live where there would be natural rocks I could use as show places for some of my plants. Instead we ended up with property as flat as a pancake."

Turned out that was good for her, she claims.

"I've proved things can be done with a flat piece of ground and with no natural background for effect."

Right now, Mrs. Wingert has about 150 rock and alpine plants set out in pots beneath a patio, back of the house.

Among them there's a cyclamen persicum, the wild species from which our present popular greenhouse cyclamen was developed. Also a draba dedeana, a cushion plant from the Pyrenees that you see her holding in the accompanying picture. Seed for it came from England and it took two years to flower.

"In this climate I have color in those pots and I can leave them out all year around," she says.

"I do bring some of them indoors from time to time but not for long as one of their dislikes is room heat."

Mrs. Wingert doesn't specialize in any particular plant or shrub. Rather she works from dwarf shrubs right through to woodland and high alpine plants.

It takes anywhere from one week to one or two years for a seed to germinate. Then perhaps one or two years more to get a bloom.

And after that first blooming some plants die while others continue to produce flowers indefinitely.

Where does this enthusiast find her seeds and plants?

Sometimes through exchange of cuttings with rock and alpine society members. Occasionally from local specialists.

Mainly however it is through her membership in the English and Scottish societies she joined back in 1970.

Catalogues of current offerings come to her each January, through those scources, and from them she makes perhaps 50 selections.

"I could get 20 back, but not always the ones I've named as first choice.

"It depends on how rare the variety happens to be, how many ask for it and the quantity of seeds that have been donated for distribution."

If everything goes as planned, Rebecca Wingert may not be exhibiting in next year's Rock and Alpine Society show.

She and her husband are looking forward to attending an international alpine garden conference in England in April, 1981, an event that only occurs once every 10 years.

"There will be people at that conference from all around the world," Mrs. Wingert says. And when she says it you detect a note of eager anticipation in her voice.

At the same time she hopes to meet and talk to British enthusiasts. "They are marvellous gardeners and I'm anxious to exchange ideas with them."

Postscript — Rebecca Wingert was "the backyard gardener" as she puts it, on a panel during a meeting last year of Vancouver rock and alpine plant people.

The others were Rex Murfitt, now horticulturist at the recently re-opened Crystal Garden and the well-known expert Ed Lohbrunner.

She was also active at the Fourth Pacific Northwest Study Weekend in the Empress Hotel in February this year, when those present came from all across the United States and Canada.

She and her husband regularly attend Rock and Alpine Society meetings held every fourth Tuesday at 8 p.m. (except July, August and December) in St. Barnabas Church Hall, Belmont Avenue at Begbie Street.

"My husband doesn't know one seed or plant from another" she says with a quick laugh, "but he helps me with lifting pots and boxes and he makes the planters.

"He also likes getting together with members of the society because they are doing the same thing I'm trying to do.

"And he enjoys every minute of it!"

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Tuesday, May 6, 1980
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Pressures are relieved, fantasies are transformed into realities. Holiday spirit prevails. You could have valid reason for celebration. Accent on communication, travel, accelerated social activity. Gemini, Sagittarius persons figure prominently.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Emphasis on achievement, challenge, overcoming obstacles. Room is made for you at top. Heady atmosphere prevails. Aquarius, Scorpio persons figure in scenario. You get chance to prove a major point. Final revision is on agenda.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Study Aries message for valuable hint. Be ready for quick changes, variety, travel, a special relationship which enhances opportunity for success. Spotlight on communication, publishing, project which adds to knowledge and provides spiritual enlightenment.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Check accounting procedures, be aware of costs, reach financial agreement with one who shares basic interests. Major domestic adjustment could dominate scenario. Taurus, Libra, Scorpio persons figure prominently. You make major acquisition.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Go slow, insist on definitions, clear terms. See others as they are, avoid self-deception. Pisces, Virgo natives figure prominently. Accent on contracts, specific agreements, getting most for money, participating in potentially profitable investment.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Practical affairs dominate; you learn where you stand and what to do about a demanding relative. Older individual lends benefit of experience. Be receptive, but imprint your own style, be responsible for actions, money and love.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Spotlight on universal appeal. You round out projects, express love, get rid of burden, make changes and come to terms with children. You prove you are not without allies. Prestige is on upswing and personal magnetism is activated.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Let go of security blanket — close transaction, check details to clauses, rentals, fees and leases. You make contact with individual who provides inspiration, shows way to enlightenment. Leo, Aquarius natives play key roles.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Accent on probing, asking, replying to calls, catching up on correspondence. Hunch pays off — number 11 figures prominently. You decide on direction, teacher — one who aided in past is again available. Make the request!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Give full play to intellectual curiosity. Obtain hint from Sagittarius message. Trend turns in your favor where personal possessions, finances are concerned. Expand horizons — take steps to keep up with and combat inflationary spiral.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Moon position favors independence, daring, confidence, initiative, backing assertions with appropriate actions. Another Aquarian and a Scorpio figure in scenario. You find ally through unorthodox procedure.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Examine various possibilities — refuse to be painted into corner. Give yourself a chance — and a choice. Be ready for change, travel, a variety of sensations. Creative juices are stimulated. You make behind scenes discovery.

IF MAY 6 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY, you have unusual voice, a "sweet tooth," you usually know what should be done but you don't always do it. You can be self-indulgent, sensual, extravagant — you are attractive, controversial, stubborn and attractive to the opposite sex. You also are creative, have gourmet tastes in food, an expert eye for art objects and you often purchase what you do not need. Taurus, Libra, Scorpio persons play important roles in your life. June could be your most memorable month of 1980, a year which features consolidation, domestic affairs, greater financial security, the building or remodeling of home.

Food for the bard

What was Estelle Parsons doing in Bloomingdale's Thursday? Well, she was making $1,000 for the New York Shakespeare Festival by whipping up her "Miss Margarida's Walnut Torte," which she says she invented, in a demonstration in the housewares department.

On Tuesday, Joseph Papp played Bloomingdale's, too, lecturing on food and drink in Shakespeare's plays, and acting out roles in scenes in which the Bard referred to eating and drinking. "The grisliest scene, of course," Papp said, was the 'I will grind your bones' recipe from Titus Andronicus. Friday, Raul Julia earned his festival contribution by discussing "food for thought," and the department store will also make $1,000 gifts to the Shakespeare Festival for the appearances of Madeline Kahn, who on May 7 gives pointers to on interior design, and Louise Lasser, who'll tell all she knows about "country furnishings" on May 12.

Close-to-home trips are best

Grey heads were in the majority when my wife and I took in a sparkling, matinee performance at the Blyth Summer Festival '79 — in air-conditioned comfort.

Blyth, an enterprising Ontario village, is short kilometres from our home base. The fine summer theatre, shopping in small stores (oh those friendly clerks) and a picnic in a pleasant municipal park proved once again what I have stressed before: You do not need to travel far for your enjoyment.

Or spend a lot of money doing it. The Blyth Festival has lower prices for seniors and bus companies offer combined transportation and ticket deals.

Similar summer stage series and other seasonal outings for seniors are offered across Canada. The best way to find out what is available is to join a seniors club (they arrange many such outings) or watch for specials for seniors offered by transportation companies and their travel agents.

With accommodation and restaurant prices soaring, and gas in short supply across the border, it is indeed a year to visit nearby attractions. Evidence that Canadians are heeding the warnings is found in a Conference Board of Canada survey. Last year 46% of travellers questioned said they planned to confine their trips to Canada; this year: 58% will roam in their own country only.

The emphasis that travel, hospitality and entertainment people are putting on special services for seniors is surprising but I suppose it should not be. These industries are awakening to the fact that a large and growing market exists among the over-sixty set.

Smart seniors do not travel far afield in July and August when facilities are jammed, hot and noisy. They wait for the fall when accommodation will be better and bargains will be offered. But for short outings right now these trips to summer theatre are hard to beat.

Of course all such seasonal entertainment is not confined to small towns. There probably are good summer shows in nearby cities if you want a big-town outing.

For example, running through to the end of September is the summer season of Theatre Plus in Toronto, offering special Saturday matinees for seniors (subscriptions to three internationally-known plays for only $12).

Marilyn Green of Theatre Plus calls to emphasize just how enthusiastic they are about catering to seniors. The plays are performed in a small, comfortable, air-conditioned theatre; wheel-chair facilities are provided.

Marilyn says "The Fourth Quarter is a splendid vehicle for communication with senior citizens"; I don't disagree. She adds something I already know from my mail: "I assure you that 4th Quarter readers are not restricted to those in their later years".

But I digress. What I want to stress is that you can have just as much fun and get just as much value and satisfaction out of trips within short miles of home.

Such economical, close-to-home trips are becoming more and more attractive, particularly now that the travel and related industries are making genuine efforts to give seniors a bit more for their shrinking dollars.

quilting with kathy faryon

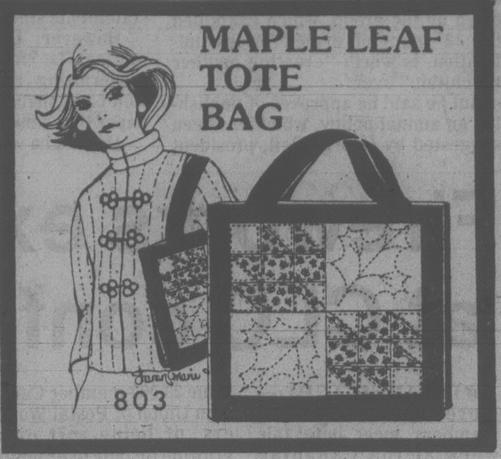
Maple leaf motif an old favorite



You're sporting your new quilted jacket — what better companion for your outfit than this striking Maple Leaf Tote. The patchwork design is made with squares and triangles, while the quilted stitch design graphically depicts the maple leaf shape. Make it in red, white and blue for Spring, or in autumn shades for Fall. Complete instructions for the Maple Leaf Tote are with the pattern which includes the shapes for the patchwork. These shapes are also available in see-through plastic templates. The cut-your-own Plastic Templates have the seam allowance already printed on them so it's easy to trace and cut out the shapes you need. To assist you in piecing, the templates have been hole-punched. Using the point of a pencil, you can mark the seam lines of various shapes. This will guide you when placing two pieces of fabric together for sewing.

The maple leaf motif is an old favorite for quilts, too. Using scraps of fabric you have on hand, or a lovely set of co-ordinated prints and solids, you can create a beautiful collage of colours. A couple of blocks will make a placement, a single one a potholder. Try your hand at it — this is a good place to start patchwork and quilting!

Happenings: The Edmonton and District Quilters Guild is commemoriating the Province of Alberta's 75th Birthday by holding a 75th Anniversary Quilt Contest. Open to residents of Alberta, applications must be received by Sept. 15, 1980, with finished quilts in by October 15. A public display of the entries will be held at Executive House Inn, 10515-105th St. in Edmonton from Nov. 7 to 16. For more complete information and entry forms, contact Clara Latham, Program Co-ordinator; Alberta 75th Anniversary Quilt Contest, Box 8248, Station F., Edmonton, Alta. T6V 4P1.

An exhibition of Alberta Fibre Art will be presented by the 75th Anniversary Commission, organized by Alberta Culture, Visual Arts. In order to document the state of fibre media art in Alberta in 1980, fibre artists and craftsmen are invited to submit recent works for the first major contemporary textile exhibition of works produced by Albertans. In addition to quilting, other techniques which will be considered include weaving, knitting, crocheting, embroidery, printing, dyeing, paper making and felting. The exhibit may be viewed during Novermber, 1980 at the S.U.B., University of Alberta and, during February, at the "Nickle Arts" museum at the University of Calgary. For further information and entry forms, contact: Jane Thomas, Coordinator/curator, "Fibrations" A Provincial Review, Pacific Plaza, 10909 Jasper Avenue, Edmonton, Alta., T5J 3M8, or phone (403) 427-0813.

Wherever history is being made, quilters have been involved in preserving it through various techniques, providing future generations with a unique memory. If you take part in these events, be sure to document the symbolism in your work — there are inks that may be used to write on fabric. A trip to the Smithsonian Institute in Washington, D.C. showed me that our foremothers had history in mind as they dated and signed and wrote on their quilts — let us do the same.

Patterns available:

No. 803: Maple Leaf tote bag. Simple patchwork project that's fun to make. $2.20.

No. 32: Plastic Templates for Maple Leaf patchwork design. Use for small projects or large size quilts. Includes square and triangle shapes. Multi-use, permanent tools. $3.20. Both of the above: $4.99.

Quilt-a-block Frame — Lap frame enables you to hand-quilt blocks, such as a maple leaf, as you go. It is portable and easy to use. Folds flat for storage, fits into a shopping bag. Makes everything from potholders to big quilts. Full instructions for Quilt As You Go techniques. $9.50.

Book — 101 Patchwork Patterns, by Ruby Kim. Include diagrams, quilt name stories, cutting designs, material suggestions, yardage estimates and definite instructions for every step of quiltmaking. Belongs in every quilter's library. Soft cover, 124 pp. $4.20.

How to order: Send your name, address and postal code, along with a cheque or money order to: Hearthside Patterns, c/o This Newspaper, P.O. Box 9120, Station "E", Edmonton, Alberta T5P 4K2.

PROGRAMME-CADRE DE FRANCAIS
INSCRIPTION — SEPTEMBRE, 1980

Le Conseil Scolaire du Grand Victoria, conformément aux ordres du Ministère de l'Education de la Colombie-Britannique, offre, depuis un an, un programme-cadre de français, de la maternelle jusqu'à la septième année. Dans ce programme, toutes les matières sont sont enseignées en français, exception faite du cours d'anglais, langue seconde. Il est, donc, essentiel que tout enfant qui s'inscrit au programme comprenne bien le francais, et cela dès le début des calsses, en septembre. Tous les parents désireux d'inscrire leurs enfants au programme-cadre sont priés de se mettre en contact avec monsieur Inkster, directeur de l'école Uplands, 3461 rue Henderson, numéro de téléphone 592-2022.

FRENCH LANGUAGE CORE CURRICULUM
REGISTRATION — SEPTMEMBER, 1980

The Greater Victoria School Board, by order of the Ministry of Education of British Columbia, is again offering a French langugage core curriculum after one year of operation, from Kindergarten to grade 7. In this program, all subjects are taught in French except English as a second language. It is therefore essential that any child entering the program can understand French well from the beginning of classes in September. All parents wishing to register their children in the program are requested to contact the principal, Mr. Don Inkster, at Uplands School, 3461 Henderson Road, phone 592-2022.

Forces not likely to return to distinctive uniforms

TORONTO (CP) — The armed forces will probably not return to distinctive uniforms for each branch as recommended by a military study group, but Canada's military leaders are considering publishing an annual review of defence policy.

Defence Minister Gilles Lamontagne said in a telephone interview Sunday that he doesn't think the uniform recommendation handed down by the group, which examined the 12 years of armed forces unification, is worth "creating another revolution" over.

But he said he approves of publishing an annual policy, which has been suggested by George Bell, president of the Canadian Institute of Strategic Studies.

"We're so interdependent on rapidly changing events . . . it's hard to have long-range policy," Lamontagne said.

Bell told a weekend meeting of the Canadian Institute of Strategic Studies in Toronto that annual defence reports are needed because the department has issued no formal policy statements since a 1970 white paper.

However, Lamontagne said the military is "moving pretty fast on modernizing the forces now" and won't get involved in another white paper that would slow it down.

He said he will name three department members to study the cost of implementing task force recommendations, but added that its report "didn't see anything major wrong with the forces."

A recommendation that commanders of the three forces be named to the National Defence Council has been carried out, he said.

The study group was set up by former Conservative defence minister Allan McKinnon.

Bell also proposed creating a national stategic planning board similar to the U.S. National Security Council, but Lamontagne rejected this idea, saying cabinet committees fill this function.

Fireworks expected at CLC conference

WINNIPEG (CP) — More than 2,000 union members meet here this week at the Canadian Labor Congress's national convention in an attempt to iron out differences over Quebec independence, collective bargaining tactics, government-labor relations and several inter-union disputes.

Some unions have been preparing for a showdown over CLC leadership, particularly that of president Dennis McDermott, but have fallen short of organizing a campaign to turf out the former head of the 135,000-member United Auto Workers union, after only one two-year term.

Disgruntled unions are accusing McDermott and other executive members of mistreating the troublesome 23,000-member Canadian Union of Postal Workers, of being soft on a growing dispute over building trades unions in Quebec and of disregarding policies adopted at past CLC conventions.

The most controversial of those policies is one rejecting tripartism — formal co-operation involving the CLC, the government and business.

A fresh debate on tripartism is inevitable in the wake of an agreement quietly worked out by CLC leaders with the Toronto-based Business Council on National Issues to set up a national manpower board that would work with governments on long-term planning in the skilled trades.

The CLC is a central labor body covering about 2.3 million workers in 74 U.S.-based international unions, 24 national Canadian unions, 111 union locals chartered as affiliates to the CLC, 10 provincial federatins of labor and 115 district labor councils in cities across the country. It holds a national convention every two years.

The five-day session comes just two weeks before the May 20 referendum on Quebec sovereignty-association, a sure source of conflict as the 320,000-member Quebec Federation of Labor has endorsed the yes vote.

The Quebec Federation of Labor is also in the centre of a dispute between McDermott and two CLC executives from Ontario and Alberta who resigned near the eve of the convention to protest his unwillingness to intervene on their side in a dispute over building trades unions.

The two protesters want the CLC to crack down on the Quebec federation because it has provided a haven for seven unions that bolted the Building Trades Council, representing all construction unions in Quebec, to set up their own separate organization to negotiate with employers.

Schreyer in hospital for more surgery

OTTAWA (UPC) — Governor-General Edward Schreyer was admitted to the National Defence Medical Centre Sunday for tests prior to minor surgery to be performed later this week.

Colonel B. W. Grace, Schreyer's personal surgeon, said the surgery was to be a follow-up treatment for an inflamed intestine originally operated on in February.

Grace said the Governor-General was feeling well, "in fact, he's going home for the evening."

Schreyer was to be re-admitted today to hospital, where he was to stay for a week to 10 days, Grace said.

Real wages dipped 2.5% during '79

TORONTO (CP) — Although economic conditions were ripe for labor disputes in 1979, the number of workdays lost through strikes and lockouts was up only slightly, rising to 7.8 million from 7.4 million in 1978.

Real wages dropped 2.5 per cent last year because of inflation, after a three-per-cent drop the year before and a modest .3-per-cent increase in 1977. But company profits rose 35 per cent in 1979 after a 17-per-cent increase in 1978.

Economists had expected more labor unrest because of the drop in real wages, and the fact all remaining contracts negotiated under the Anti-Inflation Board expired in 1979.

A lengthy strike by Inco Ltd. workers in Sudbury, Ont., accounted for 1.2 million man-days lost, and along with strikes by workers at Bell Canada, Alcan Aluminum Ltd. and Quebec hospital workers, accounted for one-third of the lost days in 1979.

Although inflation outstripped wage gains, the average settlement yielded 8.2 per cent in 1979, compared with 6.9 per cent in 1978.

William Jarvis of Informetrica Ltd. of Ottawa said 1980 will be the Canadian economy's worst since 1955.

"I don't think we'll see much increase of industrial unrest in that environment," he said.

Wild fires finally tamed

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Two major forest fires which threatened to cause evacuations last week were reported under control Sunday night, but forestry officials said the fire hazard in northeastern B.C. remained high to extreme.

A 2,000-acre fire near Chetwynd about 80 kilometres southwest of Fort St. John had threatened a Westcoast Transmission pipeline pumping station before it changed direction on Friday.

An evacuation plan had been prepared for farms and ranches in the Wonowon area near Mile 101 of the Alaska Highway because of a 1,200 acre fire.

Both fires were contained by Sunday.

Crosbie's rejected budget worth no less than $65

OTTAWA (CP) — An autographed copy of John Crosbie's first budget, rejected by Parliament last December and by the voters in the Feb. 18 election, sold Saturday for $65.

"I hope whoever buys this has better luck than I did," the former Progressive Conservative finance minister wrote on the back of the copy, part of a collection of odds and ends auctioned off to raise money for St. Brigid's summer camp in nearby Low, Que.

"I thought it was a good budget," said purchaser Anna Fleming of Ottawa. "It will make a great souvenir."

A copy of the Bill of Rights, autographed by former prime minister John Diefenbaker, sold for $95. A cigar belonging to George Burns and an autographed picture of the actor in which he had burned a hole with another cigar sold for $50, as did a City of Ottawa flag. Mayor Marion Dewar paid $270 for a watercolor.

The auction raised about $12,000 of the $62,000 needed to run the eight-week camp. The rest is to come from government grants or be raised by the children themselves.

Indians vow to fight for self-government

OTTAWA (CP) — Indian leaders have vowed to continue their fight for self-government despite the rude awakening they received from Prime Minister Trudeau and other cabinet ministers on sovereignty and constitutional reform.

"Prime Minister Trudeau called the 80s a decade for action but it won't be the action he wants . . . to push down our throats," Bob Manuel, a chief from British Columbia, said in an interview.

Trudeau and Energy Minister Marc Lalonde told a national all-chiefs convention here last week that under no circumstances will they be able to participate as equals to provinces at future constitutional talks.

"We know we're in a tough political fight but we're ready," said Noel Starblanket, president of the National Indian Brotherhood.

Starblanket did not rule out a violent response from Indians if they do not receive guarantees soon that their rights will be entrenched in the constitution.

"They're frustrated," he said. "They've been fighting this battle for over 100 years."

More than 400 chiefs and elders attended the convention to discuss constitutional reform and other matters.

Trudeau, making his first appearance before a national native audience, told delegates they could participate in constitutional talks on matters that directly concern them.

Lalonde was more blunt. "You're not a province."

Later, Indian Affairs Minister John Munro angered some chiefs by seeming to suggest that they put off constitutional reform and concentrate on pragmatic revisions to the Indian Act.

Balloons took off on tiny marchers

OTTAWA (CP) — About 4,000 tiny demonstrators marched on Parliament Hill Sunday singing O Canada and following leaders who clutched big red Canadian flags.

But the demonstration had nothing to do with national unity or any politics of that kind.

The thousands of Girl Guides and Brownies, most clutching little balloons, had gathered to celebrate the 70th anniversary of the Canadian Girl Guide movement. They all were from the Ottawa area.

"No, no, it's nothing political, it's just our birthday party," said one of the adults accompanying the guides. A big, white paper layer cake was perched on a car.

The guides and brownies settled on the lawn in front of Parliament's centre block for speeches and ceremonies and many promptly let their bright balloons drift up into the sky.

"Brownies, Brownies, hang on to your balloons," one of their leaders said over a loudspeaker system. "Tie them to your wrists, Brownies."

The balloons kept drifting.

The bidding:

Pass	1 ♠	Pass	3 ♠
Pass	4 ◇	Pass	5 ♣
Pass	5 ♠

Opening lead — king of hearts.

The real test of a bidding partnership is its ability to bid (or avoid) slams. Accuracy is the keynote of slam bidding — because, in effect, you predict you'll make twelve tricks, neither more nor less. This is quite different from bidding, say, three notrump, where you might make 9, 10 or 11 tricks without testing your skill as a bidder.

Consider this deal from a match between Sweden and the United States. When the American pair were North-South, they stopped at five spades. True, they had only 23 high-card points, but that didn't stop them from making 12 easy tricks.

After North's jump raise, South made the excellent bid of four diamonds, realizing that North might have the right hand for a slam. North cuebid clubs in response, even though he had less than the usual complement of high cards for his three spade bid.

South should have bid six spades at this point, but he chickened out. He felt he had done enough by cuebidding diamonds and couldn't bring himself to bid six on his 12-point hand. He bid only five spades. North passed, since he had nothing in hearts and had already bid his hand to the hilt. West led the heart king, which held, and South took the rest of the tricks.

When the Swedish pair at the second table were North-South, they did not come even close to a slam. The bidding went 1s -3s -4s, period. West led a club and Sweden gained an insignificant 30 points on the deal when their declarer made all the tricks.

The deal vividly illustrates the point that high cards are not the sole criterion in slam bidding. Distribution also plays an important role.

Spring watering for shrubs

gardening

hilda beastall

Rarely do we have a spring season that watering of established shrubs can be left to the rains. This year is no exception. In areas protected from the casual showers during April, the soil has become alarmingly dry.

Against house walls particularly, retaining walls, garage and sheds — and where spreading shrubs shelter the soil — there can be found actual drought conditions.

While the established shrubs are not perhaps yet suffering from lack of water, each week that passes makes it more difficult to replace the moisture even near the surface.

Preventing the subsoil from reaching the dry state is more easily done now than it will be to replenish the moisture down there at some time in summer. In the meantime, coniferous evergreens will undoubtedly show signs of disfiguring red spider-mite and drying young tip growth. This happens when periods of low humidity are coupled with dry soil.

And broad-leaved evergreens such as skimmias, rhododendrons, aucubas, photinias and kalmias are likely to have browning of leaf edges, and of new, young growth.

Fortunately these conditions are more easily prevented than cured when once they are established, although hosing down of the foliage frequently is helpful whenever a dry or windy condition prevails.

This week make a point of testing for dryness in areas of your garden where you suspect rain has not reached. Dig down, between plants so as not to disturb roots, with a shovel for the depth of the blade. Lift some of the soil out and feel with fingers for dryness or moisture. If dry, or you are in doubt, watering will be needed.

Canvas soakers are most efficient for getting tap water down to root level. Next best are plastic soakers with many small holes in the length. Both types use very little water pressure thus are water-saving and money-saving methods.

A slowly revolving sprinkler set just above soil level is also efficient for watering root areas beneath shrubs. Every drop of water reaches the soil, as with soakers. Depending how dry you have allowed the soil to become, the sprinkler may need re-setting in a new spot at 45 or 60 minute intervals. This ia a water saving method for all the water is around and under the shrubs, none on paths, fences or unused areas, or areas which do not require the special soaking.

When showers are forecast is one good time to do watering. After light showers is another good time. Observant gardeners, and others, will notice parks' departments with sprinklers systems in full operation on boulevards and in parks before, during and after rain in spring and summer. This is a saving of water and the taxpayer's money.

Rain has already been scarce locally this year so we shall need to conserve water on a voluntary basis if we are to have sufficient for keeping our vegetables and ornamentals in good growth during summer.

Water down below is needed by all vegetables and fruits. At this season strawberries and cane fruits must have sufficient or the fruits will develop hard seeds, spoiling the quality. If strawberries are in flower, watering must be at roots only or the pollen will be spoiled for pollination, thus cutting down on fruiting.

With seedling rows of vegetables, a good watering of the marked rows before sowing will help save water, for then there is a small reservoir below the seed area to be drawn on by the roots as they reach it.

After sowing it is safe to sprinkle only the surface each day until germination is well advanced and seedlings established, to prevent drying in the top inch or so. This is the one condition where "sprinkling daily" is tolerated and indeed needed.

Watch for impending showers, listen to local forecasts direct from Victoria weather office, and supply water when needed by your kind of plants and your kind of soil.

Pope visits Congo after tumultuous Zaire reception

BRAZZAVILLE (AP) — Pope John Paul crossed the Congo River today for the second stop on his African tour after an open-air mass in neighboring Zaire at which nine persons were trampled to death and 72 injured in the crowd of more than one million persons.

After taking a ferry across the river for a five-hour stop in the People's Republic of the Congo, the Roman Catholic pontiff was flying back to Zaire for an overnight stay in Kisangani, the chief city in northern Zaire.

The Pope appealed today to the republic's Marxist leaders to let the Roman Catholic Church operate in full freedom and promised that it has no intention of playing politics.

In a speech prepared for delivery to Congolese President Col. Denis Sassou-Nguesso, Pope John Paul said the Congo can depend on the loyal help of the church as it acts to serve mankind.

But he said the church seeks the right to speak to consciences and for its believers to profess their faith publicly.

The Congo, a former French colony now run by a military regime, has an estimated 600,000 Roman Catholics among its population of 15 million. In March, 1977, the archbishop of Brazzaville, Emile Cardinal Biayenda, was murdered, apparently by relatives of President Marien Ngouabi, who was killed in a coup a few days earlier. But the Vatican says church-state relations have improved considerably since then.

The fatalities occurred Sunday in Kinshasa, Zaire's capital, when the iron gates to the plaza in front of the People's Palace were opened at dawn and the huge crowd rushed forward.

The Pope was not told of the deaths until later and went ahead with a five-hour mass, during which he consecrated eight new bishops, including Msgr. Michael Joseph Gerard Gagnon, a French-Canadian missionary living in Djibouti.

Protesters killed in Kabul clashes

NEW DELHI (Reuter) — Hundreds of people staged demonstrations in Kabul against Afghanistan's Soviet-backed government on the weekend, travellers arriving in Indian said today.

A Western businessman said he was told that about 70 people were killed in clashes between students and soldiers in the Afghan capital in the last two weeks.

An Afghan traveller said hundreds of protesters staged a peaceful anti-government rally in the capital's Pul-e-Bagh area Sunday. Demonstrations also were held at Kabul University, and the university and high schools were closed, he said.

"Markets are sometimes open and sometimes closed," he added, but that security remained tight and a curfew was in force in Kabul.

The official Soviet news agency Tass quoted the Afghan interior ministry Sunday as saying that the disturbances occurred when students "tried to violate order in Kabul and came out against the interests of Afghanistan."

Hasty revenge out: Begin

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin has ruled out any hasty actions to avenge a Palestinian terrorist ambush in occupied Hebron in which six Jewish seminary students were killed.

But on the occupied West Bank, protests erupted anew Sunday with commercial strikes, tire-burnings and window-smashings reported in several towns.

Militants from Kiryat Arba infiltrated Hebron, smashing windows and damaging cars. Soldiers intervened to restore order. The city was sealed and its 70,000 Arab residents were under strict curfew for a third day.

Begin, in a 90-minute Cabinet meeting Sunday, also shielded Defence Minister Ezer Weizman from blame for the Friday night attack in which five students were killed in the initial shooting.

The sixth victim, Hannan Krotihammer, of B'nai Brak, the only critically injured student among the 17 wounded in the bloodiest Palestinian attack in the occupied territories in 13 years of Israeli rule, died at a Jerusalem hospital Sunday night.

Funerals for two Americans and a Canadian slain in a rooftop assault in Hebron were set for today in the old Jewish cemetery in Hebron, on Mount Herzl in Jerusalem and in the Tel Aviv suburb of Holon.

An aide to Begin said the prime minister planned to attend one of the burial rites.

More than 4,000 mourners attended burial rites at a military cemetery outside Tel Aviv Sunday for the other two slain scholars, both Israelis.

Begin told his cabinet the government was collectively responsible for the attack, fending off criticism of Weizman for his alleged leniency in dealing with the Palestinians and calls by right-wing Jewish settlers for his ouster.

Sources close to Begin quoted him as saying "no hasty steps" will be taken to avenge the slayings and that Israel must find ways to live in peace with the Arabs by continuing talks on autonomy for 1.1 million Palestinians on the West Bank and Gaza.

Israel immediately retaliated to the attack — blamed on a local Palestinian terror cell — expelling two West Bank mayors and a Moslem religious leader, provoking criticism from Israeli leftists who accused the government of acting illegally.

The three men were not permitted to appeal the decision.

Missiles in crash

ATOKA, Okla. (UPI) — A truck loaded with 13 tons of Army attack missiles collided with another truck early Saturday, killing one of the drivers and leaving local officials waiting for military permission to move the unexploded projectiles.

Officials said the driver of a truck loaded with plastic pipes veered left of center on U.S. 69, crashing into the missile-laden transport about 4 a.m. Saturday. The pipe truck's driver, Gerald Cecil Newcomb, 34, of Tulsa, Okla., was pronounced dead on arrival at an Atoka hospital.

Tito's death at 87 shocks Yugoslavians

Times News Services

BELGRADE — Hundreds of thousands of Yugoslavs massed in the rain today along the route of a train that carried the body of President Josip Broz Tito, who fought the Nazis in the Second World War , then defied Josef Stalin in a break from the Soviet bloc.

Throngs of people, many with tear-streaked faces, crowded both sides of tracks as the funeral train carried the body of Marshal Tito on a last, sad journey from Ljubljana where he died Sunday to the capital of Belgrade.

Tito's death at 87 after a four-month struggle against a variety of illnesses was not unexpected. But still it shocked much of the nation of 22 million people and the sense of bereavement was pervasive. The bustling capital of Belgrade was quiet and there was a subdued tone in conversation.

Tens of thousands of grieving Yugoslavs packed the rainy streets of Ljubljana, where top officials spoke in a brief memorial service before Tito's coffin was put one last time aboard the train on which he so often travelled around the country.

At the first and only stop of the solemn journey in Zagreb, thousands of grief-stricken Yugoslavs gathered at the rail station as the train carrying the flag-draped coffin pulled up for a 45-minute service.

Doctors at Lubljana Medical Centre, where Tito fought stubbornly for four months, listed heart failure and "post-operative" complications as the cause of death.

The collective state and party leadership announced a seven-day period of mourning and a state funeral for the Yugoslav patriarch Thursday.

World leaders joined in homage to President Tito of Yugoslavia today. But President Carter included a veiled warning to the Russians, Moscow took a back-handed swipe at the West and China sniped at the Soviets.

The White House said Carter will be represented at Tito's funeral Thursday by U.S. Vice-President Walter Mondale.

On the other side, Moscow Television praised Tito for his "struggle against imperialism and colonialism."

A condolence message from Peking's leaders praised Tito's defiance of Soviet domination.

Prime Minister Trudeau said he is "deeply saddened" to learn of the death of Tito:

"We will remember him for his persistent pursuit of detente, disarmament and improved relations between all states."

Crown Prince Alexander Karageorgevitch, the heir to the Yugoslavian throne who has never been in his family's homeland, said in Milwaukes Tito's death has left the future of Yugoslavia up in the air:

"They have set up this federative council, but I don't believe it will work," he said of the future of Yugoslavia.

New president to be rotated in just 13 days

BELGRADE (AP) — Lazar Kolisevski, a former metalworker nearly executed by the Bulgarians for his Communist activities in 1941, assumed the leadership of Yugoslavia's nine-man collective presidency Sunday.

KOLISEVSKI
. . . 'presidency president'

Kolisevski, 66, was installed as "president of the presidency" at a televised meeting of the governing body called only hours after President Tito died. But he is expected to serve as president for only 13 days, when he will be replaced under the rotating system.

He has been running the country as vice-president of the presidency during Tito's four-month illness.

Cvijetin Mijatovic, 67, representative of Bosnia-Herzegovina, was named vice-president at the same meeting Sunday. He is expected to succeed Kolisevski as president on May 16, when the one-year term Kolisevski had been serving as vice-president expires.

Kolisevski will remain a member of the collective presidency as the representative of Macedonia until 1984, when the five-year terms of office of all members of the panel expire.

Mijatovic and future presidents of the presidency will serve one-year terms under the complex system of leadership introduced by Tito to keep the widely varying regions of the country together and prevent any one person from gaining too much power.

The presidency includes representatives of each of Yugoslavia's six states and two autonomous provinces plus a representative the Communist party.

Tito was both president-for-life and party president.

Stevan Doronjski, 61, is expected to replace Tito as party president. He then will have the option of representing the party in the presidency or remain as party president but he cannot do both as Tito had done. If he should decide to serve on the presidency, the party would name a new party president.

A new vice-president of the presidency will be named when Mijatovic steps up to the top post.

A personal brand of communism

TITO
. . . kept fit until lately

The Associated Press

Josip Broz Tito was the 7th of 12 children in a Croatian peasant family, but a combination of events in two world wars paved the way for his rise to the undisputed leadership of Yugoslavia and made him a co-founder of what now is the non-aligned movement.

Tito was a contrast to his contemporaries — the bloodthirsty Stalin, the maniacal Hitler, the fatuous Mussolini, the erratic Khrushchev, the stolid Franco. He was more humane, less murderous, more willing to experiment. He enjoyed the pleasures of power, openly and unabashedly living in the style of his royal predecessors.

And although he considered himself a Marxist, he was bored by abstractions and never took ideology very seriously, at least not as a way to interpret the actions of others.

As president of Yugoslavia, he had shaped his own brand of communism. Many wonder whether Yugoslavia will survive without him.

Born May 7, 1892, as Josip Broz, he took the name Tito during his years in the Communist underground before the Second World War.

His early life was one of poverty.

His father owned 10 acres of land, but had to do odd jobs as a hauler with a horse and cart. The family was Roman Catholic.

Tito was drafted into the Austrian army at age 21 and two years later was a sergeant-major when Austria marched against Serbia in what was to become the First World War. Russian cavalry surrounded his unit and Tito, wounded by a lance, was captured.

He was kept in Russia for five years as a prisoner of war. While there, he joined the Communist party and took part in the Communist revolution that overthrew the czar.

Between then and the outbreak of the Second World War, Tito became an underground communist worker known at various times as Valter, Viktor, John Alexander Carlson, Spiridon and finally Tito.

He was arrested in Yugoslavia in 1930 and sentenced to five years in prison because of his underground activities. He fled to Austria after his release and became an official and then a member of the central committee of the outlawed Yugoslav Communist party.

Then came the Second World War and his struggle against the Axis occupiers. At the end of the war, he outmanoeuvred royalist and Serbian nationalist movements to emerge as head of Yugoslavia.

As a world statesman, Tito increased Yugoslavia's weight in world affairs far beyond the force of its 22 million people and always fragile economy. A great believer in personal contacts, he made more than 100 foreign trips, many to budding Third World countries and the West.

As the 1970s neared an end, Yugoslavia faced growing economic and political problems. Its decentralized self-management system was deep in debt and suffering from serious inflation and stubborn regional economic differences.

Tito's prized movement of non-aligned countries, which he had helped form with the late Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India and President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt, was badly strained. Pro-Soviet Cuba was leading an activist camp within the movement and challenging Yugoslavia's leadership.

Tito's health remained generally good even into his 80s, although he was bothered by sciatica.

He married three times, the last to Jovanka Budisavljevic, who fought in his partisan army. The marriage was disclosed in 1952 when she was 28. A public companion for years, she dropped mysteriously from sight in 1977 after reports that Tito had discovered attempts were being made to arrange a position for her in the Yugoslav hierarchy.

Her disappearance from public view remained one that no Yugoslav official would discuss. Tito himself said only that she was still his wife and still living in the presidential compound in Belgrade.

Explosions rock Iranian embassy

Times News Services

LONDON — Two tremendous explosions rocked the Iranian embassy today followed by a fusillade of gunfire, minutes after the dead body of one the six-day hostages had been pushed out through the embassy door.

Flames poured from a second floor window and at least one man, presumably a hostage, was seen jumping for his life from a second floor balcony to another balcony.

Fifteen minutes after the two ear-splitting explosions which occurred about 7:30 p.m. London time, police with stretchers raced toward the building and were seen carrying out bodies. Police also tore down their barricades to get fire engines through to fight the roaring flames and dense black smoke still pouring from the building.

BBC cameraman Sims Harris, one of the hostages captured when Iranian-Arab gunmen seized the building last Wednesday, emerged apparently not seriously injured.

Minutes after the explosions, one of the hostages waved a sheet from a second-floor window in an attempt to attract the attention of rescuers.

Other people came rushing out the front entrance.

Gunmen still were occupying the embassy following the blasts and police marksmen crouched on the balconies of nearby buildings returning their fire.

Overhead, a police helicopter surveyed the scene, while Iranian demonstrators who had been milling around about 400 metres down the road started thunderous yells of "Long live Khomeini."

The body of a dark-haired victim was removed from the building about 7 p.m. London time by two men crouching and covered by police riflemen.

The victim, who was not immediately identified, was put on a stretcher and covered with a red blanket, his arms hanging limply off the sides. He appeared to be wearing a mustard-colored jacket and white shirt.

Several hours earlier, police reported "what sounded like two or three shots coming from the direction of" the embassy.

Deputy Assistant Police Commissioner Peter Nievens told reporters the gunman with whom police were talking on a field telephone at the time the suspected shots were heard did not tell them what had happened.

The telephone conversation continued, leading to speculation the apparent shooting, reported by several witnesses, may have been at the back of the building and that the gunmen did not hear it.

Until this afternoon, police believed they were winning the war of nerves with the gunmen, describing their dialogue with them as amiable and expressing rising hopes for a peaceful outcome to the siege.

On Sunday, the British foreign office had called in representatives from Jordan, Kuwait and Syria to discuss the situation after the gunmen had demanded Arab mediation in the dispute.

The gunmen have identified themselves as Arabs from Iran fighting to gain autonomy for Arab-speaking areas of southern Iran which they refer to as Arabistan.

London police, who have conducted most of the negotiations with the gunmen so far, said they were encouraged by the release of two hostages on Saturday and another Sunday.

Meanwhile in Tehran, the bodies of eight U.S. servicemen who died in an abortive attempt to rescue the U.S. hostages in Iran were handed over today to a representative of Greek Catholic Archbishop Hilarion Capudji.

And the official Pars news agency reported that a "possibly American" helicopter was found abandoned in the desert after four helicopters violated Iranian airspace Sunday.

Right royal disbelief

It's a good job a picture's worth a thousand words because Shelley Gibson was speechless Sunday when announcement was made that she had been chosen 1980 May Queen. Shelley, a Parklands student, was one of 10 high school students vying for the crown. Named as he princesses were Linda Darling, of Reynolds, and Coleen Christie, of Esquimalt High. As queen, Shelley will participate in wide range of events ranging from Pacific National Exhibition parade to Oak Bay Tea Party. She'll be crowned May 18.

CIDA aid helps Canada most?

OTTAWA (CP) — A year-long study of the Canadian International Development Agency suggests that Canada's foreign aid program may sometimes be of more benefit to Canadians than to the poor and hungry of the Third World.

Sixty per cent of Canada's total aid budget is spent in Canada for goods and services to be shipped to poor nations, says the report by Suteera Thomson, a science adviser to the Science Council of Canada.

While such a policy creates jobs at home, it also forces developing nations to purchase goods at prices estimated to be 20 per cent higher than the world market and, in the case of food aid, deflates the prices Third World farmers can obtain for their goods, says the recently-released report.

The development agency had only 52 workers stationed abroad compared with more than 1,000 in Canada when the report was prepared. Most of the officials sent abroad or planning projects in Canada had little or no Third World experience when hired.

"Thus, in terms of staffing, CIDA is heavily Canadian-based, if not Canada-centred."

Agency personnel posted abroad often aligned themselves closely with Canadian embassies promoting

Amsterdam goes wild as Canucks march in

AMSTERDAM (Reuter) — Some of the Canadian veterans who helped free Amsterdam during the Second World War today re-enacted their march into the city to celebrate the 35th anniversary of the Netherland's liberation.

Crowds several deep in places threw flowers at 350 of the 1,000 Canadians who took control of the Dutch capital from the occupying Germans in May, 1945.

Every five years, the Netherlands celebrates its liberation with a public holiday. Ten Canadians were invited for each of the 30 years that have passed since the end of the occupation.

The veterans drove through the city to the packed main Dam Square in an convoy of 85 vehicles used in the war.

As the procession began in the Berlage Bridge, where the Canadians entered Amsterdam, Dutch children climbed onto some of the vehicles, including jeeps, trucks, armored and amphibious carriers and staff cars.

The veterans, many in khaki uniforms and wearing medals, distributed cigarettes and chocolate as they did 35 years ago and gave the V for victory sign to the crowd.

The commander of the first Canadian troops to enter Amsterdam, Brig.-Gen. Henry Bell-Irving, released the first of a flock of white doves to commemorate the liberation.

Three Second World War planes flew low over the square where a children's choir sang songs in English to the Canadians.

U.S. prime drops

WASHINGTON — The prime lending rate continued to decline today as the Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. of New York reduced its rate a full percentage point to 17½ per cent.

Several other banks, including Chase Manhattan of New York, cut their prime rates one-half of a percentage point to 18 per cent. Chase is the third-largest bank in the country; Morgan ranks fifth.

The drop in interest rates has come with the growing consensus that a recession has begun, with a decline in bank business lending. In addition, according to Federal Reserve Board figures, the nation's basic money supply declined in March and it now appears that it will fall in April — the first two consecutive months of decline since the Fed began tightening credit last October.

The Carter administration, which is still predicting a mild and short recession, is hoping that the decline in interest rates and a drop in the inflation rate this summer will help restore consumer purchasing power.

TITO

Tito's long fight ends

BELGRADE (WP) — President Josip Broz Tito, creator of modern Yugoslavia and the first Communist leader to break away from the Soviet bloc, died Sunday in a Ljubljana hospital after a grave illness that lasted more than four months. He would have been 88 on May 7.

The collective state presidency, designated by Tito to succeed him and composed of representatives of Yugoslavia's many different nationalities, went into emergency session.

AHOP owners losing homes

TORONTO (CP) — In the first three months of this year, the federal government repossessed 1,195 homes purchased under its Assisted Home Ownership Plan.

The figure represents nearly one-quarter of the total number of units forfeited by their owners since the program — intended to give low and moderate income families the opportunity of owning a home — was introduced five years ago.

The program "has made an awful lot of people very unhappy and it's broken up a lot of families," said Marlene Grant, a single mother who has so far managed to keep her home when almost half her plan-sponsored neighbors have gone under.

Federal housing officials blame unexpected problems related to the market, maintenance fees and taxes for the relatively new condominium housing involved in the plan.

However, critics say government bungling is responsible for a situation in which an increasing number of owners, unable to keep up with interest rates, are filing quit claims.

The plan was designed to help buyers with incomes ranging from about $11,000 to $20,000 a year if shelter costs took more than 25 per cent of their incomes.

Government loans were offered to reduce the mortgage interest rate over five years with the loan being reduced each year.

Raymond Boivin, vice-president of the Canada Mortgage and Housing Corp., said most of the problems centre on spiralling inflation and high interest rates.

However, James Crozier, commissioner of social service in Peel Region, west of Toronto, said the plan was "poorly administered," noting tighter screening of applicants would have avoided much of the trouble.

The president of the Canadian Real Estate Association, Eric Charman of Victoria, said the government inflicted hardship on some families by luring them into deals they could not afford.

UVic students forced to quit or live in tents?

By BRENDA DALGLISH

Students may be forced to live in motels or even tents this fall because of an increased housing shortage expected province-wide.

Delegates to a Victoria meeting of the B.C. Students' Federation were told on the weekend the situation will force some students to leave school and forego their education.

In some centres students are already living in motels and that trend is expected to grow.

"It's an emergency situation. Not only is the cost of accommodation rising rapidly, there is very little available at all," said Terry Johnson, a UVic delegate to the meeting of representatives of B.C. post-secondary institutions.

Right now some residences on campuses have two-year waiting periods.

The situation is hardest on out-of-town students.

Delegates called on the government to approve requests now before it for about $35 million to build additional residences on the province's three university campuses — UVic, University of British Columbia and Simon Fraser.

Those requests from the universities' administrations are to take advantage of the provincial government's recent change in financing policy that makes money more readily available for student residences.

UVic has applied for $4 million to construct residences, Simon Fraser has asked for about $7 million and UBC has requested $25 million.

Delegates said if the government were to approve release of those funds immediately, construction of the residences might be finished in time to help students this year.

UVic students also intend to lobby Oak Bay council to have zoning bylaws changed so single-family homes can have suites to rent.

Johnson said he was concerned about the possiblity that this might encourage substandard accommodation to be put on the market but "anything is better than nothing".

Technical colleges and institutes across the province are in an even worse position than universities, their delegates claimed, because very few of them have any residences at all.

"The government's got to get its policies figured out. On one hand they say they need more skilled workers and then they do nothing to encourage that," said Gordon Sears of the British Columbia Institute of Technology.

Sears complained that students, particularly male students, are discriminated against when it comes to obtaining rental accomodation.

BCSF chairman Malcolm Elliott criticized the government for lack of leadership on the problem.

"Students are being expected to do the work government should be doing. We're doing housing studies and surveys, we're looking at the rentalsman act. The government has done nothing and continues to do nothing," Elliott said.

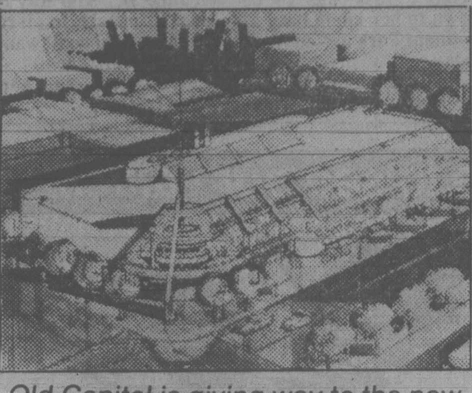
Students at many colleges and universities, including UVic, will run housing services to help students find accommodation when they return to campus this fall.

Also discussed at the meeting was the stated intention of the government to add two more government appointees to each college board in the province.

Delegates claim it's an attempt by the government to obtain control of the boards because the change will put government appointees in the majority on boards.

The other members of college boards are appointed by local school boards.

In case you're wondering



Old Capitol is giving way to the new

I'm wondering about the old Capitol Theatre at Yates and Blanshard. Recently I read that it is to be demolished. Is it too late to save her?

Afraid so. The 59-year-old theatre showed her last movie on April 27 (Academy Award winner Norma Rae was the film) and the wreckers began demolition the day after.

Jack Tomik, western regional manager of Famous Players Ltd., says by June 1 the Capitol will be razed, and construction of a six-theatre complex will begin. It follows the redevelopment of other big downtown theatres across Canada.

The new building will also be brick but it will be a block long, stretching down Blanshard from Yates to View. At street level will be retail stores. The six cinemas inside will provide a total of 2,500 seats for movie fans.

Heritage buff Tom Palfrey says the old brick building was the last in a nation-wide chain of Capitol theatres built by Famous Players. It opened Sept. 8, 1921 with a silent movie and the theatre's own orchestra accompanied each show until 1929 when sound equipment was installed.

"The Capitol theatre is in fine condition, albeit superficially run down (the urn over the entrance disappeared years ago); its accoustics are good; its interior and exterior design is worthy of restoration," Palfrey wrote in a letter to the Times.

Help for the sex offenders

Families taking part in daring new program

By DEREK SIDENIUS

A counselling program has been set up in Victoria to help the most hated and least understood of all criminals — the sex offender.

Organized by a 45-year-old ex-offender and run with the assistance of the Community Diversion Centre, the program is doing something that no one in Victoria has dared attempt before.

It is giving offenders the opportunity to discuss their problems openly among themselves in hopes of finding ways to correct their aberrant behavior.

Lona O'Gorman, director of the diversion centre, says the approach is unusual in several respects.

It's the first of its kind in the province offering on-going group counselling for sex offenders in a non-institutional setting.

The majority of the participating offenders have not been charged with any offence, although police are advised about the incidents in virtually every case. Their participation is voluntary.

But the program's most dramatic feature, she says, is it deals with the offenders' problems in light of their family situations.

Wives and even children of offenders are an integral part of the counselling process. So, too, are victims.

O'Gorman says the program aims at reducing the fear, shame, guilt and prejudice that has long been associated with such taboo crimes.

As Frank, the onetime sex-offender who conceived the program, says: "It is time people started to accept the fact sex is here. And so are sex problems. We have programs to help people with drug and alcohol problems and other kinds of abuse such as child abuse. Somehow it is more acceptable for a child to get battered than abused sexually. There is a real need to help sex offenders and not just sweep the problem under the carpet away from sight, out of mind."

Frank — his last name can't be used for obvious reasons — speaks from first-hand knowledge.

Eleven years ago he was convicted of a sex crime and served three years in an eastern prison.

On his release he embarked on a crusade to find out why he and other offenders behave as they do. He read volumes of research material and travelled throughout North America visiting more than 30 clinics in prisons and hospitals.

He didn't find the answer for his own case.

"I had anger and I misdirected it . . . I was in a marriage that I didn't want to be in . . . but why I did what I did — I don't know."

But his inquiries led him to lay counselling and, since his arrival in the Victoria area in 1973, he has been used widely as a resource person by schools, police, probation service and human resources.

Frank says the important thing to realize about sex criminals is they have a behaviorial problem. They are not inately bad.

"All one can do is say to them that as a male I don't like that behavior and get them to accept that part of it.

"But there are a lot of things involved. They must learn controls and face up to what happens if caught."

Adds O'Gorman: "You've got to look at the whole person and try to effect acceptance and reconciliation."

O'Gorman says the underlying causes for such disparate crimes as shoplifting and indecent exposure are invariably the same.

"I see two factors emerge over and over again," she says. "Either the person is under extreme stress or he has a feeling of impotence, a sense of powerlessness to do anything with his life.

"He can't cope any more. Often the act is a call for help."

Frank says far more attention has to be placed on helping victims, especially children.

"How we as society act influences the way the child perceives what was done to him. A child doesn't have guilt. But somehow our response makes him feel he's to blame. In many cases society causes more damage than the act itself."

Some studies bear him out. One completed in the U.S. showed 70 per cent of those convicted of sex crimes were also victims at one time.

"I think we have to start asking the question, what does the offender mean to the victim?"

Building supply pickets spread

Members of the Retail Clerks Union, Local 1518, have set up a secondary picket line at the Revelstoke Home Improvement Centres Ltd. store on Gorge Road.

The action stems from a dispute over a first contract for seven clerks at Revelstoke's Nanaimo outlet.

The Victoria store remains open for business despite the pickets which first appeared Saturday, but a union spokesman said some members of the Teamsters Union who work in the yard refused to cross the line.

Store manager Harvey Wilson refused to say today whether any employees have not reported to work as a result of the dispute. He said the store had one of its busiest Saturdays last weekend.

The clerks' union does not represent the inside employees at Revelstoke's Victoria store.

Union business representative Bob Ives said the union went on strike last week at the Nanaimo store and it remains closed. Pickets also appeared last week at the company's Port Alberni store, he said, but were not there today.

Asked how long he thinks the pickets will remain at the Victoria outlet at 449 Gorge Road East, Ives said: "We expect a long one."

The union won certification for the Nanaimo employees Oct. 1, 1979, but has been unable to reach agreement on a first contract.

Ives said a large number of issues are outstanding, including wages.

Budget cut but taxes still go up

By NORMAN GIDNEY

Victoria city council today made late cuts totalling $1.4 million from its 1980 budget resulting in a freeze on the municipal mill rate at approximately 49.7 mills.

Taxes will still go up, however, because a two-mill increase in the school board's budget has resulted in a hike in property assessments.

All the budget deletions are not yet final, but the total mill rate for property owners in the city should be approximately 105 mills, up from last year's total of 102.325.

Taxes on a home whose 1980 assessment was $75,000 will be approximately $1,140 this year, less the $380 homeowner grant (which is $580 for those over 65).

Council made the biggest cut by deciding to delete $600,000 from the storm drain reserve fund, a decision which places in jeopardy an $11 million plan drawn up several years ago to renew Victoria's storm drain system in the 1980s.

The $1.8 million Haultain Valley storm drain improvement project will go ahead as past councils have built up the reserve fund sufficiently, but the deletion means future councils must find a new method of financing the next phases of the public works project.

Finance committee chairman Ald. Frank Carson said the city can't freeze the mill rate, put several hundred thousand dollars in a reserve fund for sewer work and pay for such projects as the rebuilding of the Johnson Street bridge, revitalization of Chinatown and hiring another 10 policemen.

"These darn storm drains are ultimately going to eliminate our options in other areas," he added.

"I think we're putting goldplated services underground when leadplated services would suffice," said Ald. Ken Sinclair.

Ald. Bill McElroy was the lone dissenter to the decision by council in budget committee. He said council was making a major change in principle, and suggested that in future the city may have to borrow money for public works.

For more than a decade, Victoria has financed public works projects out of annual revenues and has been spared the recent high interest rates in the money markets that have hit other municipalities forced to borrow.

Another major cut council wants is $60,000 from the police department. Mayor Bill Tindall has called a special meeting of the police board to discuss the request.

Pilot gets all the aid he needs

A Richmond pilot and his passenger radioed for help Sunday and got it — from six different sources.

The pilot, identified only as N. Stead of the Aero Flying Academy in Richmond, landed at Victoria International Airport a half-hour after sending a distress call from his Cessna 172 about 2:30 p.m., saying he was lost in cloud over mountainous country on a flight from Vancouver to Tofino and back.

The message was picked up by a U.S. Air Force jetliner outbound over the Pacific and direction findings were given by the jet, the radar control office at Comox, the Canadian Coast Guard cutter Ready which was in the Strait of Juan de Fuca, the Canadian coast Guard cutter Racer at Ucluelet, a Tracker aircraft from CFB Comox and Victoria International Airport's control tower.

Firefighting protest late?

A petition protesting any move to have Victoria handle firefighting in the municipality is circulating in Esquimalt.

But Ald. Colin Blair, who opposes the proposal, says the petition which asks for a referendum on the scheme is going to be too late.

Blair said a budget bylaw to be presented to council tonight already includes three mills towards the cost of the Victoria firefighting service in 1981 even though no agreement has been reached between the city and the municipality.

Blair insists the cost of having Victoria fight the municipality's fires is going to cost about $800,000 year, some $600,000 more than at present.

Firefighting is now handled by the municipal police, backed up by the Canadian Armed Forces firefighting unit at CFB Esquimalt.

Blair says having the armed forces unit as a backup costs the municipality only $6,000 a year.

"That's pretty good considering their wage bill (for the armed forces unit) is more than $1 million a year," Blair said.

"But what I really object to is the sort of clandestine methods that have been used to push this through."

He said the public hasn't been told the municipal police department recently put forward a proposal to expand its existing dual role.

It was the police union that first objected to policemen having to fight fires, but police are now suggesting they will continue to do double duty if more men are added on the firefighting end.

"That system would be even cheaper than setting up our own fire department," Blair claims.

Blair said no one has challenged Victoria Ald. Bob Wright's claim that firefighting costs each Victorian only $40 a year.

"No one's contradicted that, but the cost is more like $60 a year," he said.

Thieves show nerve

Police are seeking nervy thieves who broke into four Oak Bay homes on the weekend as the owners slept.

A fifth break-in occurred when the owners stepped out for three or four minutes.

The two who left their house briefly were Mr. and Mrs. Ian Grassick of 1447 St. David and the take was $500.

The Ken Davidson family at 935 Foul Bay lost $250 while they slept.

Nothing was taken from the homes of John Zenko, 1001 Foul Bay, C. Eric Bennett, 1225 Monterey, or Ian Parker, 2146 Windsor.

Police clam up over shooting

Saanich police won't reveal the results of an internal police investigation into a shooting incident in late 1978 which sent a veteran officer and a notorious prison escaper to hospital with gunshot wounds.

Saanich police board chairman Mayor Mel Couvelier last week denied a request by the Times to see the report on the grounds some of the information in it had international implications.

He would not elaborate other than say the escaper, Thomas Young Lackey, 36, was an American citizen and there had been exchanges between the U.S. and Canadian state departments over allegations by the accused that officers had deliberately tried to kill him during the arrest.

Couvelier said, however, he would bring the request for the report before the next meeting of the board in two weeks.

Saanich police chief Bob Peterson said only that a full report of the incident had been made pursuant to section five of the police firearms regulations of the B.C. Police Act.

Under that section the chief constable must immediately cause an investigation to be made into any case where a police officer, in the performance of his duties, kills or injures another person.

The chief must then submit the report to the chairman of the police board who "shall review the report and make such further inquiries as he considers necessary."

Insp. Neil Campbell of the B.C. Police Commission said the chairman of the local police board has sole discretion over whether the report should be made public.

But he noted it was customary practice with most forces to release such information.

Lackey was sentenced to a total of 18 years in the penitentiary after his conviction last December of a series of crimes, including the attempted murder of Sgt. William Hillcoat of Saanich police in an early-morning gun battle Nov. 8, 1978, and the wounding of a prison guard at Matsqui while making good his escape five days earlier.

Officers described Lackey as one of the most dangerous criminals they have had to deal with.

Hillcoat was approaching the scene of a single-car crash at Cedar Hill Cross Road and McKenzie when he was hit in the abdomen and upper thigh with a shotgun blast fired by a man in the car.

Hillcoat returned four shots, striking the man at least three times in the legs.

Constable Robert Love, who arrived on the scene moments later, grabbed the suspect by the hair and was holding him when Hillcoat stumbled into them, causing Love's gun to discharge.

At his trial Lackey testified someone came up to him as he lay on the ground and fired into his left temple, shattering his eye.

A Victoria neurosurgeon, Dr. A.H. Ibrahim, testified the wound was inflicted from a handgun at a distance of less than three inches.

Defence counsel David Gibbons said in interview the evidence clearly warrants an inquiry.

But as yet there has been no complaint to the police force which would cause an inquiry board to be formed.

Deputy police chief Rick Avison said in an interview last month the matter has been dealt with to the satisfaction of the police force.

He said the case was extensively reviewed in a four-hour debriefing session held in February for all members involved. Such sessions are standard practice in every serious case, he said.

But Peterson indicated he was far from certain himself what actually happened.

He called the conclusion reached in the investigation a hypothesis, and admitted there were several others that could have been put forward, including Lackey's, which senior officers discounted for reasons the chief wouldn't divulge.

'Shoppers' carted off to jail

A curious passerby who wondered about two men wheeling two shopping carts down the street Sunday decided to call police.

The result was the arrest of two brothers who face charges of breaking into the James Bay liquor store at 230 Menzies and stealing some $1,200 worth of liquor.

It was the third break-in at the James Bay outlet in a week. The previous two cases, however, remain unsolved.

In another break-in overnight, about $5,500 was stolen by thieves who entered the Millos Restaurant at 716 Burdett sometime after 1 a.m. today.

Commando raid ends U.K. siege

Times News Services

LONDON — Police commandos stormed the Iranian embassy today, saving at least 14 of the hostages held inside for six days and killing three of the gunmen.

Two ear-splitting explosions, followed by a fusillade of gunfire, rocked the besieged Iranian embassy about 7:30 p.m. London time, and the building was engulfed by fire.

About five Iranian-Arab gunmen had been holding an estimated 19 hostages inside since last Wednesday.

U.K. Foreign Secretary Lord Carrington, on an offical visit to Washington, confirmed that the operation had been a success.

A short time before the explosions, the body of a dead men had been shoved from the building.

BBC cameraman Sims Harris, one of the hostages, was one of the first to emerge from the building.

The violent end of the six-day hostage drama was seen live on British television.

Ayatollah Khomeini's revolutionary government in Iran had refused to negotiate on the gunmen's demands for the release of 91 Arab militants imprisoned in Iran's oil-rich Khuzestan province.

Immediately after the explosions, dozens of shots were fired outside and inside the embassy, and police ordered reporters stationed about 200 metres away to take cover as thick black smoke poured from the back of the building.

Iranian demonstrators who had been milling around, about 400 metres down the road, started thunderous yells of "Long live Khomeini."

At least one man, presumably a hostage, was seen jumping for his life from a second floor balcony to another balcony. Another man was seen waving a white sheet in a second-storey window to attract rescuers.

Police tore down barricades so firefighters, covered by police marksmen, could get through to fight the blaze.

The body of a dark-haired victim was removed from the building about 7 p.m. London time by two men crouching and covered by police riflemen.

The victim, who was not immediately identified, was put on a stretcher and covered with a red blanket, his arms hanging limply off the sides. He appeared to be wearing a mustard-colored jacket and white shirt.

The end of the hostage drama came as British authorities stepped-up their efforts to involve Arab diplomats in the futile negotiations to free the hostages.

The Arab ambassadors met for two hours at the London offices of the Arab League.

Several hours earlier, police reported "what sounded like two or three shots coming from the direction of" the embassy.

The reported gunfire came as negotiations with at least three Arab gunmen appeared to stall.

Deputy Assistant Police Commissioner Peter Nievens told reporters the gunman with whom police were talking on a field telephone at the time the suspected shots were heard did not tell them what had happened.

The telephone conversation continued, leading to speculation the apparent shooting, reported by several witnesses, may have been at the back of the building and that the gunmen did not hear it.

Until this afternoon, police believed they were winning the war of nerves with the gunmen, describing their dialogue with them as amiable and expressing rising hopes for a peaceful outcome.

Meanwhile in Tehran, the bodies of eight U.S. servicemen who died in an abortive attempt to rescue the U.S. hostages in Iran were handed over today to a representative of Greek Catholic Archbishop Hilarion Capudji.

And the official Pars news agency reported that a "possibly American" helicopter was found abandoned in the desert after four helicopters violated Iranian airspace Sunday.

Foreign aid helps Canadians most?

OTTAWA (CP) — A year-long study of the Canadian International Development Agency suggests that Canada's foreign aid program may sometimes be of more benefit to Canadians than to the poor and hungry of the Third World.

Sixty per cent of Canada's total aid budget is spent in Canada for goods and services to be shipped to poor nations, says the report by Suteera Thomson, a science adviser to the Science Council of Canada.

While such a policy creates jobs at home, it also forces developing nations to purchase goods at prices estimated to be 20 per cent higher than the world market and, in the case of food aid, deflates the prices Third World farmers can obtain for their goods, says the recently-released report.

The development agency had only 52 workers stationed abroad compared with more than 1,000 in Canada when the report was prepared. Most of the officials sent abroad or planning projects in Canada had little or no Third World experience when hired.

"Thus, in terms of staffing, CIDA is heavily Canadian-based, if not Canada-centred."

Agency personnel posted abroad often aligned themselves closely with Canadian embassies promoting

Amsterdam goes wild as Canucks march in

AMSTERDAM (Reuter) — Some of the Canadian veterans who helped free Amsterdam during the Second World War today re-enacted their march into the city to celebrate the 35th anniversary of the Netherland's liberation.

Crowds several deep in places threw flowers at 350 of the 1,000 Canadians who took control of the Dutch capital from the occupying Germans in May, 1945.

Every five years, the Netherlands celebrates its liberation with a public holiday. Ten Canadians were invited for each of the 30 years that have passed since the end of the occupation.

The veterans drove through the city to the packed main Dam Square in a convoy of 85 vehicles used in the war.

As the procession began in the Berlage Bridge, where the Canadians entered Amsterdam, Dutch children climbed onto some of the vehicles, including jeeps, trucks, armored and amphibious carriers and staff cars.

The veterans, many in khaki uniforms and wearing medals, distributed cigarettes and chocolate as they did 35 years ago and gave the V for victory sign to the crowd.

The commander of the first Canadian troops to enter Amsterdam, Brig.-Gen. Henry Bell-Irving, released the first of a flock of white doves to commemorate the liberation.

Three Second World War planes flew low over the square where a children's choir sang songs in English to the Canadians.

U.S. prime drops

WASHINGTON — The prime lending rate continued to decline today as the Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. of New York reduced its rate a full percentage point to 17½ per cent.

Several other banks, including Chase Manhattan of New York, cut their prime rates one-half of a percentage point to 18 per cent. Chase is the third-largest bank in the country; Morgan ranks fifth.

The drop in interest rates has come with the growing consensus that a recession has begun, with a decline in bank business lending. In addition, according to Federal Reserve Board figures, the nation's basic money supply declined in March and it now appears that it will fall in April — the first two consecutive months of decline since the Fed began tightening credit last October.

The Carter administration, which is still predicting a mild and short recession, is hoping that the decline in interest rates and a drop in the inflation rate this summer will help restore consumer purchasing power.

AHOP owners losing homes

TORONTO (CP) — In the first three months of this year, the federal government repossessed 1,195 homes purchased under its Assisted Home Ownership Plan.

The figure represents nearly one-quarter of the total number of units forfeited by their owners since the program — intended to give low and moderate income families the opportunity of owning a home — was introduced five years ago.

The program "has made an awful lot of people very unhappy and it's broken up a lot of families," said Marlene Grant, a single mother who has so far managed to keep her home when almost half her plan-sponsored neighbors have gone under.

Federal housing officials blame unexpected problems related to the market, maintenance fees and taxes for the relatively new condominium housing involved in the plan.

However, critics say government bungling is responsible for a situation in which an increasing number of owners, unable to keep up with interest rates, are filing quit claims.

The plan was designed to help buyers with incomes ranging from about $11,000 to $20,000 a year if shelter costs took more than 25 per cent of their incomes.

Government loans were offered to reduce the mortgage interest rate over five years with the loan being reduced each year.

Raymond Boivin, vice-president of the Canada Mortgage and Housing Corp., said most of the problems centre on spiralling inflation and high interest rates.

However, James Crozier, commissioner of social service in Peel Region, west of Toronto, said the plan was "poorly administered," noting tighter screening of applicants would have avoided much of the trouble.

The president of the Canadian Real Estate Association, Eric Charman of Victoria, said the government inflicted hardship on some families by luring them into deals they could not afford.

UVic students forced to quit or live in tents?

By BRENDA DALGLISH

Students may be forced to live in motels or even tents this fall because of an increased housing shortage expected province-wide.

Delegates to a Victoria meeting of the B.C. Students' Federation were told on the weekend the situation will force some students to leave school and forego their education.

In some centres students are already living in motels and that trend is expected to grow.

"It's an emergency situation. Not only is the cost of accommodation rising rapidly, there is very little available at all," said Terry Johnson, a UVic delegate to the meeting of representatives of B.C. post-secondary institutions.

Right now some residences on campuses have two-year waiting periods.

The situation is hardest on out-of-town students.

Delegates called on the government to approve requests now before it for about $35 million to build additional residences on the province's three university campuses — UVic, University of British Columbia and Simon Fraser.

Those requests from the universities' administrations are to take advantage of the provincial government's recent change in financing policy that makes money more readily available for student residences.

UVic has applied for $4 million to construct residences, Simon Fraser has asked for about $7 million and UBC has requested $25 million.

Delegates said if the government were to approve release of those funds immediately, construction of the residences might be finished in time to help students this year.

UVic students also intend to lobby Oak Bay council to have zoning bylaws changed so single-family homes can have suites to rent.

Johnson said he was concerned about the possiblity that this might encourage substandard accommodation to be put on the market but "anything is better than nothing".

Technical colleges and institutes across the province are in an even worse position than universities, their delegates claimed, because very few of them have any residences at all.

"The government's got to get its policies figured out. On one hand they say they need more skilled workers and then they do nothing to encourage that," said Gordon Sears of the British Columbia Institute of Technology.

Sears complained that students, particularly male students, are discriminated against when it comes to obtaining rental accomodation.

BCSF chairman Malcolm Elliott criticized the government for lack of leadership on the problem.

"Students are being expected to do the work government should be doing. We're doing housing studies and surveys, we're looking at the rentalsman act. The government has done nothing and continues to do nothing," Elliott said.

Students at many colleges and universities, including UVic, will run housing services to help students find accommodation when they return to campus this fall.

Also discussed at the meeting was the stated intention of the government to add two more government appointees to each college board in the province.

Delegates claim it's an attempt by the government to obtain control of the boards because the change will put government appointees in the majority on boards.

The other members of college boards are appointed by local school boards.

Hudson's Bay Oil stock split 4-for-1

CALGARY (CP) — Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas Co. Ltd. shareholders Tuesday approved a 4-for-1 split of the company's shares. Shareholders of record May 12 will receive three additional shares for each share held.

S. G. Olson, who is retiring as president and chief executive officer, told the annual meeting the company's plans for an active investment program in 1980 could be substantially altered.

Olson said there could be a change in projected expenditures depending on the outcome of negotiations between the federal and provincial governments on oil and natural gas pricing and revenue-sharing policies.

He said recent moves by the federal Liberal government that indicate the settlement of commercial terms could be "long and agonizing" have diminished the prospect for completing the Alsands oil-sands project in northeastern Alberta.

Record April sales for GM dealers

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — Despite troubles faced by the North American auto industry, General Motors dealers in Canada established a record for car sales in the month of April, GM Canada said today.

Dealers sold 45,066 cars, easing past the previous high for the month of 44,936 set last year.

Total vehicle deliveries last month were 59,918, compared with 60,237 a year ago.

Richard M. Colcomb, GM's vice-president and general sales manager, said the Canadian car market continues strong.

"While interest rates have been high, rates have declined in recent weeks, our merchandise trade set a record surplus in the first quarter and personal savings are at historical highs.

"Canada has also experienced rising employment levels and the rate of inflation has been stable since the turn of the year."

GM vehicle deliveries in the first seven months of the 1980 model year are a record 356,704, three per cent higher than the previous record of 345,831 for the period set a year ago.

Meanwhile, GM's American chairman Thomas Murphy said Sunday in Washington there will be a shortage of GM models to sell this summer and he predicted prices will increase 6 to 7 percent over the coming year.

Appearing on the CBS interview program, "Face The Nation," Murphy also said foreign-made automobiles share "too much of the market" and partially blamed that on American consumers who buy them for the sake of being "fashionable."

He endorsed President Carter's declaration that the nation has turned the corner on inflation, and said: "I agree that the recession, if there is one, will be short and mild."

But he said GM will be "product short through the summer months because of the unwillingness of dealers to order," and he blamed that on high interest rates.

At a time when dealers should be ordering for the summer months they have shown a "great reluctance" to build up their inventories, he said.

'79 rough for trust companies

TORONTO (CP) — Trust companies generally had a rough year last year because of rapidly-rising interest rates, but 1980 should be better, says the president of the Trust Companies Association of Canada.

J. L. Colhoun, also chairman and chief executive officer of National Trust Co. Ltd., said recent pressure on earnings was due mainly to the dramatic increase in interest rates since October, but "the future of trust companies is bright."

Although several companies suffered declines in earnings last year, the industry as a whole saw total assets under administration rise for the first time to more than $100 billion, an increase of 17.6 per cent from the previous year.

Colhoun said there was evidence that interest rates may be declining, but he thinks they will fall more slowly in Canada than in the United States because of Ottawa's concern about maintaining the value of the Canadian dollar.

Trust companies are hurt by rising interest rates because a lot of their money is in the form of short-term deposits and they tend to lend for long terms.

About 80 per cent of their assets are in mortgages, so they are squeezed between the higher rates they have to pay to attract money and their long-term mortgages, often at lower rates.

In addition to their deposit-taking and mortgage-lending operations, trust companies collect fees and commissions from real estate, corporate and personal trust transactions.

They also serve as register agents for Registered Retirement Savings Plans and Registered Home Ownership Savings Plans.

Colhoun says future growth may be particularly strong in the field of personal money management.

"Business conditions for the average person aren't getting any easier, with increasingly-complicated tax legislation," he said, therefore more people are likely to turn to trust companies to help them manage their money.

BUBBLING CAULDRON of molten steel dwarfs a worker (lower right) at the Nippon Kokan steel mills in Yokohama, Japan. With a sixth of its coal supply coming from western Canada, the Japanese steel industry expects a moderate production recovery. Demand for the second quarter of 1980 is expected to top 29 million tonnes for the first time in six years.

New York

Stock prices in New York rose Monday as major banks cut their prime lending rates and evidence mounted that the recession may be a deep one.

With the economy apparently declining rapidly, the Federal Reserve Board appears to have eased its tight-money policies. Six-month treasury bills fell to 9.06 per cent in money-market trading and some banks led by Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. of New York cut their prime lending rates to 17½ per cent.

A survey of purchasing managers concluded the economy "plummeted" in April, confirming the labor department report that unemployment in the United States rose to seven per cent in the month.

With interest rates declining, bank stocks were strong. Citicorp was up 1¾ to $21 and Great Western Financial rose ⅞ to $18¾.

Auto stocks were weak as major automakers reported sales down substantially from last year. General Motors fell ⅜ to $44¾, Ford dropped 1⅛ to $22⅛ and Chrysler slipped ⅛ to $6⅞.
